Part 1: The explainer

In one minute

1. What it is. A jar of 140 round gel pads soaked in a pink, watery gel. You lay one on your face for 5 minutes like a tiny mask, then wipe with the other side. It is a moisture (hydration) product.
2. What's really in it. Mostly water plus "water magnets" (glycerin and friends), a good dose of niacinamide (vitamin B3), a small amount of salmon DNA (PDRN), and traces of hyaluronic acid, peptides, collagen and plant extracts. No acids, no retinol, no fragrance, no alcohol.
3. It is the same 45 ingredients as Anua PDRN 100 Hyaluronic Acid Glow Pad, a Korean pad that states its PDRN at 100 ppm (parts per million) = 0.01%.
4. What it honestly does. Skin looks plumper, dewier and smoother for some hours. With daily use, niacinamide may slowly help tone look more even. That's the believable part.
5. What it can't do. Lift sagging skin, firm a crepey neck, rebuild collagen or "repair cells". PDRN works when injected; on the skin surface the evidence is very thin.
6. Who it suits. Dry, dull, easily irritated skin, especially women over 50 who can't tolerate retinol or acids.
7. Who should not use it. Anyone with a fish allergy (salmon DNA; the collagen source isn't stated) or soy allergy, and vegans.
8. Price. $59.95 for 140 pads on the brand site = $0.43 a pad. The identical Anua pad has two prices, both for 60 pads and both measured 2026-10-31: $23.00 on Anua's own US store (anua.us product data) = $0.38 a pad, and $22.00 at Ulta and Vitacost (their product pages) = $0.37 a pad.

1. The basics from zero

1.1 What skin is, in kitchen-table words

Your skin is the biggest organ you have. Think of it as three layers stacked like a cake.

Layer	What it is	Kitchen comparison	Why it matters for this pad
Epidermis (top layer)	Thin as a sheet of paper on the face. New cells are made at its bottom and travel up, flattening and dying as they go. StatPearls lists five sub-layers, from the bottom: basale, spinosum, granulosum, lucidum (palms and soles only), corneum	A conveyor belt of cells that ends at the surface	This is the only layer a pad really touches

Layer	What it is	Kitchen comparison	Why it matters for this pad
Stratum corneum (the very top of the epidermis)	About 15–30 layers of flat, dead cells (sources differ on the count) glued together with fats	A brick wall: dead cells are the bricks, fats are the mortar	This is "the skin barrier". Most skincare works here
Dermis (middle layer)	Thick, living layer full of collagen (strength), elastin (snap-back) and hyaluronic acid (holds water). Blood vessels and oil glands live here	The mattress springs and stuffing	Wrinkles and sagging start here. Creams and pads barely reach it
Fat layer, muscle and bone (underneath)	Fat pads, muscles and the skull	The couch frame and cushions	Sagging jowls and hollows come from here. Skincare can't change it

Dr Shereene Idriss (dermatologist, i.e. a skin doctor, "Over 50? Your Skincare Routine Should Change Like This", 753,067 views) uses the same picture: "we should think of our faces as couches. Our skin is the fabric of the couch. The skin care can affect the fabric of the couch, but our skincare is never going to fill our couches and plump them up with feathers and our skincare is never going to fix the foundation of our couch, i.e. our bone structure".

How long the conveyor belt takes. Cells take roughly two to four weeks to travel up and flake off. It slows with age: one review gives about 20 days in young adults against 30 or more in older adults. Slower turnover means dead cells pile up, and skin looks dull (it reflects light less evenly).

1.2 The skin barrier, hydration and moisture

- The skin barrier is the brick wall at the top. Its mortar is three kinds of fat: ceramides, cholesterol and fatty acids. A good wall keeps water in and irritants out.
- A damaged barrier has cracks in the mortar. Water escapes (doctors call it TEWL, transepidermal water loss: water evaporating out through the skin), and things that never stung before now sting.
- Hydration = water in the skin. Moisture (oil) = the fats that seal the water in. People mix the words up. Skin can be:
  - Dry: short of oil (a skin type; common after menopause).
  - Dehydrated: short of water (a condition; anyone can have it). It feels tight and looks dull or finely lined.
- The three kinds of moisturising ingredient (Dr Dray lists them in the menopause video):

Kind	What it does	Kitchen comparison	Examples in this pad
Humectant	Grabs water and holds it in the top layer	A sponge	Glycerin, butylene glycol, hyaluronic acid, urea-type, sugars. The pad is mostly these
Emollient	Smooths and softens, fills the gaps between dead cells	Butter spread on rough toast	Very little in this pad
Occlusive	Forms a seal so water can't escape	Cling film over a bowl	None in this pad

Why this matters for the pad: the pad is almost all humectant. Humectants pull water in, but without a seal on top the water can evaporate again. So the pad needs a moisturiser after it, especially on dry mature skin. A Korean doctor (Seoul Beauty, "The ONLY 3 Things You Need for Real Glass Skin", 343,348 views) says: "those water-grabbing ingredients pull moisture in, sure, but if you don't put a cream over the top, it just evaporates right away".

1.3 What a skincare routine is, and why the order matters

A routine is simply the products you put on, in order, morning and night. Dermatologists at Doctorly ("Cleanse, Treat, Protect", 1,192,728 views) boil it down to three jobs:

Job	What it means	Products	Morning	Night
1. Cleanse	Wash off oil, dirt, sunscreen and makeup	Cleanser (face wash, cleansing milk or oil)	Optional, gentle	Yes
2. Treat	Put on the things that do a specific job	Toner, toner pad, essence, serum, retinoid, eye cream	Yes	Yes
3. Protect	Seal moisture in and block the sun	Moisturiser; sunscreen in the morning only	Moisturiser + sunscreen	Moisturiser

The five products people name most:

Product	What it is, plainly	Texture
Cleanser	Soap's gentle modern cousin	Gel, cream, foam, oil
Toner	A watery liquid used after washing (see 1.4)	Like water
Serum	A small bottle of concentrated "treatment" liquid	Thin to slightly gooey
Moisturiser	A lotion or cream that softens and seals	Lotion to thick cream
Sunscreen (SPF)	Blocks the sun's UV rays, the biggest cause of spots and wrinkles	Lotion or fluid

Why order matters: thinnest to thickest. A dermatologist Short ("When Should You Use Toner Pads? Dermatologist Explains", 58,000 views): "generally speaking, it's a good idea to go from thinnest texture to thickest. So, liquids go on first after cleansing". The idea: a watery product can't get through a layer of thick cream, the way water beads on a waxed car. Doctorly admit it's a rule of thumb, not hard science: "there's no science behind this... thinnest to thickest, and that's generally how we layer our products". Sunscreen always goes last in the morning so nothing smears it.

For this pad: it's the thinnest thing after cleansing, so it goes first after washing.

1.4 What toner is

- Where toner came from. Old soaps were very alkaline (high pH) and left a film. Toner was invented to wipe off the leftovers and bring skin back to its normally slightly acidic state. A dermatologist Short ("Are toners necessary?", 477,000 views): "originally toners were used for pH balance after using a cleanser... these days cleansers are better formulated... so toners really don't have any function anymore".
- What "toner" means now. Any watery product used after cleansing. Doctorly: "There's no like, you know, government definition of what a toner is"; toners, essences and serums are "purely marketing language" that mostly tells you the texture. What matters is what's inside.
- The three kinds of toner today:

Kind	What's in it	What it does	Good for mature dry skin?
Astringent toner (old-school)	Alcohol, witch hazel	Tightens, de-greases, can sting	Usually no, too drying
Exfoliating toner	Acids: AHA (glycolic, lactic), BHA (salicylic), PHA	Loosens dead cells, smooths, can sting	Sometimes, a few times a week
Hydrating toner / essence	Water + humectants (glycerin, hyaluronic acid), soothers	Adds water, plumps, calms	Yes. The Luxe pad is this kind

Dr Idriss recommends exactly this kind after 50: "Essences and quote unquote toners, i.e. hydrating toners not exfoliating toners".

1.5 What toner pads are

A toner pad is a toner that comes already soaked into pads, in a jar. Instead of pouring toner onto cotton wool, you lift out a wet pad with tweezers.

Why people like them:

- Easy: no bottle, no cotton.
- Precise and less dripping: "you can apply them to the skin and avoid dripping the product into your eyes."
- More even: "you get a more even application with a pad versus just pouring the toner into your hands."

- Two jobs in one: wipe and mask. A beauty Short ("Are Toner Pads a waste of money?", 82,000 views): "do you need to use them as face masks because that's the real value in them for me".

Why some people don't:

- Waste and the environment. Dermatologist Short "DOWN WITH TONER PADS!!!" (3,600,000 views): "I don't think anybody should use them because they're bad for the environment. Microfibers... Facial sprays are a much better option" (L9Va9IG6zG8; a near-identical Short, 5F4RSrN46DM, "BETTER THAN TONER PADS!!!", 1,000,000 views).
- Cost. Pads cost more per use than a bottle of the same liquid. Each pad is used once.
- Too wet. A commenter: "They are way over saturated and the amount of toner in them could work for many applications per pad" (@Cinnam0r011Archiv3, EmpVHOGyYLw).
- They dry out at the bottom of the jar.

The kinds of pad (the types inside the category):

Type	What the pad is like	What's in the liquid	Main job	Examples
Exfoliating ("peel") pads	Textured cotton, often with an embossed side	Acids (AHA/BHA/PHA)	Smooth rough skin, unclog pores	Medicube Zero Pore Pad, Rejuran Pore Tightening pad, Biodance's exfoliating side
Hydrating essence pads	Soft, thin cotton or viscose	Humectants, soothers	Add water, calm	Torriden Dive-In, Round Lab Birch Juice, SKIN1004 Centella
Gel / jelly pads	Thin fabric coated in a jelly-like gel; sits flat like a mini sheet mask	Gel essence	Mask for 5–10 min, then wipe	Luxe, Anua PDRN Glow Pad, Medicube PDRN Pink Collagen Gel
Dual-sided pads	Two different sides	Same liquid	One side to mask or wipe, other side to wipe or exfoliate	Luxe/Anua, Biodance, COSRX
PDRN pads	Any of the above	Contain "Sodium DNA" from salmon, or plant DNA	Marketed for glow, "repair"	Luxe, Anua, Medicube, VT, Mediheal, Isntree, Skinfood
Retinol / "treatment" pads	Usually exfoliating style	Retinol, acids	Anti-ageing, acne	Dear Doer PDRN Retinol pad
DIY pads	Empty pads + a bottle you pour in	Your choice	Fresh pads that don't dry out	Medicube PDRN Pink Collagen Jelly Pad (DIY)

Three ways people use pads:

1. Wipe: sweep across the face like a toner.
2. Mask ("pad mask"): lay pads on the cheeks or forehead for 5–10 minutes. Mediheal: "leave it on like a mini mask for 5–10 minutes"; Luxe/Anua: 5 minutes.
3. "Korean cream mask": lay soaked pads on, then spread a gel or milk cream over them, then peel off (Short ThJz4gHQOhk, 73,000 views).

1.6 Korean skincare and "glass skin"

- K-beauty is short for Korean beauty: skincare and makeup from South Korea. It is known for gentle, layered routines, lots of hydration, sunscreen, sheet masks and new "hero" ingredients (snail mucin, the slime of snails, used as a moisturiser; centella, a soothing herb also called "cica" or tiger grass; and now PDRN).
- The "10-step routine". Charlotte Cho, who founded the shop Soko Glam in 2012, says she learned the many steps Koreans use and "coined" the phrase "10-step skincare routine" for Americans; it caught on around 2014. Steps typically: oil cleanser, water cleanser, exfoliant, toner, essence, serum/ampoule, sheet mask, eye cream, moisturiser, sunscreen. Even Soko Glam now says it's "not about using more products".
- "Glass skin" means skin so smooth, clear and dewy that it shines like glass. The Korean phrase is yuri pibu (유리 피부). The English term went viral in 2017 after a tweet by the make-up artist Ellie Choi (Cosmetics Business, 21 Nov 2017).
- What glass skin actually is, per doctors:
  - A Korean doctor (Seoul Beauty, 343,348 views): "glow isn't really one thing, it's the three. A smooth surface, good hydration both inside and on top, and honestly, what's happening under the hood... Your sleep, your stress". His comparison: two walls with the same paint; "The smooth one kind of shines... the rough one just looks flat".
  - Doctorly ("The ULTIMATE Routine to Achieve Glass or Dewy Skin", 356,359 views): hydration "plumps the skin, it makes it look just shiny, full"; "It's not a permanent effect, but it's an immediate effect"; and "perfect skin does not exist".
- Where the pad fits: a hydrating gel pad delivers the "water on top" part of glass skin right away. It doesn't smooth the surface the way an exfoliant does, and the glow fades over hours.

1.7 What PDRN is

The name. PDRN stands for polydeoxyribonucleotide. In plain words: short pieces of DNA, the same stuff genes are made of.

Where it comes from. Mostly salmon (or trout) sperm or testes, purified. That's where the nickname "salmon sperm facial" comes from.

What it's called on a label. Sodium DNA (sometimes Hydrolyzed DNA).

How it's supposed to work (lab theory). PDRN switches on a "receptor" (a lock on the surface of cells) called adenosine A2A. In cells in a dish, wounds and animals, that calms inflammation and nudges fibroblasts (the collagen-making cells) to work to produce collagen"*]. Kitchen picture: like a doorbell on a factory; ring it and the workers start up. The catch: the doorbell is deep inside the house (the dermis), and a pad leaves the PDRN on the doorstep.

Medical use (real and approved). Korea's drug regulator (MFDS) approved PDRN as an injected medicine for tissue repair and wound healing; Italy's Placentex has been sold since the early 1990s. Dr Dray: "Probably one of the most intriguing, compelling uses of PDRN is not for anti-aging. It's for healing stubborn diabetic foot ulcers"; in a trial it was injected around the wounds and they healed faster than with placebo (a dummy treatment with nothing active in it, given to a comparison group).

PN vs PDRN. PN (polynucleotide) = longer, heavier DNA chains; PDRN = shorter ones. Rejuran, the famous "salmon sperm" injection, is a PN product classed in Korea as a medical device. The terms are used loosely: "no standardized criteria have been established to delineate molecular weight thresholds".

Injections (the "salmon sperm facial", Rejuran):

- What happens: numbing cream, then either an injector "gun" or hundreds of tiny injections into the face. Usually 2–3 sessions, then top-ups about every 6 months. Kim Kardashian made it famous.
- The evidence: small studies. A 5-patient study; a 44-patient trial on thyroid-surgery scars (better scars); and a 27-patient split-face trial (2022; a split-face trial treats one half of each person's face with one product and the other half with the comparison) of polynucleotide against a hyaluronic-acid injection, where the polynucleotide side improved pores and roughness more, "however these differences were not statistically significant" (in plain words: the gap was small enough that it could have been luck). Dermatology Times (11 Jul 2026) describes a 27-person split-face trial in which Rejuran, compared with an HA filler (an injection of hyaluronic-acid gel that fills out lines and hollows), scored higher on a global aesthetic scale (a doctor's overall score of how good the skin looks) at 16 weeks. These may be the same trial reported on different measures.
- Dr Dray's verdict on injections for ageing: "purely anecdotal at this point. No good clinical trials" (anecdotal = based on people's stories, not on proper tests). A commenter: "I had PDRN injected under my eyes and it did absolutely nothing beyond the temporary swelling" (@Criticalbeauty411, 161 likes).
- Safety of injections: "PDRN injections have not been clinically associated with serious adverse effects". Bruising, swelling and infection risk come from the needle.

Creams, serums and pads (what Luxe is):

- Size problem. "PDRN fragments range from 50 to 1,500 kilodaltons"; "molecules larger than approximately 500 Daltons are unlikely to penetrate intact human skin"; "PDRN applied topically without an active delivery mechanism is unlikely to reach the fibroblasts in the viable dermis" (Dermatology Times, Marie Bosslett, 11 Jul 2026). Kitchen picture: the skin's "door" lets through things the size of a grain of sugar; PDRN pieces are 100 to 3,000 times heavier, like trying to push a football through a letterbox.
- Human evidence for creams: only "a single small study using a specific low-MW plant-derived PDRN that is not representative of the majority of products on the market" (Dermatology Times).

- Dr Dray ("PDRN Skincare: The Science Behind the Hype", 144,164 views): "applying salmon derived PDRN to human skin for anti-aging benefit. Nothing there." and "I'm highly, highly, highly doubtful that these skincare products with PDRN do anything above and beyond moisturize the skin." She still liked a PDRN cream "as a really nice moisturizer" because of its niacinamide, ceramides and humectants.
- The other side: One Eye Beauty (a UK-based Korean skincare coach in her 40s, "Best & Worst PDRN Skincare 2025 – What Actually Works for Mature Skin?", 39,117 views) argues that even if salmon PDRN "just stays on our epidermis... It will still help with skin hydration and barrier support. So, it's not completely useless". This is her opinion; no study is cited.

How much PDRN is in pads? Understanding "ppm"

- ppm = parts per million. 100 ppm = 0.01%. Kitchen picture: 100 ppm is about 1 gram (a quarter teaspoon of sugar) stirred into a 10-litre bucket.

Product	PDRN listed
Skinfood Carrot PDRN Pad	10 ppb (parts per billion) = 0.000001%
Medicube PDRN Pink Collagen Gel Toner Pad	1 ppm = 0.0001%
Anua PDRN 100 Glow Pad = the Luxe formula	100 ppm = 0.01%
Isntree Gim PDRN Glow Pad (seaweed)	100 ppm
Biodance Caviar PDRN Dual Gel Pad	1,000 ppm = 0.1%
"Clinical" level, per One Eye Beauty (her statement, not verified)	0.1–0.2% = 1,000–2,000 ppm

- "99% purity PDRN" (on the Luxe page) describes the raw material, not how much is in the pad. One Eye Beauty on Medicube's cleanser: "it says it has 99% high purity salmon PDRN... looking at the ingredients list, this is far from the truth".

Plant "PDRN". DNA extracted from ginseng (VT), carrot, seaweed, rose, matcha and others, also labelled "Sodium DNA". Dr Dray: "there's no actual clinical data on it". Luxe uses salmon.

1.9 Glossary: every word you'll hear

Word	Plain meaning
AHA	Alpha hydroxy acid (glycolic, lactic). Exfoliating acids that dissolve the "glue" between dead cells. Not in this pad
BHA	Beta hydroxy acid (salicylic). Oil-loving exfoliant for pores and acne. Not in this pad
PHA	Poly hydroxy acid (gluconolactone, lactobionic, maltobionic). The gentlest exfoliating acids. Not in this pad (the Luxe page says it is; the ingredient list says no)

Word	Plain meaning
Active / active ingredient	An ingredient that does a job beyond moisturising (retinol, acids, vitamin C, niacinamide)
Adenosine	A natural molecule; a Korean-approved anti-wrinkle cosmetic ingredient. In this pad
Ampoule	A concentrated serum, usually in a small bottle
Anecdotal	Based on people's stories, not on proper tests
Antioxidant	An ingredient that helps protect skin from damage by sunlight and air pollution (like lemon juice stops a cut apple going brown)
Barrier	The top layer's "brick wall" that keeps water in and irritants out
Centella / cica	Centella asiatica, a soothing herb (also called tiger grass). "Cica" is its nickname. Not in this pad
Ceramides	The main fats in the barrier's "mortar"
Collagen	The protein that gives skin strength, like mattress springs. Lost with age
Crepey skin	Thin, finely crinkled skin, like crepe paper. Common on the neck, chest, eyelids and arms after 50
Dehydrated	Short of water (feels tight, looks dull)
Dermatologist	A skin doctor
Dermis	The living middle layer with collagen and elastin
Dewy	Fresh, slightly shiny, "just-misted" look
Dual-sided pad	A pad with two different faces (here: a gel side and a plain side)
Eczema	A long-lasting skin condition with itchy, dry, sore patches
Elastin	The stretchy protein that lets skin snap back
Emollient	Softening, smoothing ingredient (oils, butters)
Emulsifier / solubiliser	A helper ingredient that lets oil and water mix
Epidermis	The thin top layer
Essence	A watery-to-slightly-thick hydrating liquid, between toner and serum
Exfoliate	Remove dead cells, with acids (chemical) or rubbing (physical)
Fibroblast	The cell in the dermis that makes collagen
Film-former	An ingredient that leaves a thin, invisible layer on the skin
Fragrance-free	No added perfume or essential oils. True of this pad (none listed)
Glass skin	Very smooth, clear, shiny skin (Korean "yuri pibu")
Global aesthetic scale	A doctor's overall score of how good the skin looks, used in trials
Glow	Healthy light-reflecting look; mostly from smoothness plus water

Word	Plain meaning
HA filler	An injection of hyaluronic-acid gel that fills out lines and hollows
Humectant	Water-grabbing ingredient (glycerin, hyaluronic acid). Most of this pad
Hyaluronic acid (HA)	A sugar chain that holds water. Your skin makes it; products add it to the surface
Hyperpigmentation / dark spots	Patches darker than the rest of the skin: sun spots, age spots, marks left by spots
INCI	The official ingredient list on the pack, in a standard naming system
K-beauty	Korean beauty products
kDa / Da (dalton)	Units of molecule size. Skin lets through roughly 500 Da; PDRN is 50,000–1,500,000 Da
Laser	A clinic treatment: a beam of light that heats the skin so it repairs itself
Mask / sheet mask	A fabric soaked in essence, left on 10–20 minutes. The gel side of this pad is a mini version
Mature skin	Industry phrase for skin after about 40–50
Menopause	When periods stop for 12 months; estrogen falls and skin changes (section 5)
Micellar water	A water-like cleanser with tiny oil-grabbing particles; you wipe it on with cotton and don't rinse
Microneedling	A clinic treatment: tiny needles make small holes so the skin repairs itself
Niacinamide	Vitamin B3. One of the best-studied cosmetic ingredients. 4th in this pad's list
Occlusive	Sealing ingredient (petrolatum, shea butter). Not in this pad
Panthenol	Vitamin B5, a soothing moisturiser. Not in this pad
Patch test	Trying a new product on a small area for a few days before using it all over
PDRN	Polydeoxyribonucleotide: DNA fragments, usually from salmon. "Sodium DNA" on labels
Peel (chemical peel)	A strong acid put on in a clinic (or at home, milder) that makes the top layer flake off
Peptides	Short chains of amino acids (protein building blocks). Some send "signals" to skin in lab tests
Perimenopause	The years of change before periods stop, when hormones go up and down
pH	How acidic or alkaline something is. Skin is slightly acidic (about 5.5)
Placebo	A dummy treatment with nothing active in it, given to a comparison group in a trial
PN	Polynucleotide: longer DNA chains, used in injections like Rejuran
Polymer	A long, chain-like molecule

Word	Plain meaning
ppm / ppb	Parts per million / per billion. 100 ppm = 0.01%
Preservative booster	An ingredient that helps the preservatives keep germs out, so less of them is needed
Pruritus	The medical word for itching
Purging	A short spell of breakouts caused by acids or retinoids speeding up turnover. Can't happen with this pad (no acids or retinoids)
Randomised trial	A test where people are put into groups by chance (like a coin toss), so the comparison is fair
Rejuran	Korean brand of salmon PN injections (and now skincare, including pads)
Retinoid / retinol / tretinoin	Vitamin A family. The best-proven anti-ageing ingredient; can sting and peel
Rosacea	A long-lasting skin condition with redness and flushing, often on the cheeks and nose
Salmon sperm facial	Nickname for PDRN/PN injections
Sebum	The skin's own oil
Serum	Concentrated treatment liquid
Skin booster	An injection meant to improve skin quality rather than add volume
Snail mucin	Snail slime, filtered and sold as a moisturiser. Not in this pad
Sodium DNA	The label name for PDRN
Solvent	A liquid that other things dissolve in, the way sugar dissolves in tea
SPF / sunscreen	Sun protection factor; blocks UV rays
Split-face trial	A test where each person uses one product on one half of the face and the comparison on the other half
Statistically significant	The difference is big enough that it is unlikely to be luck. "Not statistically significant" means it could have been luck
Stratum corneum	The dead-cell "brick wall" on top
TEWL	Transepidermal water loss: water evaporating out through the skin
Texture	How skin feels and looks up close: smooth or rough, bumpy, flaky
Toner	Watery after-cleanse liquid
Toner pad	Pre-soaked toner pads in a jar
Vegan PDRN	DNA taken from plants instead of fish
Wipe / swipe	Sweeping a pad across the face
Xerosis	The medical word for dry skin

2.2 What it looks, feels and smells like

- The jar: a round pink frosted tub, with a pink, clear, wobbly gel essence that drips off the pads like jelly.
- The pad: a 7 cm round (about the size of the bottom of a coffee mug). Two sides:
  - "Soft & Hydrating Gel Side: Peptide-Infused Fabric, Hydration Delivery with Mask Pack Effect"
  - "Gentle Plain Side: Low-irritation Vegan Fabric, Lock-in Moisture after wiping"

- Which side is which is confusing. Anua (same pad) describes it the other way round: "The peptide-infused fabric side works as a gentle pore minimizer... while the smooth gel side delivers soothing hydration" (anua.us product JSON). Its description also says the pads "gently exfoliate dead skin cells", which can only mean the light rub of the textured fabric, since there's no acid. A Cult Beauty reviewer of the Anua pad found the two-sided pad confusing. Practical tip: the side that feels slippery and jelly-like is the mask side; the side that feels like fabric is the wiping side.
- Feel on the skin: no reviews of the Luxe pads were found anywhere. For the identical Anua pad, buyers say: "These pads are super saturated with quality skin care ingredients that cool the skin" (Jennifer S., age 51–55, dry and sensitive skin, 5 stars, anua.com via Okendo, 9 Jun 2026; marked "incentivized" by the review system, meaning she got something for reviewing); "leaves the skin nice and hydrated"; "the packaging takes up a lot of space" (Cult Beauty, earlier report 6.2); and "It hydrates my skin, calms redness and it's pefect under makeup" (Lucia, Cult Beauty, 2026-04-14, 5 stars; review A-012). Gel pads in general can feel sticky: "Just wish it wasn't so sticky!!" (@AhnaHendrix, on a different pad, EmpVHOGyYLw).
- Smell: no fragrance is listed. For the identical Anua pad, buyers say "Pads are very saturated, there’s next to no smell" (Vitacost, 2026-05-22, 4 stars, review A-041) and "A few people mention a light smell from the pad but I did not notice any scent" (Ulta, most-helpful positive review, review A-059). Another Vitacost buyer adds that it "does have a slight bitter taste if it accidentally gets on your lips" (2026-06-13, 5 stars, review A-036). So: almost no smell. No review of the Luxe jar itself was found.

2.3 Every ingredient, one by one

First, how to read an ingredient list. In the US, ingredients "must be listed in descending order of predominance", but "Ingredients present at a concentration not exceeding 1% may be listed in any order". So the first few ingredients are most of the product, and everything after roughly the first 6–10 is usually under 1%. The check found that Anua's own website lists the same 45 ingredients in a slightly different order from its packaging image, which shows how loose the order is below 1%.

The list on the Luxe image (45 ingredients, identical to Anua's):

> Aqua (Water), Butylene Glycol, Glycereth-26, Niacinamide, Glycerin, 1,2-Hexanediol, Diethoxyethyl Succinate, Hydroxyethyl Urea, Hydroxyacetophenone, Glycereth-25 PCA Isostearate, Glycosyl Trehalose, Hydrogenated Starch Hydrolysate, Melia Azadirachta Leaf Extract, Ethylhexylglycerin, Xanthan Gum, Propanediol, Adenosine, Melia Azadirachta Flower Extract, Coccinia Indica Fruit Extract, Disodium EDTA, Sodium DNA, Hydrolyzed Collagen, Aloe Barbadensis Flower Extract, Solanum Melongena (Eggplant) Fruit Extract, Coptis Japonica Root Extract, Ocimum Sanctum Leaf Extract, Zea Mays (Corn) Kernel Extract, Corallina Officinalis Extract, Curcuma Longa (Turmeric) Root Extract, Sodium Hyaluronate, Hyaluronic Acid, Hydrolyzed Hyaluronic Acid, Terminalia Ferdinandiana Fruit Extract, Fructan, Glucose, Lecithin, Acetyl Glutamine, Collagen Extract, Bacillus/Soybean Ferment Extract, Caprylyl Glycol, Folic Acid, Hexapeptide-11, Oligopeptide-1, Oligopeptide-2, Oligopeptide-3

The only amounts published anywhere (by Anua, for the same formula): sodium DNA 100 ppm, sodium hyaluronate 5.002 ppm, hyaluronic acid 5 ppm, hydrolyzed hyaluronic acid 5 ppm. Every other amount is not found.

Below, the 45 are grouped by job. The number is the position in the list.

Group A. The base: water and the main water-grabbers (most of the jar)

#	Ingredient	What it is, plainly	What it does here
1	Aqua (Water)	Purified water	The bulk of the gel. Everything else is dissolved in it
2	Butylene Glycol	A light, clear liquid related to glycerin, but less sticky	Humectant (holds water) and solvent (a liquid that other things dissolve in, so it helps plant extracts dissolve). Gives "slip"
3	Glycereth-26	Glycerin chemically joined to a short chain of a common polymer (a polymer is a long, chain-like molecule; here it is polyethylene glycol, a common cosmetic ingredient; the full name is "a polyethylene glycol ether of glycerin")	A humectant and moisturiser that feels less tacky than plain glycerin
5	Glycerin	The classic moisturiser, made from plant oils; also in soap and sweets	One of the most proven humectants. Pulls water into the top layer
15	Xanthan Gum	A thickener made by fermenting sugar; also used in salad dressing and gluten-free baking	Turns the liquid into the wobbly gel you see
16	Propanediol	A light liquid, often made from corn sugar	Humectant and solvent

In plain words: the first five ingredients (water, three water-grabbers and niacinamide) are almost certainly most of the jar. This is a water-and-glycerin gel.

Group B. The "doing" ingredients, the ones on the marketing

#	Ingredient	What it is	What it does, and how strong the evidence is
4	Niacinamide	Vitamin B3	The most important real active in the pad. In a 12-week split-face trial on 50 women aged 40–60, a moisturiser with 5% niacinamide improved fine lines and wrinkles, dark spots, texture, red blotchiness and yellowing compared with the same moisturiser without it (Bissett 2004, Int J Cosmet Sci). In 18 people with dark spots, 5% niacinamide "significantly decreased hyperpigmentation and increased skin lightness" in 4 weeks (Hakozaki 2002, Br J Dermatol). It also helps skin make its own ceramides (Tanno 2000, Br J Dermatol, via search). Amount in the pad: not stated. Being 4th, above glycerin, suggests a few percent. Dr Dray calls it "an evidence-based ingredient for dark spots, redness, the moisture barrier, anti-aging". Can briefly flush or sting very reactive skin
17	Adenosine	A natural molecule found in every cell	Korea lists it as a "functional cosmetic" anti-wrinkle ingredient, usually at 0.04%. One randomised trial (people were put into groups by chance, like a coin toss, so the test is fair): 126 women aged 45–65, adenosine cream twice a day, smoother crow's-feet skin at 3 and 8 weeks (Abella 2006, L'Oréal). Amount in the pad: not stated
21	Sodium DNA (PDRN)	DNA fragments from salmon	The headline ingredient. 100 ppm (0.01%) in the identical Anua formula. On the skin surface it works as a light moisturiser; the "repair" story is not shown for creams or pads (section 1.7). Fish source: allergy warning
30	Sodium Hyaluronate	The salt form of hyaluronic acid (HA), a water-holding sugar chain	Humectant, film on the surface. 5 ppm. For scale: a 60-day trial of 0.1% HA creams (76 women aged 30–60; the creams were used around the eyes, which the paper calls "periocular") improved hydration and elasticity, and the smaller-sized HA reduced wrinkle depth (Pavicic 2011, J Drugs Dermatol). The pad has about 200 times less of each form (5 ppm = 0.0005%)
31	Hyaluronic Acid	The acid form of HA	Same as above, 5 ppm
32	Hydrolyzed Hyaluronic Acid	HA chopped into smaller pieces	Smaller pieces may get further into the top layer. 5 ppm
22	Hydrolyzed Collagen	Collagen protein broken into small pieces; source not stated (could be fish, pig or cow)	A humectant and film-former (it leaves a thin, invisible layer on the skin). It does not become your collagen. Doctorly on a collagen cream: "I think they use collagen cuz it's a buzzword. It's not going to penetrate your skin. It could be a good moisturizer". A viewer: "collagen cannot be absorbed through the skin, so the collagen is not what's soothing your skin" (@jbeandip, 103 likes)

#	Ingredient	What it is	What it does, and how strong the evidence is
38	Collagen Extract	Another collagen ingredient; source not stated	As above. The Luxe image calls it "Patented 7D vita collagen"
42	Hexapeptide-11	A peptide (6 amino acids), originally from fermented yeast	Anua's claim: "Hexapeptide-11 provides skin elasticity". Human evidence at this level: not found. Near the end of the list, so a tiny amount
43	Oligopeptide-1	On Korean labels, the name for a lab-made copy of EGF (epidermal growth factor), a 53-amino-acid human protein; officially "sh-Oligopeptide-1"	Anua's claim: "provides collagen synthesis". Evidence is limited and small. Tiny amount
44	Oligopeptide-2	A lab-made peptide; on Korean labels often a copy of the growth factor IGF-1	Anua's claim: "provides skin anti-aging". Tiny amount
45	Oligopeptide-3	A lab-made peptide; exact identity on this label not found	Anua's claim: "provides moisturizing effect". Tiny amount

Group C. Extra moisture-holders and texture helpers

#	Ingredient	What it is	What it does here
7	Diethoxyethyl Succinate	A light, water-friendly liquid	Solvent and skin-feel helper, used to make watery products feel silky and to carry other ingredients into the top layer
8	Hydroxyethyl Urea	A relative of urea, the moisturiser in many foot creams, but gentler	Humectant and skin conditioner; judged safe by the US Cosmetic Ingredient Review panel "when formulated to be non-irritating"
10	Glycereth-25 PCA Isostearate	A glycerin-based molecule joined to a fatty acid	Emulsifier/solubiliser (a helper that lets oil and water mix): helps tiny amounts of oily ingredients dissolve in the water gel, and softens
11	Glycosyl Trehalose	A sugar (trehalose, found in mushrooms and yeast) with extra sugar attached	EU ingredient database (CosIng) lists "Emulsion Stabilising, Film Forming"
12	Hydrogenated Starch Hydrolysate	A sugar-alcohol syrup made from starch	Humectant

#	Ingredient	What it is	What it does here
34	Fructan	A chain of fruit sugars (like inulin)	Humectant, light film
35	Glucose	Ordinary sugar	Humectant
37	Acetyl Glutamine	A form of the amino acid glutamine	Skin-conditioning, moisturising

Group D. Plant, sea and ferment extracts (all in small amounts)

Eight of these (neem leaf and flower, ivy gourd, aloe flower, eggplant, holy basil, coral weed, turmeric) look like a ready-made blend of mostly Indian (Ayurvedic) plants plus a seaweed that suppliers sell as one package; such blends are common in Korean formulas. Each is likely well under 1%.

"Antioxidant" comes up a lot below. An antioxidant is an ingredient that helps protect the skin from damage by sunlight and air pollution, a bit like the way lemon juice stops a cut apple going brown. At these tiny amounts, the protection is mostly a lab claim.

#	Ingredient	What it is	What it's there for
13	Melia Azadirachta Leaf Extract	Neem leaf, an Indian tree used in traditional medicine. (dodoskin's English list mistranslates it as "indigo plant")	Antioxidant and soothing claims; mostly lab data
18	Melia Azadirachta Flower Extract	Neem flower	As above
19	Coccinia Indica Fruit Extract	Ivy gourd, a small Indian vegetable	Antioxidant claims
23	Aloe Barbadensis Flower Extract	Aloe vera flower (not the gel from the leaf)	Soothing claims
24	Solanum Melongena (Eggplant) Fruit Extract	Aubergine	Antioxidant claims
25	Coptis Japonica Root Extract	Goldthread root, a Japanese/Chinese herb rich in berberine	Antibacterial and anti-inflammatory in lab tests
26	Ocimum Sanctum Leaf Extract	Holy basil (tulsi)	Antioxidant, soothing claims
27	Zea Mays (Corn) Kernel Extract	Corn	Moisturising, skin-conditioning. Corn allergy note
28	Corallina Officinalis Extract	A red seaweed ("coral weed"); dodoskin's "coral lily" is a mistranslation	Mineral-rich, skin-conditioning

#	Ingredient	What it is	What it's there for
29	Curcuma Longa (Turmeric) Root Extract	Turmeric	Antioxidant claims. At this level it won't stain
33	Terminalia Ferdinandiana Fruit Extract	Kakadu plum, an Australian fruit naturally rich in vitamin C	Antioxidant. It is not a "vitamin C derivative" as the Luxe page claims; it's a fruit extract near the bottom of the list
39	Bacillus/Soybean Ferment Extract	Soybeans fermented with Bacillus bacteria (the natto process); trade names include Cellplus+ and Actigym	Skin conditioning and antioxidant. Soy allergy note
36	Lecithin	A fatty substance usually from soy, sunflower or egg; source not stated	Emulsifier; can form tiny bubbles that carry ingredients. Possible soy source
41	Folic Acid	Vitamin B9	Antioxidant claims; tiny amount

Group E. The "keep it fresh and stable" team

A water gel full of sugars is a feast for germs. These stop that.

#	Ingredient	What it is	What it does
6	1,2-Hexanediol	A light glycol	Humectant that also helps preserve; very common in Korean products
9	Hydroxyacetophenone	A small aromatic molecule	Antioxidant; widely used as a preservative booster (it helps the preservatives keep germs out, so less of them is needed) and soothing agent
14	Ethylhexylglycerin	A glycerin relative	Preservative booster and skin conditioner; a rare cause of contact allergy
20	Disodium EDTA	A "chelator"	Grabs stray metal traces (from water or plant extracts) so the formula doesn't go off or change colour. Kitchen picture: like a water softener
40	Caprylyl Glycol	A glycol	Humectant and preservative booster

What's NOT in it

Not in it	Why that matters
Exfoliating acids (AHA, BHA, PHA, including the "maltobionic acid" the page claims)	Gentle, but it won't resurface or unclog pores. No "purging"
Retinol or any retinoid	No peeling; but no proven collagen-building either
Vitamin C or a vitamin C derivative (despite the page claim)	No brightening from vitamin C

Not in it	Why that matters
Fragrance or essential oils	Kinder to sensitive skin
Drying alcohol (ethanol, "alcohol denat.")	Not drying
Oils, butters, ceramides	It doesn't seal moisture in. Use a moisturiser after
Centella (a soothing herb, also called "cica" or tiger grass)	Not a "cica" pad

What the 45 ingredients add up to

- About 80–90% of what you put on your face is water and water-grabbers (estimate from list order; amounts not published).
- One real workhorse: niacinamide, at an unknown but probably meaningful level.
- One modest extra: adenosine (unknown level).
- The headline ingredients are tiny: PDRN 0.01%, each hyaluronic acid 0.0005%, peptides and collagen near the end.
- A rough per-pad guess: 200 g ÷ 140 pads ≈ 1.4 g per pad, fabric included. At 100 ppm, that is at most about 0.14 mg of PDRN per pad.

Allergy and sensitivity flags

Ingredient	Allergy
Sodium DNA (salmon)	Fish
Hydrolyzed collagen, collagen extract (source not stated)	Possibly fish, or pork/beef
Bacillus/soybean ferment; lecithin (source not stated)	Soy
Corn kernel extract; propanediol (often corn-derived)	Corn (rare)
Neem, turmeric, holy basil, coptis, aloe	Plant sensitivities (rare)
Ethylhexylglycerin	Rare contact allergy
Niacinamide	Can cause brief flushing or tingling on reactive skin

2.4 The claims it makes, and what the evidence says

All quotes from luxeresearchlab.com/products/luxe-pads, pulled 2026-10-31. Verdicts are my reading unless a source is named.

Claim	Honest verdict
"Better-Looking Skin in 30 Days or You Don't Pay"	A money-back offer, not evidence

Claim	Honest verdict
"Most women feel a difference after the very first use — skin feels smoother, cleaner, and more hydrated immediately"	Believable. Hydration shows within minutes
"By week 2, texture starts to refine and a subtle glow appears"	Plausible with daily hydration
"By week 4–8, dark spots fade, fine lines soften, and firmness improves visibly"	Partly. Niacinamide can soften the look of spots and fine lines over 4–12 weeks in studies at 5% (amount here unknown). "Firmness improves" is not supported
"PDRN (99% purity) — the regenerative ingredient Korean dermatologists use in-clinic"	Misleading. Clinics inject it; the pad holds about 0.01%; "99%" is the raw material's purity
"PDRN targets the cellular repair your skin needs now" / "PDRN rebuilds underneath"	Not supported for creams or pads (Dermatology Times; Dr Dray)
"No retinol. No harsh acids. No synthetic fragrances. No drying alcohols."	True per the ingredient list
"The exfoliation comes from Maltobionic Acid — a PHA"	False: no PHA in the list
"Vitamin C derivative — boosts radiance"	False: none in the list; only kakadu plum extract
"Hyaluronic Acid — deep, lasting hydration at multiple skin layers"	Overstated: three forms at 5 ppm each, on the surface
"A peptide complex — firms skin and softens lines"	Unproven at these levels
"Niacinamide — fades dark spots and evens tone"	Reasonable, if slow (weeks to months)
"One Pad Replaces Your Whole Routine. Toner. Exfoliator. Serum. Treatment mask."	No. It replaces a toner and a sheet mask. You still need moisturiser and, by day, sunscreen
"Each pad works on your face, neck, chest, hands, elbows, knees, and underarms"	Harmless; it's a hydrating gel
"Hypoallergenic and dermatologist-tested"	No test published. The FDA says "hypoallergenic" has no legal meaning (from
"125.39% Improvement in Skin Hydration Immediately After Use (Temporary Effect)" and "100% agreed..."	From a test of the identical Anua pad on 21 women aged 20–59 (Dec 2024), measured right after first use. A short-lived effect. Not to be quoted on camera (section 11)

3. How to use it, step by step

3.1 Before your first use: a patch test

1. Take one pad. Wipe a small patch on the side of the jaw or behind the ear.

2. Leave it. Do this once a day for 2–3 days.
3. If you get redness, itching, bumps or burning, don't use it.
4. If you have a fish or soy allergy, don't patch-test: ask your doctor or allergist first (section 11).

3.2 The everyday steps (the brand's "mask then wipe" method)

The brand's own steps are quoted in bold; the rest is plain-English detail.

Step	What to do	Why
1	Wash your hands.	You'll be touching the face and the jar
2	Wash your face with a gentle cleanser and pat it almost dry with a clean towel.	"After cleansing". Slightly damp skin takes up water better (Seoul Beauty doctor: "put your hydrating stuff on while your skin's still slightly damp")
3	Open the jar and lift out one pad with the tweezers or a clean fingertip. Press it against the side of the jar to let extra gel drip back.	Keeps the jar clean; stops dripping
4	Close the lid at once.	Pads dry out if the lid is left open (Medicube: "Keep the lid closed and sealed to prevent the pad from drying out")
5	Find the slippery gel side. Lay it flat on one cheek, or tear/fold it to cover both cheeks or the forehead.	"apply the 'Peptide Gel Side' to your skin"
6	Leave it 5 minutes. Sit, brush your teeth, or dry your hair.	"Leave it on for 5 minutes like a mini sheet mask"; "Use as a quick morning mask while drying your hair!"
7	Peel it off, turn it over, and gently sweep the fabric side across the whole face, from the centre outwards. Avoid the eyes and lips.	"Use the 'Plain Side' to wipe along your skin texture". Anua says "excluding the area around your eyes and mouth"
8	Pat in what's left with your fingertips. Squeeze the pad onto your neck or the backs of your hands rather than waste it.	"Lightly pat in the remaining essence"
9	Wait about a minute until it's no longer wet.	Moisturiser spreads better on tacky, not wet, skin
10	Put on your moisturiser. In the morning, finish with sunscreen.	Seals the water in; protects from the sun (section 4)

How often: the brand says "Can be used every day, both AM & PM". For dry, sensitive or older skin, once a day (night, or morning before makeup) is plenty to start.

3.3 The two other ways

- Wipe only (fast, about 30 seconds): skip step 6. Sweep the face with one side, then pat. Less hydration, quicker.

- Mask only (calming): lay the pad on dry or red patches for 5–10 minutes, then pat in; don't wipe.

3.4 Common beginner mistakes

#	Mistake	Why it's a problem	Do this instead
1	Scrubbing with the pad	Thin mature skin tears and reddens easily. A beauty Short: "rubbing too roughly can irritate your skin and cause even more redness"	Glide or press; never scrub
2	Skipping moisturiser because "one pad replaces your routine"	Humectants without a seal let water evaporate; skin can end up tighter (One Eye Beauty described a humectant serum that "made it feel even more dry")	Always follow with a moisturiser on dry skin
3	Skipping sunscreen and expecting spots to fade	Sun keeps making spots. Dr Dray: sunscreen "will not only help in preventing more sunspots... but it also will help in fading existing" ones	Sunscreen every morning
4	Leaving the lid open	Pads dry out; the bottom of the jar goes dry	Close at once; store upside down for a while if the top pads dry (common tip)
5	Using fingers dipped straight in the jar	Germs go in	Use the tweezers or wash hands
6	Reusing a pad the next day	Bacteria grow on wet fabric	One pad, one use
7	Leaving it on for 20–30 minutes "for more effect"	The gel dries and can start pulling water out of the skin as it does (as sheet masks can)	5–10 minutes max
8	Wiping over the eyes and lips	Stings and wastes product	Go around them
9	Stacking it with acid pads, scrubs and retinol on the same night	Too much at once irritates mature skin	This pad is gentle, but keep other strong steps on separate nights at first
10	Expecting a facelift	Skincare "can only do so much" (Dr Idriss)	Expect plumper, dewier, calmer skin
11	Judging it after one week for spots	Niacinamide studies ran 4–12 weeks	Take a photo on day 1 and at week 8 in the same light
12	Calling a breakout "purging"	Purging only happens with acids or retinoids; this pad has neither	If you break out, stop and patch test
13	Using it if you're allergic to fish	Salmon DNA, collagen of unknown source	Ask a doctor first

3.5 How long before you see anything

When	What to expect	Why
Minutes	Softer, plumper, dewier, smoother makeup	Water in the top layer; the gel film. Anua's test measured a big hydration jump right after use
Hours	The glow fades by evening	Hydration is temporary. Doctorly: "It's not a permanent effect, but it's an immediate effect"
2–4 weeks of daily use	Skin may feel less tight and rough; makeup flakes less	Consistent hydration and a better-supported barrier (niacinamide helps skin make ceramides)
4–12 weeks	Possibly slightly more even tone, softer-looking fine lines	Niacinamide trials: 4 weeks for spots (Hakozaki), 12 weeks for lines and spots (Bissett). Unknown niacinamide level here
Never	Lifted jowls, firmer neck, less sagging, collagen rebuilt	Those come from bone, fat and deep collagen; pads don't reach them

4. Where it fits in a routine

4.1 The order, morning and night

Step	Morning	Night
1	Rinse with water or a gentle cleanser	Remove makeup (micellar water, a water-like cleanser you wipe on with cotton and don't rinse off; or a cleansing oil or balm), then a gentle cleanser
2	Luxe pad (mask 5 min, wipe, pat)	Luxe pad
3	Optional serum (vitamin C or other)	Optional treatment: retinoid (retinol or prescription tretinoin) on some nights
4	Eye cream or balm (optional)	Eye cream or balm (optional)
5	Moisturiser	Moisturiser (richer at night)
6	Sunscreen SPF 30+, then makeup	—

4.2 What it goes well with

Pairs well with	Why
A moisturiser with ceramides or a richer cream	Seals in the water the pad adds; ceramides refill the barrier (Doctorly recommend ceramide moisturisers for mature skin)

Pairs well with	Why
Sunscreen	Protects; needed for any hope of spots fading
Retinol / tretinoin	The pad has no acids, so it adds no extra sting. Using a hydrating step under or before a retinoid is a common way to make retinoids easier to tolerate
Vitamin C serum	Fine together. The old warning that niacinamide and vitamin C "cancel out" comes from outdated lab conditions
Peptide serum	Fine; both gentle
Makeup	Gel pads give a dewy base. Wait a minute so it's not wet

4.3 What not to mix it with, or be careful with

Be careful with	Why
Another toner pad or acid toner on the same night	Doubling up is pointless and can over-wipe thin skin
Scrubs and cleansing brushes on the same day	Adds rubbing on top of rubbing
Prescription creams for eczema or rosacea (eczema: itchy, dry, sore patches; rosacea: long-lasting redness and flushing, often on the cheeks and nose)	Ask the prescriber; extra layers can change how they work
Very strong acid peels or a fresh in-clinic treatment (laser: a beam of light that heats the skin; peel: a strong acid that makes the top layer flake off; microneedling: tiny needles that make small holes so the skin repairs itself)	Follow the clinic's aftercare; use nothing new for a few days

There is no dangerous combination with this pad. It's a gentle hydrating gel.

4.4 Simple example routines

A. The absolute beginner (3 products)

Morning	Night
Rinse → Luxe pad (wipe only) → moisturiser with SPF 30+	Gentle cleanser → Luxe pad (5-min mask) → moisturiser

B. A woman over 60 with dry, thin, easily irritated skin (Built from what dermatologists in the sources recommend for menopausal skin: gentle cleansing once a day, hydration, a rich moisturiser, retinoid if tolerated, sunscreen daily.)

Morning	Night
1. Splash with lukewarm water only (Dr Idriss: "cleanse once a day keep it to the night time")	1. Remove makeup with a cleansing milk or balm

Morning	Night
2. Luxe pad as a 5-minute mask while you do your hair; then press in, don't wipe	2. Hydrating cream cleanser
3. Moisturiser for dry skin	3. Luxe pad, gentle wipe, pat
4. Sunscreen SPF 30+ (a hydrating one) on face, neck and backs of hands	4. Two or three nights a week: a gentle retinol (pea-size), building up slowly; skip if it stings
5. Makeup, if worn	5. Rich ceramide night cream, also on the neck
	6. Squeeze the leftover pad gel onto the backs of the hands, then hand cream

C. Sensitive or rosacea-prone skin: cleanser → pad (mask only, no wiping) → plain fragrance-free moisturiser → sunscreen in the morning. Patch test first; stop if it flushes.

D. Oily or combination skin over 50: pad in the morning only, a lighter gel moisturiser, sunscreen. At night, a retinoid or an exfoliant does more for pores than this pad.

E. Budget version: the pad is a "nice to have". A gentle cleanser, a plain moisturiser and sunscreen do most of the work. Anua's identical pad costs less per pad (section 7).

5. Who it's for, and who it isn't

5.1 By skin type, age, sensitivity and budget

	Good fit	Poor fit
Skin type	Dry; dehydrated (tight, dull); normal; combination with dry cheeks	Very oily; acne-prone (it doesn't clear pores; BestReviews says the Anua pad is "Not the best option for more oily skin types")
Sensitivity	People who can't tolerate retinol, acids or fragrance	Fish-, soy- or corn-allergic people; very reactive rosacea (patch test)
Age	40s to 80s with dryness and dullness; also younger dry skin	Anyone hoping for lifting or firming
Goal	Hydration, glow, a calm makeup base, a quick "mask" habit	Exfoliating rough texture, fading deep spots fast, shrinking pores
Lifestyle	People who want a quick, no-mess step	People who dislike waste or bulky jars
Budget	Those happy to pay about $0.43 a use for convenience	Tight budgets: a plain hydrating toner on cotton does a similar job for less; the Anua version is cheaper per pad
Values	—	Vegans: salmon DNA is an animal ingredient

	Good fit	Poor fit
Eye area	Pat the leftover gel gently under the eyes	Not for the eyelids or the lash line: wipe around the eyes, not over them (Anua says to avoid the eye area)

5.2 How skin changes after 50 and 60, and why

The big driver is menopause. Menopause officially starts 12 months after the last period; the skin changes start years earlier in perimenopause (the years of change before periods stop). Estrogen, which helps keep skin thick, plump, oily and quick to heal, falls.

Change	What happens, and why	What it looks and feels like	Can this pad help?
Collagen loss	"nearly a third lost in the first 5 years and a decline of 2.1% per year over the 15 years following menopause". Dr Dray: "women lose about 30 percent of collagen in the first five years after menopause". (The 30% figure comes from older, small studies measured on the forearm)	Thinner skin, crepey patches, fine lines that deepen	No for collagen; yes for the look of fine lines for a few hours (plumping)
Dryness	The same review paper links menopause to dry, itchy skin: "Pruritus is also frequently seen in postmenopausal women, commonly with associated xerosis" (pruritus = itching; xerosis = dry skin), and says that "the hypo-oestrogenic state could be implicated in increased TEWL" (in plain words: low oestrogen may be why more water escapes through the skin). Skin holds water less well: "the skin loses some of its ability to hold on to water". Dr Dray: dry skin is "probably the most striking change that people notice early on"	Tight after washing, flaky patches, makeup clings to dry bits, itching	Yes, the pad's main strength, together with a moisturiser
A weaker barrier and more sensitivity	Ceramides decline: "ceramides which are fats found in our Skin Barrier the levels of those start to decline with age making you more prone to water loss dryness and irritation". Hormonal flushing, rosacea flares	Old products suddenly sting; redness; "my skin hates everything"	Partly: fragrance-free, acid-free, with niacinamide. Still patch test
Dullness	Cell turnover slows, so dead cells pile up and reflect light unevenly	Grey, tired, "lost my glow"	Yes, short term (water + the gentle wipe). An exfoliant does more long term
Fine lines and wrinkles	Less collagen and elastin; sun damage adds up	Lines around eyes, mouth, forehead	A little, for hours (plumping); niacinamide and adenosine may help slightly over weeks

Change	What happens, and why	What it looks and feels like	Can this pad help?
Thinning and crepey skin	Less collagen and estrogen; Dr Sam Ellis: "the skin becomes thin and crepy"	Neck, chest, arms, eyelids look like crepe paper	No real change; hydration softens the look for a while
Age spots (sun spots)	Years of sun; and "your skin becomes more susceptible to UV damage as you go through menopause". Dr Idriss: after a sunny week "you probably look more spotted"	Brown spots on cheeks, hands, chest	Slowly, maybe (niacinamide, over months) only with daily sunscreen. New or changing spots should be checked by a doctor
Sagging, jowls, hollows	Bone shrinks and fat pads move: "your eye sockets are widening... your Jawbone is receding"; "skin care products they don't tackle this"	Jowls, droopy cheeks, hollow eyes, "my face fell"	No
Slower healing, easy bruising	Estrogen helps healing; thinner skin bruises	Cuts linger; bruises on hands and shins	No; but gentle handling (press, don't scrub) matters more now
New facial hair, adult acne	Relatively more male hormones	Chin hairs; jawline spots	No

After 60 and 70: everything above continues more slowly; skin is drier and thinner still, so gentle pressing instead of wiping and a richer moisturiser on top become more important. The 5-minute mask is the most useful way to use the pad at this age. Many women want fewer steps: "I want one or two items for an easy routine. Don't want to do 15 products for my 60 year old skin." (@lorimogan4983, 120 likes, Doctorly 1NOgLh46HdM).

"Age is not a skin type." Dr Idriss: "the first thing you need to do when you're building a skin care routine is to base it off of your problem". A viewer: "'Age is not a skin type' hope this phrase catches on" (@jacqchurchm2293, 177 likes). In practice: an oily 60-year-old and a dry 60-year-old need different things; this pad suits the dry one.

6. Every problem the viewer has, one by one

Quotes are word for word, with source and likes. Where a quote is about a different product, it says so.

6.1 Dry, tight skin

- What it is: skin that feels tight after washing, looks flaky, and drinks up moisturiser.

- Why it happens: less oil and less water-holding after menopause; a weaker barrier (section 5.2).
- How it feels: "You spend your whole life learning how to take care of your skin; developing a routine, and suddenly - menopause - and you don't know your skin or body anymore." (@charmainerohde8575, 3.6K likes, Doctorly 1NOgLh46HdM). A dermatologist describes her patients: "Their skin is dry, it's flaky, and they'll tell me every always, 'This hasn't been a problem for me before'" (Doctorly).
- What they've tried, and why it failed: foaming cleansers that strip more oil; heavier and heavier creams on top of dehydrated skin; drinking more water ("it's a little overhyped", Seoul Beauty doctor).
- How the pad helps: a dose of water and humectants straight after washing, then sealed in with cream. On PDRN skincare: "My skin is super dry, and PDRN really helps keep it moisturized without any irritation." (@chojiae-f2e, 50 likes, Dr Dray video). Doesn't help if used without a moisturiser on very dry skin.

6.2 Dull, "tired", grey skin

- What: skin that has lost its glow.
- Why: slower cell turnover, dryness and rougher surface scatter light (section 1.6).
- How it feels: "I didn't realize a lack of estrogen was contributing to my hollowness and jowling and not just dry skin!" (@ITFDBLA, 130 likes, Dr Idriss).
- Tried and failed: more makeup (sits in dry patches); harsh scrubs (tiny scratches; "they actually leave these tiny scratches", Seoul Beauty doctor).
- How the pad helps: instant dewiness for hours. Doesn't remove dead-cell build-up the way an exfoliant does.

6.3 Fine lines and crepey texture

- What: small lines and crinkled, thin patches.
- Why: collagen and elastin loss plus sun damage.
- How it feels: "I have really dry skin under my eyes that make my lines appear worse than they could be." (@michellelindensmith7033, 56, 20 likes, Doctorly). "My face is reaping the benefits but my neck can't always handle all of the skincare." (@JillJ, 741 likes).
- Tried and failed: collagen creams (collagen "is not going to penetrate your skin", Doctorly); retinol that stung or peeled.
- How the pad helps: dehydration lines plump up for hours. Real collagen change needs retinoids or procedures. Doesn't firm.

6.4 Dark spots and uneven tone

- What: brown sun or age spots; blotchy tone.
- Why: years of sun; skin more UV-sensitive after menopause.
- How it feels: "As a 54yo female who spent her teens & 20's BAKING in the sun, I appreciate a Derm who speaks the TRUTH!" (@i_am_whole_again, 478 likes, Dr Idriss). "we went to the beach with baby oil on our skin" (@explorewithsteggie1913, 108 likes).

- Tried and failed: vitamin C serums that irritated; strong peels; concealer.
- How the pad helps: niacinamide can lighten spots a little over 4–12 weeks (studies at 5%) if sunscreen is worn daily. PDRN's brightening is unproven. Expect "a bit more even", not "faded".

6.5 Sensitive skin that reacts to "actives"

- What: skin that stings, burns or reddens with retinol, acids, vitamin C or fragrance.
- Why: weaker barrier with age (fewer ceramides).
- How it feels: "I don't think this works well on sensitive skin. I wish it did, but it created more sensitivity for me." (@rupaj9094, on an exfoliating toner pad, EmpVHOGyYLw). From the earlier round: "the one thing that i so relieved is a VEGAN, because my skin is very sensitive." (@skinloverishere, 57 likes).
- Tried and failed: acid toners, retinol, perfumed creams.
- How the pad helps: no acids, no retinol, no fragrance, no alcohol. Watch: niacinamide and plant extracts can still sting very reactive skin. Patch test.

6.6 Rough texture and bumps

- What: sandpaper feel, flaky bits, tiny bumps.
- Why: dead-cell build-up, dryness.
- How it feels: "during seasonal changes, my cheeks become dry. My cheeks get rough, and my skin deteriorates as if my immune system is weakening" (Ulta, most-helpful positive review of the Mediheal Collagen Ampoule Pad, review R-069). "I struggle with texture on my higher cheek bones and on my chin, under my bottom lip" (Aly, Dallas, Ulta, 2026-10-22, 5 stars, on Medicube's exfoliating Zero Pore Pad, review C-029).
- What they tried, and why it failed:
    1. Accepting it. The same Mediheal reviewer: "Even dermatologists say it's just due to seasonal changes and stress, so I've accepted that I can't fix it and am destined to use only gentle skincare products" (R-069).
    2. Scrubs. They feel smoothing but can scratch: "they actually leave these tiny scratches" (Seoul Beauty doctor, 864b16vfJQk).
    3. Strong exfoliating pads. They can backfire: "after four days, I began to see new breakouts. I lessened the use to three times a week, until I was only using it once a week.... Even once a week, I was getting small irritated red bumps" (Ulta, most-helpful critical review of the Medicube Zero Pore Pad, review C-032). Why: thin, dry mature skin often can't take acid or rubbing every day.
- How the pad helps: softens through hydration and a gentle fabric wipe. It does not exfoliate chemically, despite the page. An acid (lactic or mandelic for sensitive skin, per Dr Idriss and Doctorly) once or twice a week does more.

6.7 Makeup that looks cakey or clings to dry patches

- Why: foundation sticks to flakes and sinks into lines on dry skin.
- What they tried, and why it failed:

1. Putting makeup straight on top of a wet pad. It can flake or "pill" (roll into little crumbs): "These pads always make my skin peel and also peel under makeup" (Sephora Middle East, 2026-08-26, 1 star, Anua pad, review A-025); "I wanted to love this but I could not use it with anything without experiencing pilling" (Lookfantastic, 2026-06-04, 2 stars, Anua pad, review A-022). Why: the gel is still wet and tacky, so the next layer rubs it into crumbs.
2. Rubbing in a lot of extra liquid, then cream. "I didn't like how my skin felt after I first used these and rubbed everything in- I felt sticky or tacky... I wound up having to wipe my face with a damp cloth to remove the ballies (pilling)" (glowrecipe.com, 2026-02-19, 3 stars, Glow Recipe PDRN pads, review R-005).
3. What worked for others: waiting. "the finish is quite rich and tacky, so give it a few minutes to sink in before applying makeup to avoid pilling" (Vitacost, 2026-06-13, 5 stars, Anua pad, review A-036).

- How the pad helps: a 5-minute mask before makeup gives a smoother, dewier base. Anua buyer: "It hydrates my skin, calms redness and it's pefect under makeup" (Lucia, Cult Beauty, 2026-04-14, 5 stars, review A-012). Commenters ask: "Do you have any recommendations on what toner pads to use before makeup?" (@laradevlin4503).

6.8 Too many steps, too confusing

- What: overwhelm.
- How it feels: "I found this all so confusing. I think I better watch it for the third time now." (@tydjjdyt8561, Doctorly). "I want one or two items for an easy routine." (@lorimogan4983, 120 likes).
- How the pad helps: one jar does the toner and mask steps; nothing to measure. But it does not replace moisturiser or sunscreen.

6.9 Wasted money and distrust of hype

- How it feels: "Products like skin medica are an absolute fortune and sure don't have the results to go with the price tag." (@lorae7, Dr Idriss). "OK I think you need to do a followup of drugstore products for over 50s because this stuff is PRICEY." (@tw3894, 42 likes). On PDRN: "I regret not checking dr dray and wasting my money lol" (@wiist_eria); "takes PDRN serum out the cart" (@usamakhan3553, 153 likes); "This hype is huge in S Korea now. I'm living here and I can tell it's all marketing, hype and trends." (@marinatorres3473, 82 likes).
- How the pad fits: a premium price for a hydrating pad. Honest framing is the antidote: "a nice hydrating mask, not a miracle".

6.10 "It looks the same" (no visible change)

- How it feels: on a Medicube PDRN gel pad demo (846,000 views): "Looks the same to me" (@Mimi0427-c6h, 921 likes); "Is the calmer skin in the room with us????" (@iloveLmorethanyou).
- Why: hydration changes are subtle on camera; the "repair" claims don't show in minutes.

- What they tried, and why it failed:
  1. One PDRN product after another. "In K-beauty right now, PDRN is everywhere. I've tried a lot of them hoping for good results, but honestly... Most products didn't really live up to the hype" (@zz9zz6, 168 likes, Dr Dray video XC2OZDLpEJ0, review C-053; the one that worked for this person was VT's).
  2. Using a whole bottle. "I used an entire bottle of the pdrn. While it felt good, I'm uncertain whether it actually did anything" (@zoeberry33, on Anua's PDRN serum, review C-105).
  3. Pads used daily for weeks. "They do seem to moisturize in the short term but haven't noticed any change in my skin. I guess nothing is magic." (RAH, Atlanta, Ulta, 2026-09-08, 4 stars, Mediheal Collagen Ampoule Pad, review R-067). After 3 weeks of Biodance's collagen gel pads morning and night: "I'm not seeing firmness or elasticity" (YouTube creator, bl-nELE-670, review R-134).
  4. The injections themselves. "once the swelling went down my under eyes looked identical to how they did before" (@Criticalbeauty411, after Rejuran injections, review C-097).
  - Why it failed: what these products really do is add water, which shows as softness and glow for some hours, then fades. People were hoping for firming, which they can't give.
- What this means: set expectations: feel and dewiness, not a new face.

6.11 Pads drying out, jar too big, two sides confusing

- "Do they dry out quickly?" (@Mirendawali, 11 likes). "the packaging takes up a lot of space"; two-sided pad confusing (Anua buyers, Cult Beauty). "I'm completely flummoxed by the two sided pad which I can't perceive, being completely saturated with serum" (Qwendy, Cult Beauty, 2026-05-05, 4 stars, Anua pad, review A-008).
- What they tried, and why it failed:
  1. Travelling with the jar. "every time I go out of town and pack my facial products, almost always these pads find a way to tussle and turn about in my luggage and somehow open and leak" (Lei, Ulta, 2026-07-20, 4 stars, Mediheal Watermide pad, review R-078). An Anua buyer: "if you hold it at an angle for even a second, serum will leak out of the box" (Ulta, most-helpful critical review, review A-060). Why: the jar is full of loose liquid, and the lid is not a tight seal.
  2. Following the box instructions. "the instructions for use are confusing as they say to leave on skin, but I'm assuming that's for targeted areas. I swipe the pad all over my face" (Mhairi, Lookfantastic, 2026-07-13, 5 stars, Anua pad, review A-017).
  3. Wiping with a slippery gel pad. "they are very slippery and normally when I wipe them across my face like it will slip out. So I found the best way is to really hold it with your thumb and all of your fingers" (YouTube creator, Biodance gel pads, review R-134).
  4. The tweezers. "the included tweezers are too blunt, often picking up two pads at once" (Ulta, Mediheal Watermide pad, review R-084).
- Fix: close the lid; keep it upright, or flip it for a day so the top pads get wet again; use the slippery side to mask; hold the pad flat with all your fingers to wipe; travel with the jar in a sealed bag.

6.12 Sagging and jowls

- How it feels (from the earlier audience round): "When I turned 48, my face just fell.".
- Why: bone loss and fat shifting.
- How the pad helps: it doesn't. Dr Dray: "skin care products they don't tackle this".

6.13 Fish allergy, vegan, "salmon sperm" disgust

- What: worry or squeamishness about fish ingredients.
- How it feels: "I want to know more about the different types of PDRN- salmon, rose, aloe etc." (@Leighalinkous); "Totally thought the title was 'PORN Skincare'" (@harmony323, 390 likes).
- How the pad fits: it is salmon-derived, and not vegan (section 11).

7. How this product compares

7.1 The main alternatives, explained simply

Prices measured 2026-10-31 on the named site unless dated; per-pad is my calculation. Corrections from the check are applied: Medicube's dodoskin price rose to $26.14 after the first pull; BestReviews' cheap Amazon prices for "Medicube" and "Mediheal" belong to differently named pads. Amazon prices from BestReviews are from February 2026.

Product	What it is	Pads	Price (source)	Per pad	PDRN	What's different from Luxe
Luxe PDRN Toner Pads	Dual-sided gel pad, hydrating	140	$59.95 (luxeresearchlab.com)	$0.43	Salmon; level not stated (Anua's identical list: 100 ppm)	Biggest jar; marketed to women 40+
Anua PDRN 100 Hyaluronic Acid Glow Pad	Same 45 ingredients, same pad design	60	$23.00 (anua.us, 2026-10-31); $22.00 (Ulta and Vitacost, 2026-10-31); $21.78 (dodoskin); $22 Amazon (BestReviews, Feb 2026)	$0.36–0.38	Salmon, 100 ppm	Same formula, cheaper per pad, smaller jar

Product	What it is	Pads	Price (source)	Per pad	PDRN	What's different from Luxe
Medicube PDRN Pink Collagen Gel Toner Pad	Ultra-thin gel pad; the category's best-known brand	70	$26.14 (dodoskin, after re-check)	$0.37	Salmon, 1 ppm	Also has retinol; less PDRN
Medicube PDRN Pink Collagen Jelly Pad (DIY)	Empty pads + essence you pour in	70	$19.89 Amazon (BestReviews, Feb 2026); $26 (medicube.us)	$0.28 (Amazon)	Salmon	Pads stay wet; you mix them
Mediheal Derma 365 PDRN Lifting Pad	Hydrating, "lifting" pad	100	$26.40 (mediheal.com); $27.42 (dodoskin)	$0.26–0.27	No sodium DNA in dodoskin's list	Contains fragrance; cheaper per pad
VT PDRN Tension Toner Pads	Hydrating pad, unscented	60	$22.75 (dodoskin); $15 Amazon (BestReviews, Feb 2026)	$0.25–0.38	Plant (ginseng)	Plant PDRN; ceramides and shea added
Biodance Caviar PDRN Dual Gel Toner Pads	Dual texture: gel + exfoliating side	60	$24.09 (dodoskin)	$0.40	Salmon, 1,000 ppm (10× Luxe's likely level) + salmon roe	Exfoliates (lactic, salicylic acids, PHA)
Isntree Gim PDRN Boosting Glow Pad	Glow pad	70	$23.01 (dodoskin)	$0.33	Seaweed, 100 ppm	Plant (vegan) PDRN; mild PHA
Rejuran Derma Healer Pore Tightening Toner Pad	From the injection brand	60	$26.78 (dodoskin)	$0.45	"c-PDRN"	Exfoliates (AHA, BHA, PHA). One Eye Beauty's favourite pad
Glow Recipe PDRN+ Repair + Soothe Toner Pads	Calming pad, sold at Sephora	60	$30.00 (glowrecipe.com)	$0.50	"Vegan PDRN+"	Centella (a soothing herb) and panthenol (vitamin B5, a soothing moisturiser); dearest per pad

Product	What it is	Pads	Price (source)	Per pad	PDRN	What's different from Luxe
COSRX Peptide Collagen Lifting Glow Pad	Peptide pad, no PDRN	100	$24.58 (dodoskin)	$0.25	None	Says "especially mature and dull skin"
Torriden Dive-In Hyaluronic Acid Multi Pad	Plain hydrating pad	80	$18.71 (dodoskin)	$0.23	None	Simple hydration, cheap
A bottle of hydrating toner + cotton pads	Same idea, you soak your own	—	not pulled	not found	—	Cheaper, less waste, no mask effect
A sheet mask	Fabric soaked in essence, 10–20 min	—	not pulled	not found	—	Bigger hydration hit, less convenient
A good moisturiser alone (ceramides, glycerin, niacinamide)	Cream	—	not pulled	not found	—	Dr Dray: most PDRN products are "another niacinamide, ceramide, humectant-containing moisturizer"
PDRN/PN injections (Rejuran)	In-clinic treatment	—	not pulled	not found	Injected PN	The only way PDRN reaches the dermis; still weak evidence for ageing

7.2 When to pick this product, and when something else

Pick the Luxe pad if...	Pick something else if...
You want a big jar (140 pads) of gentle, fragrance-free, acid-free hydrating gel pads	You want the same thing cheaper per pad → Anua (identical ingredients)
You can't tolerate retinol, acids or fragrance	You want smoother texture or clearer pores → an exfoliating pad (Biodance, Rejuran) or a lactic-acid product

Pick the Luxe pad if...	Pick something else if...
You like the 5-minute mini-mask habit	You want the most PDRN in a pad → Biodance (1,000 ppm)
Your skin is dry and dull and you want glow before makeup	You're vegan or fish-allergic → a plant-PDRN or non-PDRN pad (VT, Isntree, Torriden)
	You want proven anti-ageing → a retinoid at night and sunscreen by day; pads are extras
	You dislike waste → a bottle toner or a facial spray

8. Questions viewers ask, with plain answers

Sources for the questions: comments on the videos in section 12 (marked with the commenter where the wording is theirs) and the search titles that perform ("When Should You Use Toner Pads?", "2 ways to use toner pads", "Which Korean Toner Pads Suit Your Skin?"). Answers are unless a source is named.

#	Question	Plain answer
1	What is PDRN, actually?	Tiny pieces of DNA, usually from salmon. On the label it's "Sodium DNA"
2	Is this the same as the "salmon sperm facial" Kim Kardashian had?	Same family of ingredient, very different thing. The facial injects it under the skin; the pad leaves a tiny amount (about 0.01%) on top
3	Does PDRN in a pad get into my skin?	Very little, if any. The pieces are far too big to pass through intact skin (Dermatology Times, 2026)
4	So does it work?	As a moisturising, glow-giving pad, yes. As "cellular repair", there's no good evidence. Dr Dray: "doubtful that these skincare products with PDRN do anything above and beyond moisturize the skin"
5	Is it the same as the Anua pad?	Same 45 ingredients, same design. Anua costs less per pad
6	Which side do I use first?	The slippery gel side as a 5-minute mask, then the fabric side to wipe
7	Do I have to leave it on 5 minutes?	No. Wipe only if you're in a hurry; the mask gives more hydration
8	Do I rinse it off?	No. Pat in the leftover gel
9	Do I need a moisturiser after?	Yes, especially if your skin is dry. The pad adds water; a cream keeps it in
10	Can I use it before makeup? (@laradevlin4503)	Yes. Wait a minute until it's not wet
11	Morning or night?	Either or both. Start with once a day

#	Question	Plain answer
12	Can I use it with retinol? (@habsign4355: "I use retinal but I'm scared to add a toner pad")	Yes. This pad has no acids or retinol, so it doesn't add sting. Use the pad first, let it dry, then the retinol, then cream
13	Can I use it with vitamin C?	Yes
14	Can I use it with my acid toner / peel pads?	Better on different nights so you don't over-wipe
15	Is it good for dry mature skin? (@AmtulAfiyaa: "For Dry skin?")	Yes, that's who it suits best
16	Is it good for oily mature skin? (@momkashi)	It's fine, but it won't control oil or pores
17	Will it fade my age spots?	Maybe a little, slowly, thanks to niacinamide, and only with daily sunscreen. Don't expect them gone
18	Will it firm my neck or lift my jowls?	No
19	Will it help wrinkles?	Fine lines look softer for a few hours. Deep wrinkles: no
20	Does it exfoliate?	Only the gentle rub of the fabric. There are no exfoliating acids in it, whatever the page says
21	I broke out. Is it purging?	No. Purging only comes from acids or retinoids. Stop, and patch test
22	Is it safe if I'm allergic to fish?	Don't use it without asking your doctor or allergist. It contains salmon DNA, and the collagen source isn't stated
23	Is it vegan? (@sarahnir8895)	No. It's salmon-derived. (The pad fabric is called "vegan fabric"; the liquid isn't)
24	What's the difference between salmon, rose and aloe PDRN? (@Leighalinkous)	Salmon PDRN comes from fish and has the injection research behind it. Plant "PDRN" (ginseng, rose, carrot, seaweed) is plant DNA with no clinical data on skin (Dr Dray)
25	Do the pads dry out? (@Mirendawali)	They can, near the bottom. Close the lid tightly every time
26	How long does a jar last?	70 days at twice a day; 140 days at once a day (140 pads)
27	Can I use it on my neck, chest and hands?	Yes; squeeze the leftover gel there
28	Can I use it under my eyes?	Pat the leftover gel gently below the eye; don't wipe over the eyelids or lash line (Anua says avoid the eye area)
29	Does it have fragrance? (@pamelasault9483 asked about fragrance types)	None listed
30	Can I use it with rosacea or eczema?	Possibly, as a mask without wiping, after a patch test. Ask your dermatologist if you're on prescription creams

#	Question	Plain answer
31	Can I cut a pad in half?	Yes; it's just fabric and gel. Use both halves at once
32	Should I keep it in the fridge?	Not needed. A cool pad feels nice, though; keep the lid shut
33	Is it safe in pregnancy?	No pregnancy data for this product. Lab-made growth-factor peptides (oligopeptide-1) have insufficient pregnancy safety data. Ask your doctor
34	Aren't toner pads bad for the environment?	Each pad is single-use fabric. A dermatologist Short with 3.6M views says so. A bottle toner or a mist creates less waste
35	Is it worth it? (Short jxM3Vtfz4Wc asks exactly this)	Worth it if you'll use the mask effect and like the convenience; otherwise a bottle toner does the wiping job for less

9. Myths and truths

Myth	Truth	Source
"It's the same as the salmon-sperm injection"	The injection puts PN/PDRN into the dermis; the pad leaves about 0.01% on the surface	Dr Dray; Dermatology Times; Anua 100 ppm
"99% PDRN" means the pad is 99% PDRN	It's the raw material's purity. Pads hold 0.01 to 1,000 ppm	One Eye Beauty; retailer INCIs
"PDRN repairs skin at the cellular level"	Shown for injections into wounds, and in lab dishes; not shown for creams or pads	Dr Dray; Dermatology Times
"Collagen in the pad builds my collagen"	Collagen can't soak in as collagen. It's a moisturiser	Doctorly
"The hyaluronic acid gives deep, lasting hydration at multiple skin layers" (Luxe page)	The pad has 5 ppm of each HA form, working on the surface; the level studied in a wrinkle trial was 0.1% (200 times more)	Anua ppm; Pavicic 2011
"Plant PDRN is the same as salmon PDRN"	Different source and size; no clinical data on skin	Dr Dray
"One pad replaces your whole routine"	It replaces a toner and a sheet mask. You still need moisturiser and sunscreen
"Toner balances your pH, so you must use one"	That was true with old soaps; modern cleansers are pH-balanced. Today a toner is optional	Dermatologist Short jo9nvX8NkK4; Doctorly
"More steps = better skin"	Doctors say pick products for your problem; the 10-step routine is optional	Seoul Beauty doctor; Doctorly
"A breakout means it's purging"	No acids or retinoids, so no purging

Myth	Truth	Source
"Glass skin is permanent"	The dewy look from hydration is immediate but temporary	Doctorly
"Skincare can lift sagging skin"	Sagging comes from bone and fat changes	Dr Dray; Dr Idriss; Dr Sam Ellis
"Natural/salmon means safe for everyone"	Fish- and soy-allergic people need care	INCI
"If it's expensive and clinical-looking it works"	The same formula sells for less as Anua	Prices
"It's too late to protect my skin at 60"	Dr Sam Ellis: "it is never too little or too late"; sunscreen helps at any age

11. Safety, and what you can and can't say on camera

Safety

- Fish allergy: contains salmon DNA; the collagen source isn't stated. BestReviews: "People with fish or seafood allergies should avoid salmon-derived PDRN pads.". Experts disagree on whether purification removes fish proteins; no study was found. Say: "If you're allergic to fish, ask your doctor first."
- Soy and corn: soybean ferment, possibly soy lecithin; corn extract.
- Not vegan.
- Patch test 2–3 days; stop if it stings, burns, itches or causes spots.
- Keep out of the eyes and off the lips. Press, don't scrub, on thin skin.
- New or changing spots should be seen by a doctor, not treated with pads.

What you can't say (drug-type or unsupported claims)

- Can't say: "repairs skin at the cellular level", "regenerates", "rebuilds collagen", "boosts collagen", "lifts", "firms", "fades dark spots in 4 weeks", "clinically proven", "the same as Korean clinic injections", "exfoliates with PHA", "vitamin C", "99% PDRN", "vegan", "hypoallergenic", "zero side effects", "125% more hydration" or "100% saw results" (those are Anua's test numbers).
- Can say: "a gentle, fragrance-free, acid-free hydrating gel pad"; "skin looks plumper and dewier right after"; "use it as a 5-minute mini mask"; "contains niacinamide, which can help skin tone look more even over weeks"; "contains salmon-derived PDRN; the science on PDRN in skincare is still early".

Part 2: The reviews

1. What the reviews tell us, in plain English

1. No real customer reviews of the Luxe pads were found anywhere. The only Luxe reviews are 7 testimonials printed on Luxe's own product page (section 4). They give ages from 42 to 63 and talk about dark spots and crepey neck skin. These are testimonials the brand prints on its own page, not independent reviews, so they are kept apart from the counts. Amazon could not be loaded.
2. The Anua pad, which has the same recipe, is well liked. I read 73 Anua reviews. Of the 63 with stars: 48 gave 5 stars, 9 gave 4, 2 gave 3, 2 gave 2 and 2 gave 1. The stores' own averages: Ulta 4.8 from 124 reviews, iHerb 4.7 from 127, Lookfantastic 4.68 from 44, Cult Beauty 4.67 from 18, Vitacost 4.6 from 20, Sephora Middle East 4.11 from 19, anua.us 4.9 from 15. The Anua pad has two prices, both measured 2026-10-31: $23.00 for 60 pads on Anua's own US store (anua.us product data, about $0.38 a pad) and $22.00 for 60 at Ulta and Vitacost (about $0.37 a pad). Luxe sells its version for $59.95 for 140 pads (about $0.43 a pad).
3. What people love is the water. 38 of the 73 Anua reviews say "hydrating" or "moisturising", and 25 talk about glow (a fresh, shiny, healthy look). The pads come soaking wet, feel cool, and leave skin soft and plump straight away. Many say the effect is instant: "Right after, my skin felt hydrated, looked glowy".
4. Most people use them as a mini face mask, not a wipe. 19 Anua reviews describe leaving a pad on the cheeks or forehead for 5 to 20 minutes. Some cut pads in half, keep them in the fridge, or put them on the neck and the backs of the hands. 12 say it makes makeup go on smoother.
5. The main complaints are about wetness and the jar. The pads can feel too wet, sticky or "goopy"; a few say the product "pills" (rolls into crumbs under makeup or cream); the jar leaks when you open it or tip it; the jar is big; and the instructions (two-sided pad, leave on or wipe?) confuse people.
6. Several say the glow does not last, or the PDRN is only a marketing word. An over-40 reviewer: "the glow fades after a few hours. So, my verdict is save your money". Ingredient-reading YouTubers say the PDRN amount is tiny and the real work is done by the other ingredients (niacinamide, peptides, hyaluronic acid, glycerin). PDRN commenters in general are split: some swear by it, the most-liked ones say there is no proof it does much on the skin's surface.
7. Bad reactions are rare but real. Across the 267 independent reviews of the first pull, 11 report a reaction. The 52 added later report no reaction to a skincare product (one, C-097, describes swelling after PDRN injections). For the Anua pad: skin peeling, a rash with burning eyes, and an itchy hive-like rash that came back each time. One of the 11 (C-054) is about a PDRN injection (swelling), not a skincare product, so 10 are about products put on the skin.
8. Long-term results are reported by a few people, and they are about feel and fine lines, not dark spots. For example "regular use maintains long term hydration of fine lines", "my fine lines less visible", and a nose scar "greatly reduced" in 2 to 3 weeks. None of the 73 Anua reviews mentions dark spots or pigment. The big promises on the Luxe page (dark spots fading, firmer neck) were not found in any independent Anua review.

9. Few reviewers say their age, but the over-40s who do are mostly positive and calm. 13 independent reviews give an age of 40+ or say "mature"/"ageing" skin. Two were added in the second pull: a creator turning 60 with "very sensitive skin" who leaves Medicube's PDRN pads on "until they barely feel moist anymore" (R-133), and a 62-year-old man with "dryish and thin mature skin" (C-109). A 50-year-old: "my 50 year old skin feels amazing". A reviewer aged 51-55 with dry, sensitive skin: "super saturated with quality skin care ingredients that cool the skin". Two over-50 YouTubers testing other pads: results are "not overly dramatic, but noticeable" and "subtle can be exactly what 50 plus skin needs". On Glow Recipe's PDRN pads, 34 of the 113 reviewers who gave an age range were 45 or older (20 aged 45-54, 6 aged 55-64, 8 aged 65+).
10. Toner pads as a whole get a recurring "waste" complaint. A dermatologist Short with 3.6 million views says toner pads are bad for the environment, and several commenters repeat it. Some people simply prefer a liquid toner or a sheet mask.
11. The closest rival, Medicube's PDRN gel pad, is rated highly by its Vitacost buyers too (4.85 from 52 reviews). Its buyers praise the glow and the mask use, like Anua's, and one notes it "contains retinol" and is "not that gentle" for daily use on sensitive skin (R-121). Two longer creator tests of Biodance's collagen gel pads say the same thing in different words: the pads feel plump and hydrating, but the "firming" promise did not show ("I'm not seeing firmness or elasticity, so I don't think they're worth $20", R-134, after 3 weeks of use morning and night).

3. Beauty words used in these reviews

Word	Plain meaning
Toner pad	A small round of cloth or gel, sold in a jar, already soaked in liquid. You wipe it over clean skin or lay it on like a tiny mask.
Essence / serum	A thin, watery or slightly thick liquid put on after washing and before cream. The liquid in these jars is an essence.
Moisturiser / cream	The thicker cream that goes on after, to seal the water in.
Sheet mask	A face-shaped cloth soaked in liquid that you leave on for 10 to 20 minutes. Many reviewers use the pads like small sheet masks.
Hydrating	Adds water to the skin, so it feels less tight. "Dehydrated" skin lacks water; "dry" skin lacks oil. Reviewers use both.
Glow / dewy / glass skin	A fresh, slightly shiny look, like skin that has just been splashed with water. "Glass skin" is the Korean ideal of very smooth, shiny skin.
Plump	Skin looks fuller and bouncier, because it has soaked up water. It goes back down when the water dries out.
Tacky / sticky	The skin stays a little sticky after the liquid dries, like dried sugar water.
Pilling	When you put cream or makeup on top, the layers roll into little crumbs or balls.
Exfoliate	Remove the top layer of dead skin, with a rough cloth or a mild acid. The Anua pad is not an exfoliating pad (one reviewer: "not exfoliating whatsoever").
AHA / BHA	Two kinds of exfoliating acid. AHA (glycolic or lactic acid) loosens the "glue" between dead skin cells; BHA (salicylic acid) gets into oily pores. Neither is in the Anua or Luxe pad.
PHA	A very gentle acid used to exfoliate. The Luxe page says its pad has one (maltobionic acid), but maltobionic acid is not in the ingredient list, and nor is any other PHA.
LHA	Another gentle exfoliating acid, a cousin of salicylic acid (C-085).
Pores	The small openings in the skin, most visible on the nose and cheeks.
Hyperpigmentation / dark spots	Patches of skin darker than the rest, from sun, age or old spots.
PDRN / sodium DNA	Bits of DNA, usually from salmon, the trend ingredient of these pads. On the label it is called "sodium DNA".
Peptides	Small protein pieces added to creams, sold as firming.
Niacinamide	A form of vitamin B3, used to calm redness and even out skin tone.
Hyaluronic acid	A water-holding ingredient that makes skin feel wetter.
Rosacea / eczema	Long-lasting skin conditions with redness (rosacea) or itchy, dry patches (eczema).

Word	Plain meaning
Breakout / comedones	Spots or pimples; "closed comedones" are small skin-coloured bumps (blocked pores).
Purging	A short spell of spots caused by acids or retinoids (strong vitamin A creams), which speed up how fast skin renews itself. It can't happen with the Anua or Luxe pad, because they contain neither. Spots from a pad like this are a reaction, not purging.
T-zone / combination skin	The forehead, nose and chin (the T-zone) are oily while the cheeks are dry or normal.
Skin barrier	The skin's outer protective layer. "Damaged barrier" means skin that stings and reacts easily.
Retinol / tretinoin	Strong vitamin A creams for wrinkles and acne; they can irritate.
Tweezers / tongs	The little plastic picker packed with most pad jars, so you don't touch the pads with your fingers.
Ampoule	A small bottle of concentrated serum. Brands also use the word for the liquid in some pads ("Collagen Ampoule Pad").
Centella / cica / madecassoside	Centella asiatica is a soothing herb (also called tiger grass); "cica" is its nickname. Madecassoside is one of its calming parts.
Glutathione	A natural antioxidant (a protector against damage from sun and pollution), sold in "brightening" products.
Fatty alcohols	Waxy, non-drying ingredients (like cetyl alcohol) that thicken and soften creams. Not the drying kind of alcohol. One reviewer blames them for small bumps (C-025).
Décolleté	The neck and upper chest.
Holy grail / "Holigrail"	Reviewers' slang for "my favourite; I can't do without it".
Hwahae	A Korean app that rates products and their ingredients.
Comedogenic	Likely to block pores and cause spots. C-101 names isopropyl myristate, an oily ingredient, as an example.
Humectant	A water-grabbing ingredient, like glycerin or hyaluronic acid (C-106).
Occlusive	A sealing ingredient that sits on top of the skin, like petroleum jelly; it can feel heavy (C-109).
SPF / sunscreen	Sun protection. Needed the morning after using retinol (R-136).
Macrophages	Clean-up cells in the body that break down debris (C-066).
Botox / lip filler	Clinic injections: Botox relaxes muscles to soften lines; filler is a gel that plumps the lips.
Skin booster / Rejuran / PN	An injection meant to improve skin quality. Rejuran is the best-known salmon-DNA injection brand; it uses PN (polynucleotide), a longer form of the same salmon DNA.

Word	Plain meaning
Microneedling / laser	Clinic treatments: tiny needles, or a beam of light, make controlled small injuries so skin repairs itself.
Dalton (Da) / kDa	A unit for how big a molecule is; 1 kDa = 1,000 Da. Skin lets through only small molecules, roughly under 500 Da. "243 Da collagen" is a brand claim about a small piece of collagen (R-134, R-135).
Booster Pro	A Medicube beauty gadget that is pressed over the skin (C-107).
Incentivised review	A review written by someone who got the product free or got something in return. Marked as such where the store says so.

4. The Luxe PDRN Toner Pads themselves (7)

These are the only Luxe reviews found. They are printed on the product page itself; there is no review app on the page, so nobody can add or read other reviews there. These are testimonials the brand prints on its own page, not independent reviews. Searches for the Luxe pads on YouTube, TikTok and the wider web found no other reviews (earlier report,.

> I eat well. I sleep. I drink my water. My skin never got the memo. Dark spots on my cheeks, crepey texture on my neck, and a dullness that no amount of concealer could fix. Started these pads six weeks ago. By week two the texture on my neck was noticeably smoother. By week four my husband asked what I'd changed. I hadn't told him anything. The spots on my cheeks are still fading but they're already lighter than they've been in years. First product that made me feel like something was actually happening. Also about: before/after, results/timing, problem. Source:

> I've spent more money on serums than I want to admit. La Mer. SkinCeuticals. A $200 peptide serum that sat on top of my skin and did nothing. These pads absorb in seconds. No residue. No greasiness. No waiting. Week one my skin felt different — smoother, cleaner, somehow more awake. By week five the dark spots on my hands were visibly lighter. I'm genuinely annoyed nobody told me about PDRN sooner. This is what all those serums were supposed to do. Also about: complaint, before/after, results/timing, problem, texture, price/value. Source:

> I'd made peace with most of it. The fine lines, fine. The dryness, fine. What I couldn't accept was the uneven tone — dark spots on my cheeks and chest that made me avoid certain necklines. Three weeks in and the spots on my chest are already less visible. My skin looks more even in the morning without anything on it. My daughter took a photo of us last weekend and I didn't immediately ask her to delete it. That hasn't happened in two years. Small thing. Not a small thing. Also about: before/after, results/timing, problem. Source:

> My routine used to be: cleanse, apply three different products, wait, apply two more, hope for the best. Switched to these pads two months ago. One swipe after cleansing. That's it. What I didn't expect was that simplifying would actually get me better results. Texture improved in week one. By week six the fine lines around my mouth are softer and my skin tone is more even than it's been in years. I have four products sitting unused on my shelf right now. Don't need them anymore. > Retinol made my skin peel for three weeks straight. Vitamin C serums irritated me every single time. I'd basically accepted that anything strong enough to work would also punish me for using it. These don't. No redness. No peeling. No sensitivity. Just skin that started looking calmer and more even by week two. I'm 63. My skin has never handled actives well. These are the first ones that delivered results without making me regret it the next morning. Also about: results/timing, problem. Source:

> I started early with SPF and serums. Thought I was ahead of it. Then I hit 42 and the dark spots showed up anyway — jawline, cheekbones, upper lip. The kind that foundation settles into and makes worse. Five weeks using these pads and two of the spots on my cheekbones are genuinely lighter. Not filtered. Not concealed. Just lighter. I went to a work event last week and skipped the heavy foundation. First time in two years. That's the result I was looking for. Also about: before/after, results/timing, problem, texture. Source:

A reaction is when the skin gets angry after use: a rash, burning, itching, bumps or peeling. Only a few reviews report one. Each is one person's story, and none was checked by a doctor.

> I tried the sample and loved.... I tried the sample and loved it so much I bought the full size! It was out of stock for almost a month, so I had to wait patiently for it to come back. The thin, soft texture is absolutely delightful. I've been a loyal fan of Mediheal sheet masks for over a decade, so I was thrilled that these toner pads work like minimasks. They're perfect for oily skin hydrating without being heavy. They've been a godsend for combating winter dryness too. Definitely a holy grail product! 1. The pads are so thin, it's a struggle to separate them one by one. 2. The container is too bulky (inconvenient for travel, takes up too much space). 3. They dry out within 5 minutes of application. 4. My skin had a bad reaction... The sample was amazing, so why is the fullsize product so different? I'd recommend using tweezers from other toner pads. These are ultrathin, and the included tweezers are too blunt, often picking up two pads at once. Also about: complaint, before/after, results/timing, problem, texture, ease of use. Source:

> Skin feels moisturized and.... Skin feels moisturized and refreshed right after application. The hydration lasts until the next morning, keeping the skin feeling supple. Blemishes... I don't usually have sensitive skin and tend to use various products, but after using this for two days, my cheeks became red and I developed small bumps. This has never happened before, so I'm quite surprised. I checked the ingredients on Hwahae and nothing seems problematic, so I'm not sure why this is happening. Since this is the only new product I've used recently, I'm going to take a break and try it again later. I bought two during a sale, so I hope it works out. > A Simplification of a Usually Messy Skincare Step. The ANUA Heartleaf Toner pad was a great way for me to include a toner into my routine without the fuss. The target of this Toner + Pad duo was to combine the benefits of both a hydrating Toner & Exfoliation by effectively trying to make possible that more reactive skin types get the benefits of exfoliation. The key ingredients of PHAs(PolyHydroxy Acids), Heartleaf, and Madecassoside aimed to give a gentle but effective exfoliating experience. The pads themselves don't carry a lot of product; but if you tip the container upside down then they'll be an even distribution of product on the most immediate pads. I used this every two days, because while the molecular weight of the exfoliating agents are larger than say your more known BHAs & AHAs. You can still overdo it especially with the added element of the physical property of the pad itself if you don't rub gently enough. The product on application leaves a tacky feel that I disliked, even so it doesn't interfere with follow up skin care steps. I'm using this my skin did get a reduction of redness from a new pimple. It immediately soothed the inflammation around my pimple and the texture (from old pitted scars/pores) was still there but slightly less obvious. I've been using this on my cheeks/neck/hands for the last week. In doing so I did notice I got Closed Comedones on my chin + cheeks. So I would say if you're prone to that test this out as there are fatty alcohols in here. Also about: complaint, before/after, results/timing, problem, texture, ease of use. Source:

However, after four days, I began to see new breakouts. I lessened the use to three times a week, until I was only using it once a week. I chalked it up to purging, but was wrong. Even once a week, I was getting small irritated red bumps. The moment that I ceased using the product, my skin began to heal. Now I am stuck with a product I have no use for. > Love this product. I first bought the bundle set medicube offered on tik tock. It had so many items in it. The entire pdrn line came with it as well as several other products. I'm so glad Ulta offers medicube now. I can get all my products in one store now. Being a working makeup artist I've tried many products out there. I tell all my clients Your skin is your foundation. If you don't have good skin care, it won't matter what expensive makeup line you use. It's not going to look as good as it should if you don't take care of your skin. I'm over 45 now. So with age we really need to step up our skin care game. Medicube products definitely delivers the results. It's become my go to to recommend for clients. I noticed just after a few uses my skin looks more plump, The texture of my skin has improved. It's so much smoother and It gives my skin a more youthful glow and appearance. I'll use these pads right after I use the toner and pdrn petide serum. When you receive this product. The liquid comes in a separate sealed pouch. You need to pour all of the liquid in the container with the pads. As with any container make sure the lid is screwed on tightly. Once you have the lid on, the top part if the lid flips open. It comes with plastic tweezers. There's a place for them to snap into the lid. So you can keep it sanitary. The lid does snap shut tightly too. I've never had a problem with any liquid leaking out. > Does what it promised!. I have been using the PDRN 100 Hyaluronic Acid Glow Pad for just a few days and I already really like it. The pads come in a tub. Each pad is soaked in a smooth serum. I take one pad out after cleansing and gently wipe my face with it. The liquid feels cool and moist. I glide the pad around cheeks forehead and chin. It does not feel sticky or oily at all. After the first use my skin felt soft and looked fresh. My face had a faint glow. After a couple of days I saw that dry spots around my nose looked less rough. The glow pad gave a gentle shine that looked natural and healthy. The serum absorbs fast and does not leave any residue. It made my skin feel calm and well hydrated. Every morning after my toner and at night after washing I use one pad. It is easy and quick. I like that I can just swipe one pad and feel refreshed. Even under makeup my face felt smooth and happy. In the evening I follow with moisturizer and sleep feeling refreshed in the morning. I have sensitive skin and had no irritation at all. I did not see redness or pimples. The pad felt soothing and clean. A few people mention a light smell from the pad but I did not notice any scent. The glow pad felt soft on my skin and did not tear or pull. In only a few days I felt my skin look more even and feel more supple. My face had a subtle glow that looked like it comes from deep clean hydration. I feel like this is a nice simple step in my skin routine if you want skin that looks lively and feels soft. I will keep using it and see how skin looks in one week. > Fantastically comfortable pads that give loads of moisture and glow instantly 🤩. They are fragrance-free (yes, I’ve looked!), feel gentle on the skin, and provide a really plumping effect that makes the skin look more awake and fresh! (Also adding a post-routine picture including makeup) The formula contains bioactive PDRN from salmon (Sodium DNA) which supports skin renewal and strengthens elasticity – yes please! (Clinical evidence and availability of vegan alternatives are unfortunately still limited.) Hyaluronic acid deeply hydrates while peptides help support skin structure and firmness. The collagen complex provides a smoothing, moisturizing effect on the surface that makes the skin softer and plumper. For reference, I have an oily T-zone and sensitive, dry cheeks prone to rosacea. I use them both morning and evening, halve one pad ✂ and swipe over face, neck, décolleté, and backs of hands before serum. They also work perfectly as a quick sheet mask when you want to give your skin an extra boost 💦 The result is skin that feels hydrated, soft, and radiant — without irritation. A really lovely product for those who want glow, moisture, and plump without strong ingredients 🌟 lindahudterapeuten Also about: results/timing, problem, texture, ease of use. Source:

1. Skin Type I have.... 1. Skin Type I have combination dehydrated skin. While my face is generally oily all over, during seasonal changes, my cheeks become dry. My cheeks get rough, and my skin deteriorates as if my immune system is weakening. Even dermatologists say it's just due to seasonal changes and stress, so I've accepted that I can't fix it and am destined to use only gentle skincare products. 2. Overall Review Oh my goodness, it's absolutely amazing! I'm about to praise it so much that you might wonder if this is a sponsored post from Mediheal. But I genuinely love this product. I'll definitely repurchase it. For those of you with combination dehydrated and super sensitive skin who constantly check ingredients on Hwahae, why not give this a try? 3. Texture What's the key for combination dehydrated skin? It's a product that feels refreshing when applied but also provides adequate hydration. We can't use heavy creams due to our naturally oily skin, but we still need moisture. This product has a clever formula that perfectly understands the needs of combination skin. It's moderately hydrating and light, but not too light, so it feels sufficiently moisturizing. However, being a toner pad, it might not be enough for those with dry skin. 4. The Pads are Excellent First off, they're huge big enough to cover both my cheeks at once, and I have a pretty large face! I think most people will find them generously sized. I buy pads because fullface sheet masks are too oily and timeconsuming for me. For pads, it's important that they adhere well to the face and are large enough to cover without leaving awkward spaces. These pads meet all those conditions perfectly! However, I wouldn't recommend these for exfoliation or dead skin cell removal. The pads are very thin, which makes them stick well to the face, but they can roll up on their own, which can be a bit inconvenient. Also, the embossing isn't very pronounced, so you won't feel like you're scrubbing your face clean. But these aspects aren't major drawbacks since this product is primarily for nourishment and elasticity care. The pads are soaked with plenty of essence enough to use on your face and then wipe other areas too. When you pick up a pad, it won't drip, but if you squeeze it, you'll get a small puddle in your hand. 5. Definite Results! This was the most surprising part. I usually think two weeks isn't enough to see results, but with this product, I felt the difference from day one. On the first day, I had worn a mask for over 12 hours, and my sensitive skin was stressed the area around my mouth was burning as if something was about to break out, and my cheeks were cracked. I applied this product, and despite my skin being in such a sensitive state, there was no pain or tightness. And the effects were far from minimal. Some of you might relate to this there are days when your skin just feels different after good skincare. It feels firm, and you know any foundation will look good that day. That's how my skin felt after using this pad. I just used it for a 510 minute pack after washing my face, followed by my usual skincare routine, and I was amazed at how calmed and improved my skin looked. It's so good that it really does sound like I'm writing a sponsored post, but I'm just sharing my incredible experience. Of course, results may vary, but if you have similar skin to mine, I highly recommend trying this product. There's honestly nothing negative to say. I'm just overwhelmed by how this product seems tailormade for me from start to finish... The lid has a clip, making it much more

> Next up on the list, we have the collagen gel toner pads. This is 60 pads and on the Biodance website, this sells for $26.... I have a very enlarged nose pore.... Immediately after I use that gel toner pad tonight, we're going to look at it again... [first use] It's so weird because there really isn't a smell, but it does not feel like toner. Like to me, toner is like a, you know, almost like water.... This is very like gel consistency.... I still feel like the toner is still on my face. It has not dried down yet or absorbed. But do we notice anything with the pores? Cuz I don't notice anything instantly happening.... Okay. I kind of maybe think it did.... [after 3 weeks] obviously you can see I've been using them every morning and every night because it was full and now there's only this many left.... I do have kind of a lovehate relationship with these. They're so ooey gooey with serum and whatever's in here that they are very slippery and normally when I wipe them across my face like it will slip out. So I found the best way is to really hold it with your thumb and all of your fingers on this side just try to swipe in like one motion... these little collagen gel toner pads, that's 20 bucks for 60 pads.... I do like a toner in like a pad sort of a form, but for me, these were just too slickery. They were hard to hold on to. And for 20 bucks for collagen gel toner pads that are infused with 243DA collagen for firm and elastic skin. I'm not seeing firmness or elasticity, so I don't think they're worth $20.... after the first use of the pads, I was super excited cuz I was like, "Oh my god, these giant nose pores. I think they're getting refined." But like I said in a check-in, maybe you only get one refinement. Also about: results/timing, texture, ease of use, complaint, price/value, problem. Source:

> The secret to Hydrated, Glass-Like Skin. After using the ANUA Heartleaf 77 Toner Pads every night for a week, I'm genuinely impressed by how they've transformed my skin. These pads balance soothing hydration and gentle exfoliation, making them a delightfully easy addition to my routine. What sets these apart is their versatility. The 70 generously soaked pads are perfect for my face, neck, and even elbows, leaving my skin feeling smoother and cared for. It's a little extra pampering that makes a big difference. From the very first use, I could feel the gentle exfoliation working to lift away dead skin cells without a hint of irritation. After seven days, my skin is noticeably softer, with rough patches smoothed out and my complexion looking more refined. Even my T-zone, which often feels oily, has improved—fewer blackheads, tighter pores, and an overall fresher feel. The star ingredient, 77% Heartleaf Extract, has been a breakthrough for my sensitive skin. It calms redness and irritation while delivering lightweight hydration that never feels greasy or heavy. The alcohol-free formula relieves anyone who worries about drying or stripping their skin. But these pads don't stop at exfoliation and hydration—they also provide antioxidant and anti-inflammatory benefits that support long-term skin health. Knowing that every swipe contributes to a calmer, healthier complexion makes them feel like a luxurious yet practical choice. If you're looking for an all-in-one skincare product that gently exfoliates, hydrates, and balances your skin, the ANUA Heartleaf 77 Toner Pads are worth trying. In just one week, I've seen my skin transform, and I'm excited to see if continued use will help me achieve that coveted glass-skin glow. This review was collected as part of a promotion  Also about: results/timing, problem, texture, ease of use, price/value. > These pads have 100% changed my skin for the better. My skin has never had such a sheen hours after using them. I use them at night and wake up the next day with the best skin i've ever had. Had no redness, no breakouts. You get a really good amount of pads per pot and i only use one at a time. The pores around my nose have never been so clear, they are smooth and overall my skin is less bumpy. I have sensitive skin and the mild ones are perfect! Also about: results/timing, problem. > Love this product!!. I have been using these pads once a day consistently for two weeks so far, and I'm seeinf such substantial progress! I struggle with texture on my higher cheek bones and on my chin, under my bottom lip. In just two weeks, this has reduced that texture by 35% at least. I cannot wait to keep using and see how much texture I can eliminate completely. Nothing else has ever worked for me with the speed this has. Also about: results/timing, problem. Source:

> This was so incredibly helpful thank you so much for doing this!!!!!! I tried the injections from Rejuran and then I bought the serum after. I have to admit I was incredibly disappointed with both. When I got the injections, I didn’t get the micro needling version, I got the deep injections so I had a good amount of swelling after the procedure. This led me to believe that it was working, however, once the swelling went down my under eyes looked identical to how they did before. I took before and after photos and I even waited a few weeks to see if it just took that amount of time for my body to utilize the ingredients but alas, nothing happened then either. Due to the expense, I had absolutely no incentive to do them again. When I talked to a different Dr after the fact they told me they were really not surprised and that it wasn’t a modality they found valuable in their practice. The Serum I got was extremely pleasant to use, super hydrating I liked it for that, but I certainly didn’t see any noticeable results. I am super interested in trying the ginseng version though!... First Impression of the Product. First Impression of the Product When I first saw the product, I was pleased by the generous size of the container. The brown color of the jar gave it quite a luxurious look. Upon opening the lid, I noticed an additional silver foil seal covering the pads, which showed how much attention was paid to hygiene. The lid itself is a snapon cap rather than a screwtop, which, though a small detail, is surprisingly convenient. It allows for quick and easy access to the pads, even when you're in a hurry. Hygiene and Convenience Inside the lid, there's a plastic tweezer attached for removing the pads. This is a great feature as it eliminates the need to touch the pads with your hands, making it both hygienic and convenient. After use, you can store the tweezer back in its designated spot inside the lid. There's a groove where the tweezer fits perfectly, ensuring it stays in place. Even if you shake or turn the container upside down, the tweezer won't fall onto the pads, allowing for easy and hygienic storage. The Pads The pads are thin with small perforations on the surface. Unlike the common circular shape, these pads are square, which allows them to cover a larger area. What I liked most about the pads was their excellent adherence and stretchability. Being thin and sufficiently soaked in essence, they adhere well to the skin. Once applied, they stay in place even when you're moving around, which I found impressive. As these are lifting pads, I tried stretching them over areas that need lifting, like smile lines and the chin. They adhered well even to curved areas and stretched easily, making them simple to apply where needed. Essence Amount and Fragrance I was very satisfied with the amount of essence on the pads. It was just right not so little that it felt dry, nor so much that it dripped. This allowed for a comfortably moist feeling during use. The scent can be described as a subtle herb or cica fragrance. It's not overpowering, so even those sensitive to smells should be able to use it without issues. User Experience As someone with sensitive skin that often reacts to skincare products, I'm pleased to report that I've had no redness or breakouts while using these pads. For my dry skin, hydration is crucial, and I was particularly satisfied with how moisturized my skin felt even after removing the pad. There weren't any significant drawbacks to this product. Some might find it tricky to remove individual pads with the tweezer at first. With practice, you'll develop a knack for it try gripping the edge of the pad with the tweezer for easier removal. As these are lifting pads, many of you will likely stretch them when applying. Here's a tip: use both hands when applying the stretched pad for better adherence and to prevent it from falling off. Simply sticking it on and then pulling might cause the pad to come off in the direction you're pulling. Try this instead! For example, if you're applying to smile lines, place the pad on the area and hold that part with one hand. Use your other hand to stretch the pad in the desired direction. This way, you can apply the stretched pad without it falling off. Also about: texture, ease of use. Source:

> I am so, so very. I am so, so very happy that I tried the MEDIHEAL Watermide Toner Pad (100 Pads). I don't write rave reviews often, but this is going to be one. These toner pads have dramatically improved my skincare routine and results, and they have helped to settle and repair my dry, sensitive skin. These toner pads are thin pieces of fabric liberally soaked in the toner solution. One pad can cover my whole face and neck with plenty of toner leftover. The toner is cool and refreshing to parched, dehydrated, dry, sensitized skin. It does an amazing job of injecting muchneeded hydration and moisture into the skin. The toner soaks into the skin nicely, but leaves a lasting layer of hydration and moisture on the surface of the skin. There is no real detectable scent, other than the slightest herbal scent. The toner pads just smell very light, fresh, and refreshing. I like to use these toner pads as a sort of mini sheet mask on areas where my skin tends to be most parched, irritated, and sensitive. I will often place one pad on each cheek, and let them sit for 20 minutes. This really has a calming, soothing, hydrating effect on my skin. It helps my skin to heal more quickly. Because my skin is quite sensitive, washing my face too often doesn't produce good results. Even with the most gentle cleansers. I often use these toner pads in place of a cleansing step. They wipe away any residue from previous skincare routines, and they leave my skin feeling super fresh, hydrated, and refreshed. Without any irritation, damage, or breaking down of my skin barrier. These have become the perfect solution for me when I really want to wash my face and start fresh, but I really shouldn't. This product has really changed my skincare routine and the results I get from it. The packaging is a really beautiful, unique purple plastic jar/case with an inner, refillable tub. The case also contains a pair of handy plastic tweezers, which smartly attach securely to the inside of the lid. The packaging was really wellthoughtout. It is highly functional, and it looks beautiful on a vanity. I have not had any issues with the toner pads drying out at all. The cost of these toner pads is also excellent. I consider them to be an excellent value for money. Overall, I consider these toner pads to be pretty much perfect. They deeply hydrate and moisturize my skin without even the slightest hint of irritation. In fact, they deftly soothe and calm irritated skin, and set it up for quick restoration. I can't say enough good things about these toner pads. I will repurchase (probably for years to come), and I highly recommend them to anyone of any skin type. I don't think you'll be disappointed. > A New Go-To!. I've been using Glow Recipe products for a while now, and one thing I've struggled with is that so many products are geared towards oily or acne prone skin. There are products that unfortunately burn my dry, sensitive skin. So when I saw that there was another product being added to the lineup that was meant for the dry skinned girlie, I was thrilled! The formula of the toner is absolutely incredible, and the pads themselves are so soothing and cooling! I also love that the jar comes with tweezers so you aren't having to dig around in the jar to fish out the pads with your fingers! I like combining these with the Avacado Ceramide cleanser and serum, and the Plum Pump moisturizer for a soothed, hydrated complexion! Also about: texture, ease of use. Source:

> I would buy this product aain.. I've seen this ad about the zero pore pads from medicube everywhere, and it looked legit and seemed to work for everyone, so I decided to give it a shot and see if it would work for me as well. It was around twenty dollars, so I had really hoped it would be well worth the money I spent on it. One side of the pad helps with exfoliation, and the other side is softer and helps lift excess off. Ever since mine came in, I have loved it. It has helped my skin so much with texture and made my skin shine. The zero pore pads have truly transformed my skin after just a few uses; I noticed my pores have actually looked visibly smaller, and my skin feels smoother. It has a very lightweight texture, so it doesn't leave a greasy or heavy feeling afterwards. I think my expectations went through the roof. If I'm honest, I didn't have high hopes for the product. I thought it would be another thing I would buy to try to help my skin, and it would just fail me like all the other products I have bought. It did wonders for my skin, enough for me to want to repurchase another one once I finish my first container. I would truly and honestly recommend this for anyone who is struggling with larger pores and uneven texture like me. This product delivers great results and is definitely a gamechanger for my skincare routine. I would give this product 5 stars! Also about: texture, ease of use, price/value. Source:

Combined with other products, then definitely, but I'm not completely onboard this craze, as there are so many great ingredients that give this benefit. I do love the VT PDRN essence, but this also... has a multitude of other heroes like ginseng, niacinamide, ceramides, allantoin, panthenol and sunflower seed oil... so it's hard to know how much the PDRN in itself is bringing the benefits. > Lots of moisture and glow in one pad 💦✨. I've been using the Anua PDRN 100 Hyaluronic Acid Glow Pad for a while now, and it has become a really nice step in my skincare routine. The pads are well soaked with essence and feel cool and comfortable on the skin. I especially like how much moisture they provide without the skin feeling heavy or overloaded afterward. My skin feels softer, more plumped, and looks fresher after use, with a nice glow that I actually notice. I also find them great to use before makeup when I want my skin to feel extra hydrated and even. They can be used as regular toner pads, but I also like to leave them on my cheeks or other areas as a little mini-mask before moving on with the rest of my routine. For me, this is primarily a really good moisturizing product that makes the skin comfortable, soft, and glowy – just the way I like it. 💦🤍 lykoreview konkurranse lyko hudpleie anua anuapads anuahyaluronicacidglowpad ceciliesvurdering Also about: ease of use. > This is why you need to read the ingredient list because I was looking at these new Anua glow pads with PDRN and hyaluronic acid... It also markets collagen on the box. However, when I was reading the ingredient list I noticed that it actually includes quite a few peptides which are expensive skin care ingredients and are known to be efficacious even at lower concentrations. It also includes ingredients like adenosine which is actually on the third line... It's a really great anti-aging ingredient... I would say peptides are pretty cool in this formula. > The product itself, it is a little bit bulky. It's not travel friendly. It does tend to leak. That can be an issue when you're traveling.... Toner pads, I think they're a little bit too thin. I wish they were a little bit thicker. Solution wouldn't dry out as fast.... These thin gel coated pads and they stick pretty well to the skin.... There's very little to no fragrance. Good for daily use and it leaves the skin feeling pretty plump. For sensory, I would score it 3.8 just because I think it's has that little bit of a sticky feel.... Even with their claim at 243 daltons, you can't actually use topical collagen from the outside in.... I do believe that it does what it's intended to do. Even though the firming is temporary, it still does pretty well.... Oh, it's about $26 for 60 toner pads. I think it's a fair price. So, the final verdict for the Biodance Gel Collagen Toner Pads is 4.0. Also about: complaint, price/value, ease of use. Source:

> Hello, thanks for your honest review on this Medicube Salmon DNA PDRN Cream. My advice to all, who have normal to dry to very dry skin, but not too sensitive! Lightly wet or moisten your face with plain water, using a fine sprayer! Actually, before using any kind of moisturizer! Rather than applying the moisturizer in a completely dry skin! I have tested using even the oiliest moisturizer, as I have normal/dry and moderately sensitive skin! Believe me! This Medicube cream can do wonders without any stickyness, if used on moistened face! It absorbs very well and works magic with it's claimed humectant properties, including softness and glow! Or without any sensitive skin issues! Also about: texture, problem. Source:

> Hydrating, but a Bit too Goopy. As someone who prefers toner pads over liquid toner, I like seeing this concept for what I might consider an essence. It screams hygienic and clean to me. I'm still on fence on how I feel about the formula though, as it's quite different from the other ones I've tried. 🫐 I wanted to love this but something about the texture felt so goopy to me that I almost didn't want to use it. I guess it's supposed to provide more than your standard dose of hydration, but for something that is supposed to gently exfoliate, it kind of felt too thick. 🫐 I use this after cleansing and before applying moisturizer. Usually, right after the toner step, I go straight ahead and apply moisturizer without waiting. For this one though, I felt that I had to wait a little (around 10 minutes) post pad removal to let it fully absorb before I could go onto my moisturizer step. 🫐 The packaging for this leaked everywhere for me once I removed the seal. You need it upright at all times, and if you hold it at an angle for even a second, serum will leak out of the box. I wasn't a fan of this because as I was trying to move it around, liquid was slightly spilling out of the lid. 🫐 Formula wise, while it does take a bit to absorb, it does give a long lasting moisture that lasts for at least a day. I liked how glowy my skin looked and how easy it was to apply makeup the following day. It contains sodium based PDRN, which is great for all skin types, including sensitive ones. For context, I have combination skin that leans oily. 🫐 This is alcohol-free, fragrance-free, and essential oil-free formula. It didn't cause me to break out, nor did my pores feel like they were being congested. *I received this complimentary in exchange for an honest review. All thoughts are my own. > For starters, I absolutely hate the packaging. The minute you open it, the serum it spills out everywhere and I absolutely hate that. Coming to the product, I absolutely love these. They stay on the skin for almost 15 to 20 minutes, so you can actually use them like mini sheet masks.... technically, you're not getting any collagen or PDRN in the packaging. [she estimates PDRN at around 1%; the level Anua publishes is 100 ppm, which is 0.01%] But surprisingly, why I really like these ones is because... you will see niacinamide mentioned as a third ingredient... it's very hydrating for your skin, very soothing and it evens out your skin tone. I would really appreciate if brands would market the hero ingredient rather than what's really trendy on social media. Also about: ease of use. Source:

> These pads are excellent for achieving that plump, "glass skin" look. They are massive, completely saturated in a rich, fragrance-free PDRN and hyaluronic acid essence, and come with handy tweezers. I highly recommend using them as a 5-minute mini mask on your cheeks. It instantly revives dull, dehydrated skin. Just note that while the formula is completely fragrance-free, it does have a slight bitter taste if it accidentally gets on your lips—something to keep in mind if you have a high flavor sensitivity. Also, the finish is quite rich and tacky, so give it a few minutes to sink in before applying makeup to avoid pilling. Perfect for dry or normal skin types! > Guys, I came across this new Anua PDRN toner pad on my last trip to Korea. Wasn't a fan of their PDRN serum to be honest, but I love anything PDRN in general.... The texture and material of the pad is giving Biodance gel toner pad. It has that same soft gel feel that's super gentle on the skin, but also too slippery to wipe across the face, so it's best to use as a mask. Now, let's be real, it only has 0.01% salmon PDRN, but it's packed with peptides and hyaluronic acid, so it's a solid hydration booster. Honestly, I would say it's just okay for me. > They’re ok…. Maybe it was because I received the samples in single use envelopes but I found it messy to use these and I spilled the extra liquid all over:(Also, I only received 2 boxes of samples so there were only 2 envelopes of each kind and while I’m happy to do the review, I do not think 2 uses are anywhere near enough to leave a DECENT REVIEW. Anyways here we go: I kept these on for like 15 minutes and I didn’t like how my skin felt after I first used these and rubbed everything in- I felt sticky or tacky and I don’t like that. Usually, that feeling (in my experience anyways) means I’m going to start pilling if I rub my skin or use any other product and unfortunately I was right. I only wanted to use a little bit of moisturizer and it just felt gross with all the pills of product. I wound up having to wipe my face with a damp cloth to remove the ballies (pilling) and luckily some product did remain because my skin felt really nice and soft. If I were to try these again (I wouldn’t buy them but…) I would maybe do less time on and follow the recommended time and I also wouldn’t try to use all the extra liquid product in the envelope. Maybe that was the pilling issue. Also about: texture, ease of use. Source:

> I ABSOLUTELY LOVE!. I love love this product! I've been using mediheal for about I wanna say a year or two now, I originally started with the light blue one, but once I found the different types and found out about the watermide I haven't looked back. I have terrible dry skin and also sensitive, so the brand itself is great, but the watermide just adds a hydration that I just love, especially pairing with my serum, sometimes I honestly feel like I don't even have to put on moisturizer. The only bad thing is that it's TERRIBLE for when you're traveling. Maybe I just haven't had the best of luck so do not let me deter you from getting this product. But every time I go out of town and pack my facial products, almost always these pads find a way to tussle and turn about in my luggage and somehow open and leak. Or just leak period. I don't know if the packaging is just super sensitive and causes the top to come open or if you just don't have it sitting upright it leaks from the sides and just all-over, I do not know! I'm starting to think my best bet is to just keep the box for anytime I travel and see how that holds up in my luggage to hopefully seal it and prevent any leaking. > To be honest, I had high hopes.... To be honest, I had high hopes for this product based on my friend's recommendation, but it fell short of my expectations. First off, the lid is supposed to be sealed, but I couldn't open it no matter how hard I tried! I ended up cutting the inside with a knife. Moving on from that, I noticed the pads have large holes in them. These aren't small perforations, but big holes that seem to prevent the pads from holding much essence. They also don't adhere well to the face or neck. My friend suggested using them on neck wrinkles, so I tried stretching one and applying it, but it kept falling off unless I was lying down, which was inconvenient. After removing it, my neck felt so sticky that I had to wash it off with water. The product feels excessively sticky. The pads have too many holes, making them difficult to keep in place on the face. They don't seem to hold much essence either. It's probably better to use retinol in a serum or cream form. The same goes for collagen a cream might be more effective. > No breakouts?!?. Ive been using these pore pads for about 2 months now (2-3x per week) and im pmeasantly surprised with results! For reference, my skincare routine is MINIMAL due to my skin being acne-prone and panicky when new ingredients are introduced. I use a fragrance free moisuizing bar soap for cleansing (yes I know thats terrible, but "cleansers" cause breakouts on me), these pore pads, and a ceramide moisturizer before bed (still searching for a good one for long term use itherwise I'd list it here). After 3 uses of these pore pads, me and my husband both noticed a reduction in the prominance of my nose blackheads. After 2 months, I still feel like the blackheads and pores are shrinking, albeit VERY slowly. This was not an overnight success so know that you should try it for a long period befoe making a judgement. One thing I wish Id realized before starting use was that it really does need a moisturizer to follow it. The first two times I used it I didnt follow with a moisturizer and it dried my skin WAY out. But after pausing use and moisturizing for the next few days I was able to restart using the pads (+ a moisturizer) without dryness. I am extremely prone to breakouts (one day of foundation and my clear skin is toast) and so my biggest concern was that this would break me out. It didnt. In fact, I've been using it to help clear breakouts caused by occasional makeup use. I do believe I'll be purchasing again. Also about: before/after, results/timing, problem, texture, ease of use. > PDRN is a DNA fragment, typically at least 30 kDa in size. To be effective, it needs to reach at least 0.3 mm into the skin, where macrophages can break it down into nucleotides. However, the skin's stratum corneum acts like a brick wall, blocking these large molecules. That's why these ten products are likely completely ineffective — a waste of money!... PDRN truly works — but if you just apply it topically, chances are, you're wasting your money. Also about: price/value. Source:

> This is a toner pad version that includes 100 toner pads per container. So, the promise for this product is firmer skin, fewer lines, and more elasticity.... I do like the bigger pads, but I don't like the texture of the pads as much.... It has a light scent, which is pleasant. However, I can't give it too much points because this is a daily use product, and we don't really want products that are too fragrance loaded.... The collagen here is a plant-derived collagen, which is vegan collagen, also known as the carrot collagen. It works by hydrating your skin, but it doesn't actually build the collagen. And the firming that comes from this product is really from the peptides and retinol.... this product contains retinol, so it should be used at night and you should put SPF on the next morning.... It's about $24 for 100 pads, which obviously you get the most bang for your buck. So, if you want no-fuss hydration and quantity is your priority, then this is a product that you can go for.... So, the final verdict for Mediheal's collagen firming pad is 3.8. Also about: texture, complaint, ease of use. Source:

> So, this is not a glow pad. It's a calming and clarifying pad.... This toner pad has two sides, one that's embossed and the other that's smooth for dual functions.... The main thing I don't like about this product packaging is that container itself is quite large.... There's five types of centellas to calm your skin. There's gentle LHA and PHA acid to gently exfoliate your skin. Plus, there's panthenol and hyaluronic acid to moisturize your skin as well.... because it is a gentle exfoliate, it's not necessarily the best for daily use, and I wouldn't use it every day, especially if you have sensitive skin.... This product is about 20 to $26, and it has 60 large pads. I think it's a very fair price. Also about: problem, ease of use, complaint. Source:

What price and value reviews say, in plain words: buyers of the Anua pad mostly feel it is good value (repurchases, "great value for the price", "60 mini masks in every tub"). The money complaints are about pads that did not work for that person ("waist of money", "Money thrown in the trash"), about the glow not lasting ("save your money"), and about the cost of using several pads a day (C-110). Nobody in these reviews mentions the Luxe price.

> Add in store. So i usually order this on Amazon as it's much faster and that's the only place I've ever purchased it from however I am out today and my delivery will not be here until tomorrow so I decided to see if Ulta had it and tell me why this is the only one that they don't carry in store???? it is so good and has more and higher ratings than some that they do carry in store of this brand. Of course, the only one that I need, I can't get. Source:
