Part 1: The explainer

The whole pack on one page

1. Eyelid skin is the thinnest skin on the face. In a study of 10 donated heads, the thinnest skin on the whole face was the upper inner eyelid, at about 0.76 mm of dermis (the thick middle layer of skin). The under-eye area is close by and also very thin. A second study measured the whole skin of the upper eyelid in 10 Korean cadavers (donated bodies): about 0.32 mm near the lashes.
2. "Tired eyes" is not one problem. It is up to six. They are brown pigment, blue or purple blood vessels, shadow from a hollow, puffiness from fluid, bags from fat, and crepey, dry, lined skin. Most people over 50 have more than one.
3. A balm works on the top layer only. It can make dry, crepey skin smoother for some hours, help concealer sit better and, with the right ingredients, soften fine lines a little over weeks. It cannot move fat, fill a hollow, rebuild bone or hide veins.
4. The Luxe balm is a twist-up stick, like a large lip balm, sold for under the eyes. The brand names five "actives". On luxe.com they are adenosine, niacinamide, hyaluronic acid, bisabolol and vitamin E. On luxeresearchlab.com, argan oil replaces niacinamide. The pack also says "PDRN extract", and older packs said "collagen extract". No full ingredient list and no size were found anywhere.
5. Its best-supported active is adenosine. In one trial (L'Oréal, 2006), 126 women aged 45 to 65 each put two of three products (an adenosine cream, an adenosine film or a dummy cream) twice a day, one on each side of the face. On the adenosine sides, the skin around the eyes was measurably smoother at 3 and 8 weeks. We don't know how much adenosine Luxe contains.
6. Its real point of difference is what it leaves out. The brand says it has no retinol, no fragrance, no alcohol and no essential oils. Its best-known rival stick (Medicube's) has retinol plus geranium, ylang-ylang, bergamot and rose oils. Those are the kinds of ingredients that often sting thin, older eyelids.
7. How to use it: on clean, dry skin, a light swipe along the bone below the eye, never on the rim of the eye. Then tap it in with the ring finger. Then sunscreen, then concealer. Use it morning and night.
8. What you'll see and when: smoother, less dry skin within minutes, which fades within hours. Possibly softer fine lines after 3 to 8 weeks. No change ever to bags, hollows or blue circles.

1. The basics from zero

1.1 What an under-eye product is, and what it is for

An under-eye product is a cream, gel, serum, patch or balm that is made to be gentle enough for the skin around the eyes. People buy them for six reasons:

1. The skin there feels dry or tight.
2. It looks crepey: finely crinkled, like crepe paper or tissue paper that has been crumpled and smoothed out.
3. It has fine lines and crow's feet (the lines that fan out from the outer corner of the eye when you smile).
4. It looks dark (dark circles).
5. It looks puffy in the morning.
6. Concealer (the skin-coloured makeup used to hide dark circles) goes into the lines and looks cakey.

Do you need a special eye product? Two dermatologists (skin doctors) say plainly: no. You can use your face moisturiser around your eyes.

- Dr Dray, dermatologist: "The most important takeaway point from this video is that you don't need an eye cream. The moisturizer you use on your face can be used to moisturize the skin around your eyes." (YouTube si9l1VZtzvQ, "The Ultimate Guide To Eye Creams 2025", 421,455 views)
- Dr Sam Ellis, dermatologist: "As a dermatologist, I definitely think you can get away with not using a dedicated eye cream." (XKROvYsp0QM, 148,367 views)

Why people still buy them:

- Eye products are usually made without the things that sting, like fragrance and strong acids.
- They come in textures and shapes that are easy to use on a small area, like a stick or a metal roller.
- They are a reminder to look after that area.

Dr Dray: "there are eye creams out there formulated with ingredients that might improve those concerns."

1.2 Why under-eye skin is different (the thinnest skin on the face)

Think of the skin on your cheek as a thick winter coat and the skin under your eye as a silk scarf. The scarf is thin, light and moves a lot. You can see what's underneath it, and it creases easily.

Fact	What it means	Source
Eyelid skin is the thinnest skin on the face. In 10 donated heads, the thinnest dermis (the thick middle layer of skin, where collagen lives) was on the upper inner eyelid, at 758.9 micrometres (µm; a micrometre is a thousandth of a millimetre). That is about 0.76 mm, roughly the thickness of 7 sheets of printer paper. The thickest, on the lower side of the nose, was 1,969 µm, about 2.6 times thicker. The study's own words: "eyelid skin is the thinnest in the face".	Around the eye you have far less "padding" between the air and the blood vessels, muscle and fat underneath.	Chopra et al. 2015, Aesthet Surg J
Near the lashes it is very thin indeed. A different study measured the whole skin (all layers) of the upper eyelid in 10 Korean cadavers (9 men, 1 woman): 320 µm (about a third of a millimetre) near the lash edge, and 1,127 µm just under the eyebrow. These are whole-skin figures, while Chopra's 759 µm is the dermis alone, so the two numbers can't be compared directly.	The skin closest to the eye is the most delicate. That's where products get into the eye and sting.	Hwang et al. 2006
Doctors usually say "half a millimetre".	A simple number for the camera. Calling it the thinnest on the whole body is the doctor's own words; the measured study covered the face only.	Dr Michael Chua, ophthalmologist (eye doctor), nj_VYMVtKrQ: "the skin on your eyelid is about half a millimeter it's the thinnest skin in your entire body"
It has fewer oil glands, and less collagen and elastin.	It dries out faster, and its springiness wears out sooner. That's why the first lines of ageing often show here.	Dr Sam Ellis: "that skin is really thin. It has less collagen. It has less elastin. It has fewer oil glands." (XKROvYsp0QM). A 2015 eye-pad study: "The skin around the eye is an area without many oil glands and collagen in comparison to the body rest"
It moves all day. You blink thousands of times, smile and squint.	Lines form where skin folds over and over, like a crease in a shirt you wear every day.	Dr Dray: wrinkles come from "chronic creasing of the skin from expression throughout our lifetime coupled with age related decline in collagen" (si9l1VZtzvQ)
It reacts easily.	Things that are fine on the cheeks can cause a rash on the eyelids.	Dr Sam Ellis: "your eyelids are like your first indicator that something is wrong in your skincare routine" (XKROvYsp0QM)
It traps things.	Product, makeup and allergens collect in the folds.	Dr Dray: "You have hollows around your eye that can trap things... The way the muscles of your eyes contract to blink... it ends up sucking stuff up even closer into the skin." (si9l1VZtzvQ)
Its oil glands help keep tears healthy. The glands in the eyelid rims (meibomian glands) make the oil layer of your tears. Goblet cells, in the thin wet lining of the eye and inner lids, make the tears' slippery mucus layer.	Strong products near the eye, especially retinol, can upset those glands and cells and make dry eye worse.	Dr Rupa Wong, ophthalmologist, N7Zl2keLo1M: "retinol actually can be really toxic to the meibomian glands and the goblet cells"

1.3 What is under the skin: the layers, in plain words

To understand dark circles, bags and hollows, you need to know what sits under the thin skin. Picture the under-eye as a shelf. From the front to the back:

Layer, front to back	Plain description	Why it matters
1. Skin	The thin silk scarf.	It shows everything underneath. It gets crepey, dry and lined.
2. Muscle (orbicularis oculi)	A ring-shaped muscle round the eye that closes it and makes you squint. It is reddish-purple.	Seen through thin skin, it can look like a dark circle. Doctorly: "that reddish-brown tinge of the muscle can also create a tinge" (74eZe8KsHsw)
3. Blood vessels	Small veins and capillaries in and under the skin.	Through thin skin they look blue or purple. These are "vascular" dark circles.
4. The septum	A thin sheet of tissue, like a wall or a hammock, that holds the eye's fat in place.	When it weakens with age or genetics, the fat behind it bulges forward. That is a bag. Dr Karam: "think of it as like a wall" (Z1P5oKFQokw)
5. Orbital fat	Fat cushions around the eyeball. They are there to protect it.	When it bulges forward you get fat-pad bags.
6. The orbital rim	The bony edge of the eye socket that you can feel under your eye.	Products should stay on this bone, not above it. With age, the opening of the socket gets wider (section 5.3).
7. Cheek fat (the SOOF, "sub-orbicularis oculi fat")	The fat cushion where the eyelid meets the cheek.	It shrinks with age, so a groove appears. That's the hollow.
8. Tear trough	The groove running down and out from the inner corner of the eye. It is held down by a ligament (a tight band joining skin to bone).	When it deepens it makes a shadow. Dr Chua: "the tear trough which is the ligamentous attachment of skin to muscle and bone on the nasal side of the eyelid"
9. Lid-cheek junction	Where the lower lid meets the cheek.	Dr Karam: in youth it is short; with age "the distance increases", so eyes look hollow and tired (Z1P5oKFQokw)

1.4 How an under-eye product works: the science in kitchen-table words

Every under-eye product does one or more of four jobs.

Job 1: put water in and keep it in (moisturising). This is the main thing a balm does. Moisturisers use three kinds of ingredient:

Kind	What it does	Kitchen comparison	Examples
Humectant	Pulls water into the top layer of skin and holds it there.	A sponge.	Hyaluronic acid (sodium hyaluronate), glycerin
Emollient	Fills the tiny gaps between dry skin flakes so the surface feels soft and smooth.	Butter smoothed into a cracked cake.	Plant oils (argan), esters (lab-made oils, light and silky), squalane
Occlusive	Lies on top like a thin film and stops water escaping.	A lid on a saucepan, or cling film.	Waxes, petrolatum (Vaseline), shea

A balm stick is mostly emollient and occlusive (oils and waxes), so it is very good at the "lid" job.

Why moisture alone makes lines look smaller: when the top layer of skin is full of water it swells slightly, like a raisin soaked in water. Fine "dehydration lines" flatten. Dr Dray: a glycerin protectant helps "just by improving water content in the skin, plumping up the outermost layer, smoothing out those little dehydration lines." This effect is real but temporary. When the water leaves, the lines come back. A commenter put it plainly: "Remember any "difference" will last a few minutes" (@Phyllida-r7n, 26 likes, hAc7jewvVWE).

Job 2: slowly change the skin over weeks (the "actives"). Some ingredients send signals to skin cells. Niacinamide, for example, slows the transfer of brown pigment into the surface cells. Retinoids speed up cell renewal and collagen building. These take weeks to months.

Job 3: trick the eye (optical effects). Light-reflecting particles, tints, film-formers that tighten as they dry, and cooling. They work in minutes and wash off. Dr Sam Ellis on "instant" eye creams: "as they dry, the molecules in the product create like a little net or a film that brings the skin together and tightens it... that effect is completely temporary."

Job 4: cool and de-puff. Cold makes blood vessels narrow, so less fluid leaks out and swelling goes down for a while. A cold stick or metal tip helps a little. Dr Dray: "Simply cool temperatures... can help vasoconstrict and push that fluid back."

What no cream can do: reach the deep layers. The skin's outer layer (the "corneal layer", the dead top cells) is a strong barrier. A well-known rule says a molecule must weigh less than about 500 daltons (a unit for the weight of molecules) to get through. "Larger molecules cannot pass the corneal layer." Collagen and DNA fragments are far bigger than that. And even small molecules don't travel down to the fat pads or the bone. That is why every doctor in section 6 says creams can't fix fat bags or hollows.

1.5 What a "multi-balm stick" is, and the Korean stick trend

What it is. A solid balm in a twist-up tube, like a big lip balm or a glue stick. You rub it directly onto the skin. It is solid at room temperature and softens with the warmth of the skin.

What it is made of. Luxe's full list is not published. But the rival sticks publish theirs, and they show what such sticks are mostly made of.

- Medicube PDRN Pink Collagen Volume Multi Balm starts: "Cetyl Ethylhexanoate, Synthetic Wax, Polyglyceryl-2 Triisostearate, Diisostearyl Malate, Microcrystalline Wax, Hydrogenated Polyisobutene, Octyldodecanol, Caprylic/Capric Triglyceride, Euphorbia Cerifera (Candelilla) Wax..."
- Dr.Melaxin Cemenrete Calcium Multi Balm starts: "Caprylic/Capric Triglyceride, Polyglyceryl-2 Triisostearate, Synthetic Wax, Microcrystalline Wax, Octyldodecanol, Triethylhexanoin, Glycerin, Dipropylene Glycol, Water..."
- In plain words: the first ingredients, which make up most of the stick, are oils and waxes. Water comes late in the list. The "star" ingredients (adenosine, collagen, PDRN) come far down the list, so they are present in small amounts. A Luxe buyer described hers as "a more solid version of vaseline" (@debbiecook3203, video hVadCZUeLzg; from the review helper's pull). That fits a wax-and-oil base.

Why sticks became popular:

1. The Korean "pink stick". Kahi Wrinkle Bounce Multi Balm took off in Korea around 2021 to 2022 through product placement in K-dramas (Korean TV dramas). Cassandra Bankson, medical esthetician (a skin-care specialist trained to work alongside doctors, not a doctor): "that pink stick that you see everywhere... took off back in 2022" (LmP5MWmL8cs, 111,788 views). She says its "sales literally went from about a hundred thousand" to "12 million" (the captions write "bombs", probably "balms"). She gives no source for those figures.
2. "Functional cosmetics" in Korea. Korea's food and drug regulator (the MFDS) lets products with approved ingredients make official anti-wrinkle claims. Adenosine is one of those ingredients, reportedly at 0.04% (secondary sources only: dermfnd.org, mirai-skin.com, buybeautykorea.com, via WebSearch). The same secondary sources also list retinol, retinyl palmitate and polyethoxylated retinamide (two other lab-made forms of vitamin A) as approved anti-wrinkle ingredients. So "adenosine is the only one" (a Luxe claim) looks wrong. The official MFDS list was not pulled.
3. The 2025–2026 TikTok Shop and Amazon wave. Dr.Melaxin's calcium stick is labelled "[TikTok Bestseller]" on its own shop. Medicube's PDRN pink stick was added to its US shop in July 2026.
4. Ads that promise too much. The stick wave came with "Botox in a stick" and "filler alternative" ads. (Botox is an injection, given by a doctor or nurse, that relaxes muscles so lines soften; filler is a gel injected to fill hollows.) They drew a backlash, like James Welsh's "THE BIGGEST SKINCARE SCAM ON TIKTOK?! Who Are Dr Melaxin?" (TybFB4gyKcg, 403,792 views).
5. The PDRN fashion. PDRN (salmon DNA) is the 2026 ingredient of the moment. The earlier pads report found PDRN searches up 609.8% year on year (Spate, a company that tracks beauty search trends, via. Luxe's newer pack says "PDRN extract".
6. Luxe's timing. The stick was first published on the luxeresearchlab.com shop on 2 March 2026 (that listing was created on 3 December 2025); a second listing was created on 15 March 2026. The first independent blog review is dated 8 April 2026 (earlier report §1.2). It is a late entry in the stick wave.

Why people like sticks:

- No fingers in a jar. You hold the tube.
- Easy to carry in a handbag. You can touch up over makeup.
- Easy for stiff or shaky hands, and with poor near vision you don't need to see a tiny dab of cream.
- Many uses. The same stick goes on lips, smile lines, the neck and dry patches. Kahi demo: "you can literally use it all over your face and you can use this after makeup" (DHz_sw_YMTI, 25,594 views).

Downsides of sticks:

- Rubbing. Pressing a stick across thin skin tugs it. Doctors warn against rubbing the eye area (section 6.8).
- Hygiene. The same surface touches your face again and again. Cassandra Bankson asked whether it is "sanitary to be rubbing basically a large skincare glue stick on your face" (LmP5MWmL8cs).
- Heaviness. Waxy balms can feel heavy, and they can pill (form little rolls) under makeup if you use too much.
- They "seal things in". That is good for dry skin, but too rich for oily skin. Bankson: multi balms are "super oil filled... they seal things in" (LmP5MWmL8cs).

1.6 The types of under-eye product

Prices were pulled 2026-10-31 and come from the earlier report §5 unless marked.

Type	What it is	Feels like	Best for	Example and price
Eye cream	A thick or medium cream in a small tube or jar	Soft, rich	Dryness, fine lines; often carries actives	CeraVe Eye Repair Cream $19.99 (cerave.com); Clinique All About Eyes Rich $39 / 15 mL
Eye gel	Water-based jelly, often with caffeine	Cool, light, sticky until dry	Puffiness, oily skin, under makeup	not priced in this pull
Eye serum	Thin liquid, often with a dropper or roller	Light	Actives in a light texture	Beauty of Joseon Revive Eye Serum (retinal) $17 / 30 mL (beautyofjoseon.com)
Caffeine solution	A thin serum with caffeine	Watery	Morning puffiness	The Ordinary Caffeine Solution 5% + EGCG, about $9–11 / 30 mL (snippets)
Balm stick (multi-balm)	Wax and oil stick, twist-up	Like lip balm	Dry, crepey skin; on-the-go	Medicube $22 / 10 g; Dr.Melaxin $19 / 9 g; d'Alba $21 / 10 g; Kahi $24.99 / 9 g (vitacost.com, pulled 2026-10-31); Luxe $34.99–39.95, size not found
Eye patches	Gel or hydrogel half-moons you leave on 10–20 minutes	Cold, wet	A quick de-puff and plump before an event	not priced in this pull
Instant tightener	A cream that dries into a tight film	Tight, can flake	A few hours of smoother bags for a photo or wedding	Peter Thomas Roth Instant FIRMx Eye $39 / 30 mL
Retinoid eye cream	A cream with retinol or retinal	Cream; can sting	Lines and crepiness over months	RoC Retinol Correxion eye $21.99 / 15 mL; Olay Retinol 24 eye $22 / 15 mL (Walmart)
Tinted eye cream / brightener	A lightly coloured, light-reflecting cream	Thin, sheer	Mild darkness without a cakey look	e.l.f. eye brightener, "the $7 solution" (Kim Sullins, eA9YIs-49sc)
Colour corrector	A peach or orange cream that cancels blue	Creamy makeup	Blue or purple circles under concealer	e.l.f. Camo Corrector (Kim Sullins; price not stated)
Concealer	Skin-coloured makeup that covers	Creamy or liquid	Covering colour	many
Prescription creams	Tretinoin (strong vitamin A), hydroquinone (a strong skin-lightening cream), topical estrogen (the female hormone, as a cream)	Cream	Lines, pigment, menopausal thinning, under a doctor's care	price not found

1.7 Glossary: every word you will hear

Word	Plain meaning
Acrylate allergy	An allergy to acrylates, the plastic-like film-formers in some tightening creams and in nail gels and glues.
Active (ingredient)	An ingredient that is meant to change the skin, not just moisturise it.
Adenosine	A small molecule found in every cell of the body (it is part of the cell's energy system). In skincare it is an anti-wrinkle ingredient. See 2.3.
AHA (alpha hydroxy acid)	A family of mild acids (glycolic, lactic) that loosen dead surface skin cells so they wash away. They can sting near the eyes.
Allergic contact dermatitis	A rash caused by an allergy to something touching the skin. The eyelids are a common place for it.
Allergic shiners	Dark, puffy under-eyes caused by allergies and congestion.
Argan oil	An oil pressed from the nuts of the Moroccan argan tree.
Azelaic acid / kojic acid / tranexamic acid / alpha arbutin	Skin-lightening ingredients that slow the making or spreading of brown pigment. They work slowly, over months.
Balm	A solid or near-solid mix of waxes and oils, with little or no water.
Barrier (skin barrier)	The outer layer of skin, which keeps water in and irritants out, like brick and mortar.
Bisabolol	A soothing ingredient first found in chamomile flowers.
Blepharoplasty	Eyelid surgery. A "lower bleph" removes or moves under-eye fat and sometimes skin.
BOGO	"Buy one, get one free", a shop offer.
Botox	An injection, given by a doctor or nurse, that relaxes a muscle for some months so the lines it makes soften. No cream does this.
Brightening	Making skin look less dull or less brown.
Caffeine (in skincare)	Narrows small blood vessels for a while, which reduces puffiness and redness a little.
Chemical peel	An acid put on the skin in a clinic so the top layer peels off and fresh skin grows back.
CO2 laser / resurfacing	A strong laser that burns away a very thin top layer of skin so new, smoother skin grows. "Resurfacing" means any treatment that does this.
Collagen	The protein "scaffolding" that makes skin firm, like the springs in a mattress.
Colour corrector	A peach, orange or pink makeup that cancels blue or purple before concealer.
Concealer	Thick, skin-coloured makeup used to hide dark circles and spots.
Creasing (of concealer)	Concealer collecting in lines when you smile, leaving visible streaks.
Crepey skin	Thin skin with very fine, criss-cross wrinkles, like crepe paper.
Cross-linked	Chemically tied together. Filler gel is hyaluronic acid cross-linked so it lasts months instead of a day.
Crow's feet	Lines fanning out from the outer corner of the eye.
CT scan	A 3-D X-ray picture of the inside of the body, here the skull.
Dark circles	Any darkness under the eyes: brown, blue or purple, or a shadow.
Dehydration lines	Very fine lines that appear when skin is short of water and fade when it is moisturised.
Dermatochalasis	Loose, extra eyelid skin.
Dermatologist	A skin doctor.
Dermis	The thick middle layer of skin, which holds collagen and elastin.
Dummy (placebo) cream	A cream with no active ingredient, used in a trial for comparison.
Eczema	A long-lasting skin condition: dry, itchy, red, sometimes cracked skin. On the eyelids it often comes from allergies.

Word	Plain meaning
Elastin	The protein that lets skin snap back after stretching, like elastic in a waistband.
Emollient	An ingredient that softens and smooths skin.
Epidermis	The thin top layer of skin.
Esters	Lab-made oils, light and silky, used to make creams and sticks glide.
Esthetician / medical esthetician	A trained skin-care specialist who does facials and skin treatments. A medical esthetician works alongside doctors. Neither is a doctor.
Festoons / malar bags	Puffy swellings lower down, on the top of the cheekbone.
Filler (HA filler)	A gel of hyaluronic acid injected by a doctor to fill a hollow.
Fine lines	Shallow, thin wrinkles.
Fragrance-free	No perfume added. (Unscented products can still contain masking scents. Fragrance-free is the better label.)
Functional cosmetic	A Korean legal category. Products with approved ingredients can claim to whiten, fight wrinkles or protect from the sun.
Goblet cells	Cells in the wet lining of the eye and inner lids that make the slippery mucus part of tears.
Humectant	An ingredient that pulls water in, like a sponge.
Hyaluronic acid (HA) / sodium hyaluronate	A sugar-based molecule that holds a lot of water. Sodium hyaluronate is its salt form, commonly used in creams.
Hydroquinone	A strong skin-lightening cream, prescription-only in many countries. Doctors limit how long it is used.
Hyperpigmentation	Extra brown pigment (melanin) in the skin.
INCI list	The full ingredient list, written in standard names, in order from most to least.
kDa (kilodalton)	A unit for the weight of large molecules: 1 kDa = 1,000 daltons. Small HA is about 50 kDa; anything over about 0.5 kDa (500 daltons) can't soak through skin.
LactMed	A US National Library of Medicine database about medicines and herbs, written for breastfeeding mothers. Its chamomile page is used here.
Lid-cheek junction	Where the lower lid meets the cheek.
Lower lash line	The edge of the lower eyelid where the bottom lashes grow.
Meibomian glands	Tiny oil glands in the lid rims that keep tears from drying out.
Melanin	The brown pigment in skin.
Meta-analysis / pooled	A study that adds up ("pools") the results of many earlier studies to get one overall answer.
Microneedling	A clinic treatment with a pen of tiny needles that makes many small pricks, so the skin repairs and thickens a little.
Milia	Tiny hard white bumps, like grains of sand under the skin. They are little cysts of trapped keratin (skin protein).
Mineral sunscreen	Sunscreen that uses zinc oxide or titanium dioxide. It is usually gentler around the eyes.
Multi-balm	A balm stick sold for many areas: eyes, lips, smile lines, neck.
Nano-fat	Your own fat, filtered into a very fine liquid and injected to improve thin skin.
Niacinamide	Vitamin B3. It helps the barrier, uneven pigment and redness.
Non-comedogenic	Made so it won't block pores (a claim, not a guarantee).
Occlusive	An ingredient that sits on top and seals water in.
Oculoplastic surgeon	An eye doctor who specialises in eyelid and eye-socket surgery.

Word	Plain meaning
Odds (in a study)	How much more likely something is. "Odds 6×" means about six times as likely.
Ophthalmologist	A medical doctor who specialises in eyes and does eye surgery.
Optometrist	An eye-care professional who tests vision and treats many eye conditions, but is not a surgeon.
Orbital fat	The fat cushion around the eyeball.
Orbital rim / orbital bone	The bony edge of the eye socket.
Patch test	Trying a product on a small patch of skin first to check for a reaction.
PDRN (polydeoxyribonucleotide)	Pieces of DNA, usually from salmon. It is injected in clinics. In creams it is a fashionable extra.
Peptides	Short chains of amino acids (protein building blocks) used as messengers in anti-ageing creams.
Periorbital	Around the eye.
Pigmentary demarcation lines	A natural, sharp border between darker and lighter skin, common in deeper skin tones, sometimes under the eyes.
Pilling	Product rolling into little balls on the skin when layered.
PMID	A study's number in PubMed, the US National Library of Medicine's index of medical research. Look it up at pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov.
POH (periorbital hyperpigmentation)	Doctors' name for brown darkness around the eyes.
PRP / PRF	Platelet-rich plasma or fibrin. Your own blood is spun and injected to improve skin quality.
Puffiness	Temporary swelling from fluid, usually worse in the morning.
Pulsed dye laser	A laser whose light is soaked up by red blood, so it shrinks small visible blood vessels.
Radiofrequency	A clinic device that heats the deeper skin to tighten it a little.
Randomised (trial)	People are put into groups by chance, so the groups are fair to compare.
Retinoid / retinol / retinal / tretinoin	The vitamin A family. They are the best-proven creams for lines, but can sting and dry the eyes. Tretinoin is prescription-only.
Retinyl palmitate / polyethoxylated retinamide	Two lab-made, gentler forms of vitamin A.
Rosacea	A long-lasting skin condition with redness, flushing and sometimes bumps on the face. The skin stings easily.
Septum (orbital septum)	The thin "wall" that holds eye fat in place.
Single-blind / double-blind	In a single-blind trial the people testing don't know which product they have; in a double-blind trial the researchers don't know either.
SOOF	The fat pad where the eyelid meets the cheek.
Spate	A company that measures beauty searches on Google and reports which ones are rising.
SPF	Sun protection factor: how well a sunscreen blocks the burning rays.
Syringoma	A small, flat, harmless bump of a sweat gland. Common under the eyes.
Systematic review	A study that gathers and weighs every earlier study on one question.
Tear film	The thin layer of water, oil and mucus that covers the front of the eye. Dry eye is a poor tear film.
Tear trough	The groove running from the inner corner of the eye down onto the cheek.
Tyndall effect	A blue tint under the skin when filler is placed too shallow.
µm (micrometre)	A thousandth of a millimetre. A sheet of printer paper is about 100 µm thick.

Word	Plain meaning
Vascular (dark circles)	Darkness caused by visible blood vessels.
Vitamin E (tocopherol)	A fat-soluble antioxidant that protects oils and skin from damage.
Waterline	The wet inner rim of the eyelid, right against the eyeball. Never put balm here.
Xanthelasma	Flat yellowish patches on the eyelids, sometimes linked to high blood fats.

2.1 Name, size, price, how long it lasts

Item	What we know	Source
Name on Amazon	"Luxe Cosmetics Luxe Korean Under Eye Balm – Lift & Firm 3-in-1 Multi Balm Stick, Hydrating, Smoothing, and Refreshing Eye Care for Dark Circles, Puffiness, and Fine Lines, with PDRN Collagen Extract"	Amazon affiliate's video description (7actG6FajQw, 2026-10-17), via the earlier report
ASIN	B0GYK3T766	earlier report
Form	A twist-up stick in a round tube. The current pack is lavender and printed "Luxe Korean under-eye balm" and "PDRN extract". Older images show a blue-grey pack: "Lift & Firm Multi Balm / WRINKLE CORE STICK / COLLAGEN EXTRACT / ELASTICITY".	product images,
Price on luxe.com	$39.95, "BUY 1, GET 1 FREE" banner (BOGO: buy one, get one free)	luxe.com product JSON and page
Price on luxeresearchlab.com	$34.99 (marked down from $39.95), "BUY 2, GET 1 FREE"; a second listing at $34.95	luxeresearchlab.com products.json
Price on Amazon	not found (Amazon not loaded)	—
Size (grams or ounces)	not found. The shop records give weight 0. Look-alike Amazon listings say 0.38 oz (about 10.8 g).	shop JSON; earlier report
Price per gram	not computable without a size. For comparison, the Korean rival sticks cost about $2.10–2.68 a gram (earlier report §5), or up to about $2.78 a gram for KAHI at $24.99 / 9 g on vitacost.com (2026-10-31).	earlier report §5; vitacost.com
How long one lasts	Three different answers from the brand: "About 60-75 days with twice-daily use" (luxe.com); "Approximately 30-45 days with twice-daily use" (luxeresearchlab.com); "One tube lasts about 2–3 months" (Amazon bullet, via an affiliate).	brand pages; earlier report
Monthly cost the brand claims	"Cost per month $15" (luxe.com comparison chart)	luxe.com
Where it is made	not stated	earlier report

For a buyer: at about $35–40 a stick, with BOGO roughly $17–20 each, and lasting somewhere between 1 and 3 months, the cost works out at roughly $6–40 a month. The spread is wide because the brand's own figures disagree.

2.2 What it looks, feels and smells like

Sense	What is known	Source
Look	A twist-up tube, lavender outside. The colour of the balm itself: not found.	images
Feel, as the brand describes it	"Absorbs in about 8 seconds... sets matte" (dries to a non-shiny finish); "No residue. No greasy layer between your skin and your makeup"; "No film. No residue. No waiting 10 minutes before applying makeup."	luxe.com; luxeresearchlab.com
Feel, as the Amazon listing describes it	"The lightweight balm absorbs quickly without feeling greasy."	search snippet of an Amazon listing, earlier report's notes

Sense	What is known	Source
Feel, as buyers describe it	"It feels like chapstick!" (@helenpapanagnostou8069); "a more solid version of vaseline... it definitely is hydrating" (@debbiecook3203); "It seems like it is vaseline" (@LoriJones-o9x); "the product is a glorified Vaseline" (@YulieJ2012, eA_1gxIFJXk)	YouTube comments, hVadCZUeLzg and eA_1gxIFJXk
Smell	The brand says "No fragrance... No essential oils". What it actually smells like: not found. Unscented wax-and-oil balms usually smell faintly waxy or of nothing.	luxe.com

What to expect in the hand. Going by buyers' words and the way rival sticks are built, expect a firm, waxy-smooth balm like a soft lip balm. It glides when warm and leaves a slight soft sheen that settles after a minute or two. "Absorbs in 8 seconds" is a sales line. Wax-based balms stay on the surface, which is what they are meant to do.

2.3 Every ingredient, one by one

First, the problem. No full ingredient list (INCI) for this balm was found on luxe.com, luxeresearchlab.com, the shop data, the Amazon text we could see, or the pack images. The two Luxe shops name different "five actives".

luxe.com names	luxeresearchlab.com names	Pack and Amazon title

So the named ingredients across all sources are: adenosine, niacinamide, hyaluronic acid (sodium hyaluronate), bisabolol, vitamin E, argan oil, PDRN extract, collagen extract. Each is explained below. No percentages are given for any of them.

Adenosine (the lead ingredient)

- What it is. A small natural molecule found in all living cells. It is part of ATP, the cell's "battery". In skincare it is usually made in a lab.
- What it does on skin. It is used as an anti-wrinkle ingredient. Lab work suggests it nudges skin cells (fibroblasts, the cells that make collagen) to be more active. That lab work was not pulled here, so I mark it. What was pulled is a human trial.
- The evidence. A blind, randomised trial (people were put into groups by chance, and they didn't know which product was which), with a dummy cream for comparison:
  - who and what: 126 women aged 45 to 65. Each woman used two of three products (an adenosine cream, an adenosine film or a dummy cream), one on each side of the face, twice a day for 2 months. So 84 women tried each product, and some women had no dummy side;
  - result: "Both adenosine-containing products led to significant improvements in skin smoothness in the periorbital area. Improvements were evidenced after 3 weeks";
  - the cream also softened frown lines between the brows;
  - funding: L'Oréal ran it.
  - Source: Abella 2006, Int J Cosmet Sci.
- What strength. Korea's approved anti-wrinkle level is reported as 0.04% (secondary sources; MFDS list not pulled). Luxe's level: not found.
- Kitchen comparison. Like fertiliser on a lawn, not a carpet laid on top. It works slowly, if at all, and only with steady use.
- Side effects. It is usually described as gentle. No eye-area irritation data was pulled.
- What this means for Luxe. If there is a meaningful amount of adenosine in it, this is the ingredient most likely to give a small, real smoothing of fine lines after about 3 to 8 weeks of twice-daily use. The brand's line that adenosine "triggers collagen synthesis" goes beyond what the trial measured. The trial measured surface smoothness, not collagen.

Niacinamide (vitamin B3), named on luxe.com only

- What it is. A form of vitamin B3, one of the most-studied skincare ingredients.
- What it does. It strengthens the skin barrier, calms redness, and helps even out brown pigment by slowing the hand-over of pigment from pigment cells to surface cells. Dr Dray: "it disrupts the transfer of pigment packets from the pigment producing cells and melanocytes to the surrounding skin." (si9l1VZtzvQ)

- The evidence:
  - 12-week face trial. 50 women put 5% niacinamide on one half of the face and a dummy on the other, twice a day for 12 weeks. Result: "reductions in fine lines and wrinkles, hyperpigmented spots, red blotchiness, and skin sallowness (yellowing)", with better elasticity (Bissett 2005, Procter & Gamble).
  - 4-week eye-cream trials. An eye cream with niacinamide, peptides and caffeine improved crow's-feet smoothness at 4 weeks (Kaczvinsky 2009, P&G).
- For dark circles. It helps only the brown (pigment) kind, slowly. It does nothing for blue vessels or shadows. Doctorly names niacinamide among the ingredients "that are going to fade hyperpigmentation" (74eZe8KsHsw).
- Side effects. Some people find it stings. Dr Dray: "for those of you who are sensitive, you find niacinamide burns and stings, be aware of that." (si9l1VZtzvQ)
- For Luxe. Its amount is unknown, and the sister shop's list leaves it out, so you can't count on it being there. At typical balm levels, expect a small effect on brownness over 2 to 3 months at most.

Hyaluronic acid / sodium hyaluronate (named on both shops)

- What it is. A sugar-chain molecule that the body makes itself. It holds a lot of water. Sodium hyaluronate is the salt form most creams use.
- What it does. It is a humectant (sponge). It pulls water into the top layer and plumps it, so fine dry lines look softer at once.
- The evidence. 76 women aged 30 to 60 put 0.1% HA cream around one eye and a dummy around the other, twice a day for 60 days:
  - every HA cream "demonstrated a significant improvement in skin hydration and overall elasticity";
  - only the small-molecule versions (50 and 130 kDa; kDa, kilodaltons, is a unit for the weight of large molecules) also made wrinkles measurably shallower.
  - Source: Pavicic 2011, J Drugs Dermatol.
- A sticking point. HA dissolves in water, and a balm is mostly oil and wax, so it is usually present only in small amounts in a stick. Its type and size in Luxe: not found.
- Not the same as filler. HA filler is the same molecule, cross-linked (chemically tied together, like knitting loose threads into a net) into a gel and injected by a doctor. Rubbing HA on the skin is nothing like filler. Dr Karam explains that natural HA "breaks down in about 24 hours" in the body, which is why fillers are cross-linked (Z1P5oKFQokw).
- Side effects. Rarely irritating. One commenter says she is allergic: "For those of us with allergies to vitamin c and hyaluronic acid can't use any of the products you mentioned" (@JKayShill, 11 likes, eA9YIs-49sc).

Bisabolol (named on both shops)

- What it is. A soothing oil-like compound first found in German chamomile flowers. It is now often made in a lab or taken from the candeia tree. The US Library of Medicine's chamomile entry lists bisabolol as one of chamomile's ingredients (LactMed, the library's database on medicines and herbs during breastfeeding;, saved in. The candeia-tree source is my background knowledge.
- What it does. It is used to calm redness and irritation, and helps other ingredients feel gentler. Medicube's and Dr.Melaxin's sticks both contain it too.
- Evidence. No trial specific to the eye area was pulled. Treat it as a "helper", not a fix.
- Side effects. Chamomile extract can cause allergy in sensitive people: "Topical chamomile is a known sensitizing agent" (LactMed). Pure bisabolol is generally considered low-risk.

Vitamin E (tocopherol), named on both shops

- What it is. A fat-soluble vitamin and antioxidant (it stops "rusting" damage from sunlight and air). In balms it also stops the oils going rancid.
- What it does. It protects oils and the skin surface, and softens. It is a supporting ingredient. Dr Dray mentions vitamin E only in passing, alongside vitamin C.
- Evidence on allergy. At Mayo Clinic Arizona, 18 of 2,950 patients patch-tested over 20 years (0.61%) reacted to alpha-tocopherol: "Vitamin E appears to be a relatively rare contact allergen" (Adams & Connolly 2010).
- For Luxe. It is good for keeping the balm fresh and the skin soft. It won't change dark circles or lines by itself.

Argan oil (named on luxeresearchlab.com and on one claim image)

- What it is. An oil pressed from argan tree nuts in Morocco. It is rich in fatty acids and vitamin E.
- What it does. It is an emollient: it softens and smooths dry skin and adds slip.
- The evidence. 60 post-menopausal women all rubbed argan oil on one forearm for 60 days (half also ate it). The skin's elasticity readings improved where it was applied (Boucetta 2015). That was forearm skin, not eyelids, and there was no untreated comparison arm for the rubbed oil.
- For Luxe. It probably helps the stick glide and makes the skin feel softer. Plant oils can very occasionally irritate. It is a nut oil, so people with tree-nut allergies may want to ask a doctor before using it.

"PDRN extract" (current pack and Amazon title)

- What it is. PDRN means polydeoxyribonucleotide: fragments of DNA, usually from salmon (milt, that is, sperm). In clinics it is injected (the "salmon sperm facial", Rejuran). There are also plant "PDRN" versions. Which kind Luxe uses: not found.
- The evidence:
  - Injected: a review of 9 small, low-to-moderate-quality studies (219 patients) found promising results for injections (Lampridou 2025).
  - On the skin: mostly unproven. Dr Dray in the pads report: "highly, highly, highly doubtful that these skincare products with PDRN do anything above and beyond moisturize the skin" (earlier report). The fragments are far too big to soak in (500-dalton rule).
- Allergy note. Salmon-derived PDRN could matter to someone with a fish allergy.
- For Luxe. It is a fashionable name on the pack. Expect it to add nothing you can see.

"Collagen extract" (old pack, Amazon title)

- What it is. The protein that holds skin together, taken from animal or fish skin. "Vegan collagen" is usually a plant protein that imitates it.
- What it does on skin. It forms a moisturising film on top. It cannot get in and become your collagen. Collagen is a huge molecule, and molecules must be under about 500 daltons to pass the outer skin. Only a lab study using fat bubbles (liposomes) on artificial 3D skin showed more collagen staying in the outer layers.
- For Luxe. A moisturiser. Nothing more.

What is probably holding it all together (the base), my reading only

Every stick needs a base. Luxe doesn't publish one. If it matches its rivals (see 1.5), the base will be:

- Waxes (candelilla, microcrystalline, synthetic): these make it solid. Candelilla is a plant wax; microcrystalline is a petroleum wax, like the wax in Vaseline-type products.
- Liquid oils and esters (caprylic/capric triglyceride, a coconut-derived oil; octyldodecanol; hydrogenated polyisobutene, a silky synthetic oil): these make it glide and feel soft.
- A thickener (silica, for example): makes it less greasy.

These are what really give the "feels like chapstick / Vaseline" result buyers describe.

The "free-from" claims, explained

Claim (brand)	What it means	Why it matters around the eyes
"No retinol"	No vitamin A.	Retinol is the best-proven anti-wrinkle cream, but near the eyes it often stings, dries and can upset the tear-oil glands. A 2026 review that pooled (added together) 89 studies of 10,794 people found topical vitamin A near the eyes raised the odds of pain (6.37×, meaning pain was about six times as likely), dryness (2.69×) and burning (2.44×). Prescription strength carried most of the risk. "non-prescription formulations were not significantly associated with increased harms"
"No fragrance"	No added perfume.	Fragrance is among the most common causes of eyelid allergy. The American Academy of Ophthalmology's 2025 review of patch tests lists "fragrance mixes", balsam of Peru and cinnamic alcohol among allergens with at least 10% positive results in eyelid dermatitis

Claim (brand)	What it means	Why it matters around the eyes
"No essential oils"	No plant perfume oils (lavender, rose, bergamot and so on).	These are fragrance by another name. Medicube's stick contains geranium, ylang-ylang, bergamot and rose oils (medicube.us INCI)
"No alcohol"	No drying alcohol (ethanol).	Drying alcohol can sting thin skin. ("Fatty alcohols" like cetyl alcohol are different and harmless; the brand doesn't say which it means.)
"No parabens", "No artificial colors"	No paraben preservatives; no added dyes.	Mostly a marketing reassurance. Parabens are rarely the problem around the eyes. Another preservative, methylisothiazolinone, is on the AAO allergen list. Which preservative Luxe uses: not found.

2.4 The claims it makes, word for word

All are from luxe.com and luxeresearchlab.com unless marked. The right column gives the plain meaning and, briefly, whether it has been measured for this product.

Claim	What it means in plain words, and how it stands
"Better-Looking Eyes in 14 Days. Or You Don't Pay a Cent."	A two-week promise plus a refund offer. Two weeks is enough for moisture effects, and early for anything else.
"Visibly smoother, firmer skin in 14 days."	"Smoother" is plausible from moisture. "Firmer" has no measured support for this product.
"Disappears under makeup without creasing."	A texture claim. It depends on how much you use.
"Calms, never stings · No retinol. No burn"	Plausible for a fragrance-free, retinol-free balm. No one can promise "never".
"One balm, whole routine · Five actives, one swipe"	Convenience. It does not replace sunscreen.
"Built around adenosine, the anti-wrinkle active Korea's MFDS approved back in 2014."	Adenosine is on Korea's anti-wrinkle list (secondary sources). The year was not confirmed: one source says 2003.
"the only anti-wrinkle active officially recognized by the Korean MFDS"	Secondary sources list vitamin A forms on the same list too.
"It triggers collagen synthesis"	A drug-type claim (section 11). Not measured for this product.
"Most women notice a visible difference within 7-10 days... Puffiness and dark circles typically improve first, followed by smoother texture and reduced fine lines over 3-4 weeks." / "The full collagen response peaks around day 28."	The timeline is not backed by any study we could see. Puffiness and dark circles usually don't respond to a balm (section 6).
"Absorbs in about 8 seconds. Works for 12+ hours."	Not measured for this product. Wax balms sit on the surface.
"Tested on women 40-65, not 'all ages'." / "dermatologist-tested"	Not measured for this product in any report we could see.
"96% saw visibly smoother under-eyes within the first week..." (from "a 2,431-customer satisfaction survey, Q1 2026")	What customers said in a survey. Not a measurement of the skin.
Image: "Reduced the total wrinkle area around the eyes by 44.9%"; "Improved skin smoothness by up to 20.7%"	Not measured for this product in any study we could see.
Comparison chart: Luxe ticked for "Fixes collagen loss", "Fixes pigment pooling", "Fixes barrier collapse"	Drug-type claims. A balm can support the barrier; "fixes collagen loss" is not supported.
"Lift & Firm" (Amazon title); "Clinically Tested to Lift What Time Pulls Down" (image)	No cream lifts tissue (section 6.6).

Claim	What it means in plain words, and how it stands
"Use Luxe in the morning, your other actives at night." / "Apply it after cleansing and before moisturizer or makeup. It doesn't conflict with retinol, vitamin C serums, or SPF."	Sensible routine advice.
"Dab gently around the under-eye area... Pat softly until absorbed... Use morning & night" (image)	Sensible directions.

3. How to use it, step by step

3.1 The steps

The brand's own directions are short: "Dab gently around the under-eye area... Pat softly until absorbed... Use morning & night." The FAQ adds: "Apply it after cleansing and before moisturizer or makeup." Below is the same thing in full detail. Where a step goes beyond the brand, I say whose advice it is.

Step	What to do	Why	Source
1	Wash your hands.	The stick touches your face; your fingers then press it in.
2	Clean your face with a gentle cleanser, or just water in the morning. Take off eye makeup gently: hold the remover on the eye for 10–20 seconds before wiping.	Scrubbing thin skin is one cause of crepiness and dark circles.	Dr Sam Ellis: "apply it to your eyes and then let it sit there for 10 to 20 seconds and start to break down your makeup" (XKROvYsp0QM)
3	Pat the skin almost dry. If you use a toner or a thin hydrating serum, put it on first and let it sink in for a minute.	Thin, watery products go before thick ones. A balm on top seals the water in.	Rule of thumb: thinnest to thickest. Dr Sam Ellis: "if you're using a hydration serum... make sure you're bringing it up under your eyes"
4	Twist up only a little, about 1–2 mm.	Too much stick out of the tube means too much product and more drag.
5	Warm it. Hold the tip against the back of your hand or the skin for 2–3 seconds.	Warm balm glides instead of tugging.	. Kim Sullins uses the ring finger "because it warms the product. It helps it melt and spread beautifully" (eA9YIs-49sc)
6	Glide one light line along the bone below the eye, from the outer corner inwards. Don't press. Keep it on the orbital bone, not up on the eyelid rim.	Outer-to-inner is the common pro advice. The bone is the safe zone.	Renée Rouleau, esthetician: "go from the outside in" (PC3NL1HOdBU, 506,336 views). Dr Sam Ellis: "always stay over the bone. You never want to go inside the eye socket" (XKROvYsp0QM)
7	Keep it about half a centimetre (a fingertip's width) below the lashes, never on the waterline.	It spreads upwards with body heat and blinking. On the waterline it can block the tear-oil glands and make eyes water.	A commenter: "What helps me is to not let ANY product touch the water line of my eyes... My eyes used to water all day long" (662 likes, iwyLM5aJ7mE). Renée Rouleau: "don't go too close if you go too close it's going to seep into the eyes"
8	Tap it in with your ring finger. Use small, light pats, like testing whether a cake is cooked. Don't rub.	The ring finger is the weakest, so it presses least.	Renée Rouleau: "choose the right finger and in this case it's the ring finger because it's the weakest finger... you don't want to rub you want to just do a gentle padding motion"
9	Amount: about a grain of rice per eye, which for a stick is one light swipe per side.	More is not better; it just sits on top, can pill under makeup and may spread into the eye.	A dermatologist quoted in Vogue Philippines recommends "the equivalent of a grain of rice for each eye" (via WebSearch summary, vogue.ph)
10	Optional extras: a light swipe on crow's feet (outer corners), the lines between the brows, smile lines and lips.	Multi-balms are made for many places.	Kahi demo DHz_sw_YMTI

Step	What to do	Why	Source
11	Wait 1–2 minutes before the next step.	Lets it settle so sunscreen and concealer don't slide.	. The brand says 8 seconds; that is a sales line.
12	Morning: sunscreen next, ideally a mineral (zinc oxide) one around the eyes. Then concealer.	Sun is the biggest preventable cause of eye-area ageing. Mineral sunscreens sting less.	Dr Dray: "choose zinc oxide sunscreens. They tend to be much easier to tolerate on eyelid skin" (si9l1VZtzvQ)
13	Night: use it as the last step around the eyes.	It seals in moisture overnight.
14	Wipe the tip with a clean tissue and put the cap on. Don't share it. Stop using it during any eye infection, and throw it away afterwards.	A stick touches skin directly.	; Bankson raised hygiene (LmP5MWmL8cs)

Using it before concealer (the main everyday use).

1. Use a thin layer of balm and wait a minute.
2. Put on sunscreen.
3. Put only a little concealer where it is darkest, usually the inner corner. Wayne Goss, makeup artist: "most people tend to have darkness on the inside corner of the eye". He also says there is an area "that doesn't move" when you smile: "that's where you need to apply concealer" (6,212,002 views).
4. Tap the concealer in, and don't powder straight away. Lisa Eldridge, makeup artist: "don't set it, don't use powder, put it on and talk for a bit, and then after about 5 minutes, you'll actually discover the areas that you crease in". Then wipe the concealer out of those creases with a tiny cotton bud (84,664 views).
5. If you powder, use very little.

3.2 Common beginner mistakes

Mistake	What goes wrong	Do this instead
Rubbing the stick back and forth	It tugs thin skin. Repeated friction can thicken the top layer and make lines more visible. Dr Sam Ellis: "skin does not do well with chronic friction"	One light glide, then tap.
Putting it right up to the lashes or on the waterline	Stinging, watery eyes, blurry vision, and possibly blocked oil glands	Stay on the bone, a fingertip below the lashes.
Using too much	Greasy look, concealer slides, pilling, product creeps into the eye	A grain of rice per eye.
Putting it on, then concealer straight away	The concealer slips and creases	Wait 1–2 minutes and use less concealer.
Skipping sunscreen because "the balm protects"	No SPF is claimed. Sun keeps thinning the skin.	Mineral sunscreen every morning, plus sunglasses.
Expecting it to remove bags or hollows	Disappointment	Find your problem type first (section 6.0).
Judging it on day one	Hydration is visible at once. Anything else needs 3–8 weeks.	Take photos in the same light on day 1 and week 4.
Taking photos in different light	Overhead light makes shadows; morning photos show more puffiness	Same window, same time of day, same angle, no makeup.
Using it with retinol on the same spot from day one	Stinging and peeling	See 4.3: alternate nights or "buffer".
Not patch-testing	A rash on the eyelids is miserable and slow to clear	Test on the jaw or behind the ear for 2–3 days first.
Using a friend's stick	Germs	Your own stick only.
Using it on broken, red or itchy eyelid skin	Can sting and worsen eczema (a long-lasting dry, itchy, red skin condition)	See a doctor about the rash first.

Mistake	What goes wrong	Do this instead
Leaving it in a hot car or on a sunny windowsill	It melts and loses shape	Store it at room temperature.
Pulling the skin tight to apply it	More stretching of thin skin	Look up into the mirror instead; the skin flattens on its own.

3.3 How long before you see anything

When	What you might see	What causes it	Source / strength
Minutes	Skin looks smoother, less papery; fine dry lines soften; concealer glides better	Moisture plumping the top layer (oils, waxes, HA)	Dr Dray on dehydration lines (si9l1VZtzvQ); strong for this short-term effect
A few hours	The smoothing fades as the balm wears off	It is surface moisture, not a change in the skin	"Remember any "difference" will last a few minutes" (commenter, hAc7jewvVWE)
1–2 weeks	Less flaky, tight or dry skin, if dryness was your main problem	A better-sealed barrier
3–8 weeks	Possibly slightly smoother crow's-feet texture	Adenosine (trial: smoother skin from week 3, kept up to week 8)	; the Luxe dose is unknown
4 weeks	Possibly smoother fine lines from HA and niacinamide-type ingredients	Measured in eye-cream trials at 4 weeks and 60 days
8–12 weeks	Possibly slightly less brown pigment	Niacinamide (12-week face trial)	; only if Luxe has enough niacinamide
Never	Fat bags gone, hollows filled, blue veins hidden, loose skin tightened	These sit too deep or are structural	Doctors in section 6

The brand's own timeline, for comparison: "Most women notice a visible difference within 7-10 days... Puffiness and dark circles typically improve first, followed by smoother texture and reduced fine lines over 3-4 weeks." The order is the wrong way round for a balm. Texture is the first and most likely change; puffiness and dark circles are the least likely.

4. Where it fits in a routine

4.1 The order of steps

A rule that works for every routine: thinnest to thickest, water before oil, sunscreen last in the morning (before makeup).

Order	Morning	Night
1	Rinse or gentle cleanse	Remove eye makeup gently, then cleanse
2	Toner or hydrating serum (optional)	Toner or hydrating serum (optional)
3	Treatment serum for the face (optional, e.g. vitamin C)	Treatment for the face (optional, e.g. retinol). Keep it off the eye area or buffer it (4.3)
4	Face moisturiser	Face moisturiser
5	Luxe balm under the eyes	Luxe balm under the eyes, last
6	Sunscreen (mineral near the eyes)	—
7	Concealer and makeup	—

Note: the second Luxe shop says to put the balm "before moisturizer". Either works. Under the eyes the balm can simply be the moisturiser, so there is no need to put face cream there too.

4.2 What it goes with

Goes well with	Why
A gentle, fragrance-free cleanser	Less irritation of the eyelids.
A hydrating serum with hyaluronic acid or glycerin, underneath	Water in, balm on top to seal.
Mineral sunscreen (zinc oxide)	Dr Dray: easier to tolerate on eyelids (si9l1VZtzvQ). Sunscreen sticks are handy near the eyes. Dr Dray: they are "less likely as you are applying it to run into your eyes" but "make sure you do a couple of coats" (Wu0-dqcm1wY)
A morning caffeine serum or gel, for puffiness	The balm has no caffeine named. Caffeine goes first (it's watery), then balm.
A cold compress or chilled spoons, for puffy mornings	Cold first, then balm.
Colour corrector and a little concealer	The balm is a smooth base.
Sunglasses and a wide-brimmed hat	Less sun damage and less squinting. Dr Sam Ellis: "the other reason it's important to protect your eyes from the sun is so you're not squinting so much" (XKROvYsp0QM)

4.3 What not to mix, or mix with care

Combination	Risk	What to do
Retinol / retinal / tretinoin near the eyes	Stinging, dryness, peeling, dry eye	Use the retinoid at night on alternate nights, or "buffer" it: balm first, retinoid on top. Dr Sam Ellis: "applying your moisturizer first under your eyes... and then layering the normal facial retinoid... the moisturizer underneath it will kind of act as a buffer" (XKROvYsp0QM). People with dry eye: skip retinoids near the eyes. Dr Sam Ellis: "for people who are prone to dry eye, I don't recommend putting a retinoid near your eyes"
Exfoliating acids (glycolic, lactic, salicylic; glycolic and lactic acid are AHAs, alpha hydroxy acids) and acid pads on the eyelids	Stinging, redness	Keep them on the face, away from the lids. Dr Ellis does say AHAs can be brought "up under your eyes... always stay over the bone". For beginners I'd say: don't
Another balm with retinol or essential oils (e.g. Medicube's PDRN stick)	More chances of irritation	Use one balm, not two.
Instant-tightening creams (film-formers)	Water-based products break the film. Dr Sam Ellis: "as soon as you add water to that... it breaks that netting apart". A balm on top may also stop it setting.	Use a tightener on its own on special days, not layered with balm.
Eye drops	Balm on the lids can get into the eye with the drops	Put drops in first and wait a few minutes before applying balm.
Contact lenses	Balm on fingers smears the lens	Put lenses in with clean hands before the balm.
Lash serum (e.g. Luxe's lash serum, upper lash line at night)	Two products crowding the lash line	Serum on the upper lash line; balm below the lower lashes, on the bone. Don't overlap.
Heavy powder over the balm	Cakey, creased look	Little or no powder.

4.4 Example routines

A. The absolute beginner (any age)

- Morning: rinse face → balm under eyes → sunscreen.
- Night: wash face → balm under eyes.

B. Woman over 60 with dry, crepey under-eyes, reading glasses and some dry eye

- Morning
  1. Rinse with lukewarm water and pat dry.
  2. A fragrance-free hydrating serum or face moisturiser on the face, not the lids.
  3. Luxe balm: one light swipe per side on the bone, tapped in with the ring finger, nowhere near the lashes.
  4. Mineral sunscreen (a stick is easiest), two coats around the eyes.
  5. If wanted: a peach corrector or tinted eye brightener tapped on the inner corner only, then a touch of concealer. Little or no powder.
  6. Sunglasses outdoors.
- Night
  1. Take off makeup gently: let the remover sit for 10–20 seconds.
  2. Gentle cleanse.
  3. Face moisturiser.
  4. Luxe balm under the eyes.
  5. If you use a retinoid: on the face only, 2–3 nights a week, and not near the eyes if you have dry eye.
- Weekly: one look in the same mirror and the same light, to judge honestly.
- Why this shape: thin, post-menopausal skin dries easily (section 5.3). Retinoids near the eyes raise the odds of dryness and burning. Older women get dry eye more often: Dr Rupa Wong says "dry eyes unfortunately is more common in older women 50s 60s and those are the women that tend to be using the retinol" (N7Zl2keLo1M).

C. Puffy every morning

- Morning: cold compress or chilled spoons for 1–2 minutes → caffeine serum → balm → sunscreen.
- Night: less salt and alcohol in the evening, sleep with the head slightly raised, balm under eyes.
- Source for the habits: Dr Michael Chua, nj_VYMVtKrQ: "it also helps to elevate your head when you sleep"; salt "causes fluid retention particularly around your eyes".

D. Concealer wearer whose makeup creases

- Morning: balm → wait 2 minutes → sunscreen → concealer on the inner corner only → wait 5 minutes → wipe out the creases → only a little powder.

E. Retinol user with lines

- Night A: balm under the eyes first, then a gentle eye retinoid on top (buffered).
- Night B: balm only.
- Morning: balm → sunscreen.

F. Sensitive, allergy-prone or eczema-prone eyelids

- Patch-test first.
- Fragrance-free everything, and treat the allergies (antihistamine tablets or drops, after asking a pharmacist or doctor).
- Some dermatologists prefer plain, well-tested protectants here. Dr Dray: petrolatum, or a glycerin skin protectant such as "La Roche-Posay Cicaplast Gel" (si9l1VZtzvQ).

5. Who it's for and who it isn't

5.1 By need, age, skin, eye type and budget

Who	Fit	Why
Dry, crepey, papery under-eyes	Good	Oils and waxes seal water in; this is exactly what a balm does.
Concealer that creases or cakes	Good	A smoother, moister base. Use thin layers.
Fine lines and early crow's feet	Fair	Moisture blurs them at once; adenosine may help a little over weeks (dose unknown).
Eyes that sting with retinol or fragranced creams	Good, if the free-from claims are true	Retinol-free and fragrance-free (brand claims). The full list can't be checked.
Brown (pigment) dark circles	Weak	Niacinamide is named on one shop only, at an unknown amount. Sunscreen matters more.
Blue or purple (vascular) dark circles	Poor	Nothing in it targets vessels. Use colour corrector or see a doctor about lasers.
Shadow from hollows or tear troughs	Poor	A structural problem. Only fillers, fat or surgery change it.
Morning puffiness	Weak	No caffeine is named. Cold and lifestyle changes help more.
Permanent fat-pad bags	None	Only surgery removes them.
Milia-prone skin	Use with care	Rich, waxy products are often blamed, though proof is thin (section 6.12).
Oily skin	Probably too rich	Bankson: multi balms "seal things in" (LmP5MWmL8cs).
Eyelid eczema, infection, or recent eye surgery	Not now	See a doctor first.
Known allergies (nuts, fish, chamomile, specific preservatives)	Check first	No full ingredient list. Argan is a nut oil; PDRN may be fish-derived; bisabolol comes from chamomile.
Age 30s–40s	Optional	A light moisturiser and sunscreen do most of the job.
Age 50s–60s	Good fit for texture, if bought for the right reason	Skin is drier and thinner (5.3).
Age 70+	Fine as a gentle moisturiser	The stick is easy to hold. Use a very light touch: skin tears and bruises more easily. One viewer: "The skin around my very elderly eyes has become delicate, so I must apply product which floats over it rather than drags." (@marilynwarbis7224, eA9YIs-49sc)
Hooded or heavy upper lids	Neutral	The balm is for under the eye. On the upper lid it may make eyeshadow slide.
Deep-set or hollow eyes	Low benefit	The shadow is structural.
Contact-lens wearers	Fine with care	Lenses in first; keep the balm off the lid edge.
Dry-eye sufferers	Fine with care	Keep it well away from the lid edge. Retinol-free is a plus.
Tight budget	Weak value	$35–40 with no stated size, against $19–25 Korean sticks with stated sizes, or a $10 tub of plain petrolatum or a $20 drugstore eye cream.

5.3 What changes in the eye area after 50 and 60, and why

1. The skin thins and dries, and menopause speeds this up.

- After menopause, skin collagen content, skin thickness and bone mass each fell "1-2% per year" (Brincat 1987, Obstet Gynecol).

- A second study by the same group found the fall in skin collagen was "preventable in women who were on sex hormone replacement therapy".
- Dr Dray: "especially in women around perimenopause, menopause. With the decline in estrogen, we lose some of our skin's water retaining ability" (si9l1VZtzvQ).
- Dr Sam Ellis: estrogen "makes the skin supple. And when you have a drop in it, it causes crepey skin everywhere on the body, including the under eyes" (XKROvYsp0QM).
- In plain words: each year after menopause the skin's "mattress springs" thin a little more, and it holds less water. Under the eye, where the skin is already the thinnest, this shows first.

2. Thinner skin shows what is underneath. Blood vessels and the purple muscle show through more, so darkness looks bluer and purpler with age. Dr Idriss at 42: "Some of it is literally because of my skin is getting thinner under my eyes and the blood vessels are coming through" (c6G0kjKQNGw, 129,176 views). Dr Sam Ellis: "as that skin thins out, you then can see all the other structures that exist under the eye, like the fat pad and the blood vessels".

3. The fat behind the eye grows forward and the "wall" weakens.

- An MRI study of 40 people found the soft tissue below the eye grew with age: 99 mm² at ages 12–29, 103 at 30–54 and 131 at 55–80. "The largest contributor to this size increase was fat expansion" (28, 31 and 43 mm²) (Darcy 2008, Plast Reconstr Surg).
- Doctors also describe the septum weakening. Dr Michael Chua: "the tissue that's supposed to be keeping the fat in its place loses its tightness and strength and as it loosens that fat can herniate forward" (nj_VYMVtKrQ).
- In plain words: bags in your 60s are usually real fat, sitting forward. No cream can melt it.

4. The cheek fat below shrinks, so a groove appears. Dr Karam: the cheek fat pad (SOOF) "starts to diminish and as a result of that eyes start to look hollow". He describes the over-50 eye as "a combination of excess soft tissue and deficient fat": bags above, hollow below (Z1P5oKFQokw, 1,223,488 views).

5. The bone changes.

- In CT scans (3-D X-ray scans) of the same 96 adults taken about 11 years apart, the "Orbital aperture area (+91 mm2)" (the opening of the eye socket) grew with age (Sifil & Kahn 2026, Aesthet Surg J). Note the group: 96 Caucasian adults (56 men, 40 women) whose average age at the first scan was about 35 (34.71), and "Most changes were most pronounced in participants aged 30 to 50 years". So this shows the bone change starting well before 50, not only after it.
- In 240 orbits, "The female bony orbit expands with age and is associated with a more anterior position of the globe" (the eyeball sits further forward).
- Dr Idriss: "our bone structure, the frame holding our face starts to get hollower and starts to slowly recede" (RVADMAuXNKM).
- In plain words: the "picture frame" of bone around the eye gets bigger, so the soft tissue sinks into it. That deepens the hollow.

6. Extra, loose skin. Dr Karam: "excess skin which is termed dermatochalasis again fancy word for just excess skin of the lower eyelid". The lower lid can also loosen and droop.

7. Decades of smiling and squinting set the lines. Crow's feet start as lines that come and go with expression and become permanent. Dr Dray: "those little wrinkles that you can see at first when you squint and then with time they just kind of seem a little bit more persistent" (a2Hot5ZsYU8).

8. Bumps become visible. As skin thins, oil glands show through as a pebbly texture. Dr Dray: "as the skin thins out those globs underneath the skin those sebaceous lobules... you can see them as a little bump" (Wu0-dqcm1wY, 299,999 views).

9. Dry eye becomes common, and products near the eye matter more. Dr Rupa Wong: "dry eyes unfortunately is more common in older women 50s 60s" (N7Zl2keLo1M). Dr Alan of Doctor Eye Health: preservatives and retinol near the lids can damage "the oil glands in the eyelids" (hql6k88BKP8, 9,090,726 views).

10. New sensitivities appear. Dr Sam Ellis: "it's not uncommon as you get older to develop sensitivities to certain things that you used to be able to tolerate on your eyes" (XKROvYsp0QM).

11. Practical changes. Stiffer fingers, shakier hands and needing reading glasses make tiny dabs of cream hard. A stick can be easier. A magnifying mirror and good front-facing light help.

6. Every problem the viewer has, one by one

6.0 First, find out which problem you have: four simple home tests

Dr Idriss: "looking tired is a description and that is not a diagnosis" (c6G0kjKQNGw). These tests sort the problems.

Test	How	What it tells you	Source
Pinch test	Gently pinch up a little under-eye skin between two fingers.	If the pinched skin is still brown, it is pigment. If it looks like normal skin, the darkness is a shadow or hollow (or vessels underneath).	Dr Dray: "if you pinch the skin up and the skin between your fingers looks like background skin, not hyperpigmented, guess what? It's likely hollows" (si9l1VZtzvQ)
Overhead-light test	Hold a light straight above your face (or face a window head-on).	If the darkness disappears with flat, front-on light, it is a structural shadow. If it stays, it is colour (pigment or vessels).	Dr Idriss: "If all shadowing disappears, then you, my friend, have a structural issue" (RVADMAuXNKM)
Morning-versus-evening test	Photograph your eyes on waking and at 6 p.m.	Worse in the morning and better by afternoon: fluid puffiness. The same all day, every day: fat bags.	Dr Michael Chua: "if you notice that your eye bags are always present then it's more likely an anatomic issue" (nj_VYMVtKrQ)
Stretch test	Gently lift the outer corner of the eye, or look up.	If darkness turns more blue or purple and fades a little when stretched, it is vessels or thin skin.	My reading, based on Doctorly's thin-skin explanation (74eZe8KsHsw)

Most people have more than one. Dr Idriss: "most of us, myself included, have more than one" (c6G0kjKQNGw). In a Korean study of 100 people with dark circles, 35% were vascular and 54% mixed (pigment plus vessels).

6.1 "I look tired all the time" (the umbrella complaint)

- What it is. A general look of fatigue, made up of the problems below.
- Why it happens. A long lid-cheek junction, hollows, bags, darkness and crepey skin (sections 5.3 and 6.2–6.10).
- How it feels.
  - Viewers' own words: "I hate it when people say, "You look tired", and I'm not." (@ScottishWoman24, 307 likes, cNlcapwWdaw). "Without doing my under eyes people look at me and exclaim, "Oh. My. Goodness! Are you okay??! Did someone hit you???" Uuuugh, that drives me CrAzY!" (@krakked88, 5 likes, MX95EGYDkkU). [reviews #355, #307]
  - Clinicians report patients worrying about "under-eye hollows (91%), dark eye circles (80%), and looking tired (60%)" (survey of 39 practitioners). Dr Idriss: "you have been personally victimized by the question, "Are you tired?" Despite the fact that you had 10 hours of sleep" (RVADMAuXNKM). The Luxe page itself leads with: "If you sleep 7 hours and still look tired, it's not the sleep."
- What people try, and why it fails. More sleep, more concealer and pricey creams each fix at most one layer.
- What this balm can do. It fixes the "dry, crepey surface" layer, which is often the layer concealer sits on. It does not fix the others.

6.2 Dark circles: the brown (pigment) kind

- What it is. Extra brown pigment (melanin) in the under-eye skin. Sometimes it's a sharp line of darker skin, common in deeper skin tones.
- Why it happens:
  - genetics: Doctorly, "A lot of people have this just genetically" (74eZe8KsHsw);
  - sun: "sun exposure with time... can lead to basically tanning of this area, and a lot of people neglect to put sunscreen on the areas around their eyes";
  - rubbing, eczema and allergy, which leave dark marks: "allergies to your skin care products... Allergy to your nail products, actually very common cause of eyelid reactions";
  - in deeper skin tones, "pigmentary demarcation lines" (a natural, sharp border between darker and lighter skin; Dr Dray, si9l1VZtzvQ).
- How it feels. "I have fought DARK circles ALL MY LIFE!! I just turned 60" (@kristengomerimhof4633, vQ1wyKafvWI, from 05 report). "I have hereditary dark circles and now eye bags/ lines at 48." (@dominiquedeangelo2616, 21 likes, QbvzKn9GG_w).

- What people try, and why it fails. Thick concealer: covers the colour but shows texture (Wayne Goss: concealer makes skin "look more lined"). Expensive "brightening" eye creams: slow, and useless without sunscreen.
- What can fix it:
  - Daily sunscreen, tinted if possible (the iron oxides block visible light): "use a tinted sunscreen... Tinted because they contain iron oxides" (Doctorly).
  - Brightening creams, slowly: niacinamide, vitamin C, azelaic acid, kojic acid, tranexamic acid, alpha arbutin, retinoids (Doctorly; Dr Dray). All of these are ingredients that slow the skin's making or spreading of brown pigment; azelaic and kojic acid come from grains and fungi, tranexamic acid is also a medicine, and alpha arbutin comes from bearberry-type plants.
  - Hydroquinone (a strong skin-lightening cream) only with a dermatologist: "you don't really want to use that longer than 2 months without really talking to a dermatologist" (Doctorly).
  - Chemical peels and lasers. A chemical peel is an acid put on in a clinic to make the top layer of skin peel off and regrow. A systematic review (a study that gathers and weighs all the earlier studies on one question) found: "Various topical creams and chemical peels are useful in treating pigment-based POH" (POH: periorbital hyperpigmentation, brown darkness round the eyes;).
- This balm. It helps only if niacinamide is truly present at a useful level. It can't be checked, and one Luxe shop leaves it out. Weak.

6.3 Dark circles: the blue or purple (vascular, thin-skin) kind

- What it is. Veins and congested blood, and the purplish muscle, showing through thin skin.
- Why it happens. Thin skin: "underneath the eyelids, we have very prominent vasculature... blood vessels underneath this thin skin that causes a tint" (Doctorly). Allergies and congestion: Dr Sam Ellis, "you also can get a little bit of congestion of the blood vessels under the eyes, which makes dark circles worse". Ageing thins the skin further (5.3).
- How it feels. "Im 50, perimenopausal with blue/purple issue round the eyes" (@Luvbug64, eA9YIs-49sc, from 05).
- What people try, and why it fails. A skin-coloured concealer alone: blue shows through as grey. Brightening creams: they target brown, not blue.
- What can fix it:
  - Colour corrector first, then concealer. Kim Sullins: an "orange-based corrector... is going to cancel out those dark blue, brown undertones" (eA9YIs-49sc).
  - Caffeine and vitamin K creams, a little and temporarily: "caffeine-based creams that cause vasoconstriction of the blood vessels... at least temporarily while these caffeine creams are on" (Doctorly). One small trial (11 women) of a 3% caffeine + 1% vitamin K pad found less darkness and fewer wrinkles at 4 weeks, but it was small and single-blind (the women didn't know which product they had, but the researchers did).
  - Treat allergies: an antihistamine (Dr Sam Ellis; Doctor Eye Health).
  - Retinoids to thicken the skin slowly: "they will thicken the skin in the area... over long period of time" (Doctorly).
  - Lasers that target vessels: "If you want to eliminate it permanently, then laser that targets blood vessels" (Doctorly); Dr Idriss names the pulsed dye laser (a laser whose light is soaked up by red blood, so it shrinks small vessels). The review: lasers are "mildly to moderately beneficial for both vascular and pigment types".
  - PRP injections (platelet-rich plasma: your own blood, spun to concentrate it, then injected): Dr Sam Ellis says "It really helps with dark circles and improving the quality of the skin".
- This balm. Poor. Nothing in its named list targets vessels. A moist surface reflects light a little more evenly, which is a tiny optical help.

6.4 Dark circles: the shadow kind (structural)

- What it is. Not a colour at all. A dip below the eye catches a shadow, like a dent in a wall.
- Why it happens. Bone shape, a deep tear trough, loss of the fat pad, and bags casting a shadow below them. Doctorly: "the shadow coming from the orbital rim, the bony structure here to just cast a shadow underneath the eye... that could just be your lighting". Dr Idriss: "Think of your under eyes like a dent in a wall. You can paint over it... But if that dent is still there, you will always see a shadow" (RVADMAuXNKM).
- How it feels. "Hollowing under the eye is a big problem." (@FLgurl100, 18 likes, T-qO5qhE82s, from 05).

- What people try, and why it fails. Concealer: it lightens the colour but can't fill a dent, and it creases in the groove. Creams: they can't add volume.
- What can fix it:
  - Lighting and makeup tricks. Face your light: "If you take photos, you want your camera your light to be facing you" (Doctorly).
  - Procedures: "Soft tissue fillers and autologous fat grafting are most effective in treating dark circles due to volume loss".
- This balm. None for the shadow itself.

6.5 Puffiness (fluid, worse in the morning)

- What it is. Swelling from water collecting in the soft tissue under the eye. It comes and goes.
- Why it happens:
  - Salt: "a lot of salty food that's going to cause water to accumulate in your tissues leading to swollen puffy eyes" (Doctor Eye Health, hqI6k88BKP8).
  - Crying: "the salt content of your tears ends up drawing water into the tissue" (same).
  - Allergies: "histamine... cause[s] your blood vessels and your tissues to swell up" (same).
  - Lying flat, too little sleep, alcohol: Dr Michael Chua.
  - Age: "Fluid accumulates there" as support weakens (Dr Dray).
- How it feels. "I have pretty puffy lower bags... Looks like I'm keeping my bags packed for the duration of my trip on earth." (@rtbrain, 267 likes, hqI6k88BKP8). "I've noticed that my eye bags tend to minimize and even go away when I do a lot of cardio and sleep right." (@hartsickdisciple, 5.5K likes, hqI6k88BKP8): that it comes and goes is the sign of fluid.
- What people try:
  - cucumbers, which only work by being cold: "it's really probably just the coolness of having a cold cucumber" (Doctor Eye Health);
  - tea bags (the caffeine helps a little);
  - expensive "de-puffing" creams.
- What can fix it:
  - Cold. "cold compresses will help shrink the blood vessels around the eye" (Doctor Eye Health); "put some spoons in the refrigerator" (Dr Chua). A viewer warns against frozen spoons: "the extreme cold on a metal spoon will actually freeze burn the surface, a cold spoon will suffice" (@petebailey1652, 95 likes, hqI6k88BKP8).
  - Head raised in bed. Dr Chua: "it also helps to elevate your head when you sleep". A viewer: "sleep with your head elevated... Also put a cold wet washcloth on your eyes every morning for at least 30 seconds" (@alanmorris7669, 3.3K likes, hqI6k88BKP8).
  - Less salt and alcohol at night (Dr Chua).
  - Treat allergies, and don't rub. "do not rub your eyes when you're having eye allergies it'll feel good at first but really it just makes things worse" (Doctor Eye Health).
  - Caffeine products, for some people: "Some people's puffiness will not be touched by caffeine" (Dr Dray).
  - Exercise and sleep, a lay observation: "my eye bags tend to minimize and even go away when I do a lot of cardio and sleep right" (@hartsickdisciple, 5.5K likes, hqI6k88BKP8).
- See a doctor when. The swelling is under one eye only, painful, itchy, red, or new and lasting. Cleveland Clinic: "if you have a dark circle or swelling under just one eye, call a healthcare provider" (my.clevelandclinic.org/health/symptoms/23128-dark-circles-under-eyes, last reviewed 05/25/2022). Doctorly: puffiness "can be associated with fluid retention, thyroid diseases, then nothing that you do cosmetically is really going to help" (iwyLM5aJ7mE).
- This balm. Weak. No caffeine is named. The cool stick, if kept in the fridge, plus gentle tapping may help for an hour. The brand's claim that "Puffiness... typically improve[s] first" is not supported.

6.6 Bags (fat pads)

- What it is. A permanent bulge of the fat that cushions the eyeball, pushing forward through a weakened "wall" (septum).
- Why it happens. Genetics and age. Dr Alan, Doctor Eye Health: "the true number one cause for under eye bags largely has to do with changes of your eyelid skin and the fat around your eyes... the fat behind it starts to push and it protrudes outward" (hqI6k88BKP8, 9,090,726 views). An MRI study showed fat expansion with age. Dr Karam calls them "pseudo bags", from a "weaker orbital septum" (Z1P5oKFQokw).
- How it feels:

    - "I've had eye bags since I was in grade school. I think I'd have to have them cut out." (1.1K likes, iwyLM5aJ7mE)
    - "I'm to the point where pulling them back with clothes pins is the only option" (375 likes, iwyLM5aJ7mE)
    - "The bags came out of nowhere within the past year...turning 67 next week. The bags are really bothering me" (@Babsrunning, eA9YIs-49sc)
    - "I was going through the 5 stages of denial watching this but at the end I reached acceptance. Less salt and a cold compress is all you can do." (@apb38, 1.9K likes, hql6k88BKP8)
    - "I WANTED AN EASY FIX ! ! ! But thank you for your honesty" (@boblossie3192, 56 likes, hql6k88BKP8)
- What people try, and why it fails. Creams. Doctor Eye Health: they are "only temporary as a fix they ultimately don't solve the issue". A commenter: "You can't treat eyebags with cream and stuff, as you get older." (59 likes, iwyLM5aJ7mE). An optometrist commenter: "There are so many myths about the fluid or fatty tissue around the eye being "removable" with products." (@maryhemphill9419, 73 likes, from 05).
- What can fix it:
    - Instant tighteners, for a few hours: a film that "tightens and basically causes the under eyes to essentially just collapse in on itself" (Doctorly). Good for "a photo shoot... a wedding". Downsides: it can flake and cause acrylate allergy (an allergy to the plastic-like film-formers in these creams, the same family as the glue in nail gels). One 67-year-old viewer uses one: "Loreal "Revitalift" eye bag instant eraser... It will stay put up to 10 hours." (@Babsrunning).
    - Filler in the groove beneath a bag, to soften the edge. Dr Chua: if the tear trough is "more sunken in then the bulge of a fat pad may appear more prominent" (nj_VYMVtKrQ).
    - Surgery: lower blepharoplasty. Dr Karam does it "from the inside of the eyelid" (transconjunctival), so there is no outside scar, and "trim a little bit of that puffy fat pad away". Viewer stories: "I had a lower lid blepharoplasty done at age 66 and never regretted it... now I look like the rest of the population" (@PigeonsPie1, 164 likes, hql6k88BKP8). "I had my under eye fat removed by a plastic surgeon... Once the fat was removed, it never came back. That was 35 years ago." (@lindamarie8308, 517 likes).
    - Cost is a barrier: "paid $150 consult fee only for them to tell me that the total cost was around 16k" (@rtbrain, 267 likes; a viewer's quote, not a price list). Typical surgery prices: not found.
- This balm. None. Calling it "Lift & Firm" doesn't change the fat.

6.7 Hollows and tear troughs

- What it is. A sunken groove from the inner corner of the eye down and out, sometimes all round the lower rim.
- Why it happens. The cheek fat pad shrinks, bone recedes, and the tear-trough ligament tethers the skin (sections 1.3 and 5.3). Some people are born with deep troughs: "some people are just born with deeper tear troughs" (Doctorly).
- How it feels. "Hollowing under the eye is a big problem." (@FLgurl100). "When I turned 48, my face just fell 😩 Bags, jowls, the whole 9!" (@RioGirl16, 31 likes, vQ1wyKafvWI; from 05).
- What people try, and why it fails. Plumping creams and "filler in a stick" balms. They can't add volume. The plumping is surface water.
- What can fix it:
    - HA filler, in small amounts. A meta-analysis (a study that adds up the results of many earlier studies) of 31 reports (2,556 people) gave a pooled (combined) satisfaction rate of 91.0%. Side effects: swelling 19.2%, bruising 18.4%, redness 7.1%, lumps 5.3%, blue tint (Tyndall effect) 0.9% (Liu 2024).
    - Doctors' cautions on filler:
        - Dr Karam: overfilled HA under the eye "becomes puffy and it actually becomes boggy and blue looking". He suggests "between a quarter to a third of a syringe of filler per side". Filler suits mostly "people in their 30s... maybe early 40s".
        - Dr Idriss: "a tiny amount can look beautiful in the right person... but too much of it can make somebody look puffy, heavy, or actually more tired" (c6G0kjKQNGw).
        - Dr Sam Ellis says she "often recommend[s] against" under-eye filler (XKROvYsp0QM).
    - Fat transfer: your own fat moved from the thighs or stomach. Dr Karam calls it "a permanent way to replace lost volume". Dr Idriss had nano-fat (your own fat, filtered into a very fine liquid and injected) under the eyes at 42 (c6G0kjKQNGw).
    - Treating the cheek to support the area. Practitioners agree "that midcheek volume was critical when treating tear-trough depression" (100% of 39 surveyed).
- This balm. None. At most, a moist surface makes the groove's edges a little softer to look at.

6.8 Crepey skin

- What it is. Thin skin with very fine criss-cross wrinkles, like crepe paper. It is most visible when you smile or look up.
- Why it happens:
  - Thin skin with less collagen and elastin: "crepey skin happens to basically everyone" (Dr Sam Ellis).
  - Sun.
  - Menopause (5.3).
  - Rubbing: "when you rub the skin, it almost creates like a defense mechanism and it causes something called epidermal hyperplasia... the thickening of the top layer of the skin actually leads to the appearance of more lines and wrinkles" (Dr Sam Ellis).
  - Lifelong squinting: a viewer, "I've squinted my whole life so even as a 13 year old I noticed crepe skin under my eyes" (@CateHammers, QbvzKn9GG_w).
- How it feels. "My creepy eyelids make me crazy." (@roseport20001, T-qO5qhE82s, from 05). "I get so afraid of using new products on my face but the under eye wrinkles are really upsetting and I'm so over it." (@francessimon2296, 18 likes, QbvzKn9GG_w).
- What people try, and why it fails. Instant tighteners (gone with water or by evening). Strong retinol (stings). Heavy concealer (sinks into the crepe).
- What can fix it:
  - Moisturise (an instant, temporary smoothing).
  - Sunscreen and sunglasses for prevention. A viewer: "Started SPF 50 under my eyes from about age 38 and now at age 58 have hardly any under eye lines." (@maxie-q4r, 292 likes, QbvzKn9GG_w).
  - Retinoids if tolerated, buffered.
  - Peptides, hydrating serums, and AHAs kept on the bone (Dr Sam Ellis).
  - Prescription topical estrogen: "it's particularly effective for the undereye area because that skin is so thin and responsive to estrogen" (Dr Sam Ellis).
  - In-office treatments (Dr Sam Ellis):
    - "one or two units of Botox right under the eye skin" for fine rippling;
    - PRP or PRF (your own blood, spun and injected);
    - microneedling (a pen of tiny needles that makes small pricks so the skin repairs itself), light peels and lasers. "CO2 lasers... are the most powerful things we can do to resurface the under eye area". (A CO2 laser burns away a very thin top layer of skin so new skin grows; "resurfacing" means exactly that.)
  - Surgery: a "skin pinch" to remove extra skin (Dr Karam).
- This balm. Its strongest use. It smooths the look of crepiness for hours; adenosine may add a little over weeks; and being retinol-free makes it easy to use every day.

6.9 Fine lines and crow's feet

- What it is. Fine lines are shallow wrinkles under the eye. Crow's feet fan out from the outer corners.
- Why it happens. Expression plus collagen loss plus sun: "chronic creasing of the skin from expression throughout our lifetime coupled with age related decline in collagen, collagen loss due to well good oldfashioned sun" (Dr Dray, si9l1VZtzvQ). Poor sleep: "people who are sleep deprived have more prominent signs of photo aging and they have deeper wrinkles" (Dr Dray, a2Hot5ZsYU8).
- How it feels. "62, no amount of collagen creams or fancy serums are going to make my skin bounce back to the skin of a 20 year old." (@K9que, 257 likes, hAc7jewvVWE). "I am 65, and no matter what I do, the fine and so fine lines show up." (@LindaLorge, 50 likes, MX95EGYDkkU).
- What people try, and why it fails.
  - Expensive eye creams. "I've spent several hundred dollars on everything imaginable, and not one single thing has changed about my eyes." (@December074, aged 50, si9l1VZtzvQ). Moisture softens lines for hours, but most creams have no proven active at a useful strength.
  - Face retinol taken up to the eyes. It works for some ("I've been using it for about 16 months now, and the area just keeps improving!", @TryMyMartini, aged 47, bQuVtFwFOA0) but dries and stings others ("I used to use a retinol undereye cream, and I felt I was going crazy because my eyes were getting so dry.", @ricky7111, XKROvYsp0QM).
  - "Botox in a stick" balms. "Definitely not "botox " in a stick" (iHerb review of the Dr.Melaxin stick, 2026-03-06). They moisturise; they do not relax the muscles that make crow's feet.
- What can fix it:

    - Topical vitamin A, which "probably is your best bet" (Dr Dray, a2Hot5ZsYU8). Use a gentle eye-strength version: "if you're using a retinol on your face it's... very likely it's too strong for the thin skin of the eyelids". Dr Dray recommends fragrance-free retinol eye creams such as Neutrogena Rapid Wrinkle Repair eye and Avène's retinaldehyde eye cream.
    - Moisturisers with humectants: "moisturizers have humectants like hyaluronic acid that plump up those superficial skin cells" (Dr Dray).
    - Sun protection and sleep (Dr Dray: "aim for eight hours").
    - Adenosine (one trial). Peptides: a small trial (21 women, 8 weeks) found palmitoyl pentapeptide-4 cream beat the dummy for crow's feet.
    - In-office: Botox for crow's feet; radiofrequency (a device that heats the deeper skin to tighten it) and resurfacing (lasers or peels that remove the top layer so new skin grows) (Dr Dray, a2Hot5ZsYU8).
- This balm. Fair. Instant softening from moisture; possibly a little more over 3–8 weeks.

6.10 Dryness and dehydration lines

- What it is. Tight, flaky or papery skin with very fine lines that fade when the skin is moisturised.
- Why it happens. Few oil glands; less water-holding after menopause (Dr Dray); harsh cleansers; dry air.
- How it feels. "Super dry skin, regardless of trying to consistently hydrate" (@Luvbug64, eA9YIs-49sc, from 05). "I find that it preps my parchment paper dry and thin inner under eye area beautifully" (@JLeigh75309, a dry-skinned "older person", utG6mhY7zGU).
- What people try, and why it fails.
    - Face moisturiser round the eyes. It works for many, but some find it too light or irritating there: "my lower face skin likes the gel creams and my eyes like thicker moisturizer" (@aceee4386, 313 likes, si9l1VZtzvQ); "I used your beloved Neutrogena hydra boost gel cream fragrance free under my eyes, I woke up with burned and puffy and dry under eye." (@Ellie-es4ms, 7-iXff77NC0).
    - Light, watery eye serums. "It does not have a hydrating effect." (Lookfantastic review of The Ordinary caffeine serum, 2026-08-31). Watery products add water but do not seal it in.
    - Drinking more water. Commenters link it to darkness ("My dark circles are worse when I don't drink water", @westcoastvibes1193, ShE3IVbZRbo), but water drunk does not stop water leaving the skin surface. A seal on top does that.
- What can fix it. Occlusive protectants. Dr Dray: "petroleum jelly does not cause milia", and a glycerin skin protectant at night has been "an absolute gamechanger... for keeping eyelid skin hydrated" (si9l1VZtzvQ). Kim Sullins: "you have got to hydrate your under eyes. It's one of the most important things you can do for yourself." (eA9YIs-49sc).
- This balm. Good. This is what a wax-and-oil stick does best.

6.11 Concealer creasing and caking

- What it is. Concealer collects in lines when you smile, leaving streaks and a dry, cakey look by midday.
- Why it happens:
    - The skin moves and bunches. Wayne Goss: "when we smile our cheeks lift up and that causes the lines underneath the eyes or the skin to bunch up" (g8fziC5EtOY).
    - Too much product, and powder "goes into lines and wrinkles as the day goes on" (same).
    - Dry skin "drinks" the concealer (Lisa Eldridge: "some people really drink it up").
    - Everyone creases differently: "It's unique. It's like a fingerprint." (Lisa Eldridge).
- How it feels:
    - "Every sales rep at every major cosmetics counter just sold me a concealer and told me to put it under my eyes which, of course, emphasized the bags." (@Anne-ux3ex, age 64, 509 likes, mx6mhz5cqjU; from 05)
    - "Concealer can make them look worse. It sits on top, settles into fine lines, and creases" (Kim Sullins's video description, eA9YIs-49sc)
- What people try, and why it fails. More powder: it looks drier. "Crease-proof" concealers: everyone still creases somewhere (Lisa Eldridge).
- What can fix it:
    - Hydrate first. One viewer: "I usually swipe a bit of aquaphor lip balm under my eyes and then I use just a little Mabeline instant age rewind... the Aquaphor helps to keep the concealer from getting chalky." (@barbarascully5451, eA9YIs-49sc).
    - Less concealer, and only where it is dark: inner corner, the area that "doesn't move" (Wayne Goss).
    - Wait, find your creases, and wipe them out (Lisa Eldridge).
    - Little powder, or a setting spray on a brush (Kim Sullins).

    - A sheer brightener or tinted eye cream instead of concealer (Kim Sullins, in her pinned comment on eA9YIs-49sc: "Concealer covers and sits on top. A brightener is sheer and uses light, so it moves with your skin as we age").
- This balm. Good, as the smooth, moist base. This is the most honest everyday reason to use it.

6.12 Milia and other little bumps

Bump	What it is	Why	Fix	Source
Milia	Tiny hard white cysts, like grains of sand	"probably more common around the eyelid area because the skin there is so thin"; also sun damage and skin injury	"no product is necessarily going to melt them away"; a dermatologist removes them; AHAs and retinoids "can help reduce the formation". Don't squeeze.	Dr Dray, Wu0-dqcm1wY
Prominent oil glands ("chicken skin")	A pebbly texture seen in side light	Thinning skin shows the oil glands	Sun protection; procedures	Dr Dray, Wu0-dqcm1wY
Sebaceous hyperplasia	Firm yellowish bumps with a small dip in the middle	Enlarged oil glands	Dermatologist removal	Dr Dray
Syringoma	"flatish bumps that are actually little non-cancerous tumors of the sweat gland"	Unknown, common	Dermatologist removal	Dr Dray
Xanthelasma / xanthoma	Flat yellow patches	"seen in people who have problems with their blood lipids"	Check blood fats; removal	Dr Dray

- Do rich balms cause milia? This is widely said, but I found no medical study proving that rich eye creams cause milia (earlier report §7.1 found none either). Dr Dray says outright: "petroleum jelly does not cause milia".
- How it feels. "Im prone to Milia & syringoma under the eyes" (@michahgarcia6064, wgWdHoI9leI). "It caused milia under my skin because it is a very rich cream with oils" (Lookfantastic review of Kiehl's Creamy Eye Treatment, 2026-10-21).
- What people try, and why it fails.
    - Squeezing or picking. Milia have no opening, so they don't squeeze out; picking thin skin leaves marks. Dr Dray: "no product is necessarily going to melt them away".
    - Exfoliating (AHA) products. One viewer, 68: "my milia is almost totally gone now from the Halo and Horns, All About The Base exfoliator" (@lindamarocco4583, MX95EGYDkkU). Exfoliation can slow new milia (Dr Dray), but it doesn't remove old ones quickly, and acids sting near the eyes.
    - Stopping all rich creams. People often do this, but no study was found proving rich creams cause milia (see above), and the skin then gets drier.
- This balm. It won't treat bumps. If you get milia easily, use a thin layer and watch for new bumps over 4 weeks.

6.13 Stinging, watery eyes, eyelid rashes (sensitivity)

- What it is. Burning, stinging, redness or itch when products go on; eyes that water.
- Why it happens:
    - Thin skin and product creeping into the eye.
    - Fragrance, preservatives, nickel and nail products. The AAO list: "Balsam of Peru..., cinnamic alcohol, fragrance mixes, gold, methylisothiazolinone, nail care products, neomycin, nickel, and personal care products".
    - Retinoids near the eyes.
- How it feels.
    - "What helps me is to not let ANY product touch the water line of my eyes... My eyes used to water all day long" (662 likes, iwyLM5aJ7mE).
    - On the Medicube stick: "Did it burn anyone else's face" (HxsOvh5HVzQ).

    - Even dermatologists react: Doctorly's two doctors, trying an eye cream on camera: "It's burning me. Me, too." (iwyLM5aJ7mE).
- What can fix it:
    - Fragrance-free, simple products.
    - Patch testing (formal patch tests at a dermatologist for repeat rashes).
    - Barrier protectants (Dr Dray).
    - Allergy control.
    - Keep products on the bone.
- This balm. A real plus, if the claims are true. Retinol-free and fragrance-free are the right choices for sensitive lids. The catch is that the full list can't be checked, so allergy-prone people can't rule out their personal triggers.

6.14 Dry eye made worse by products

- What it is. Gritty, burning, watery or tired eyes from a poor tear film (the thin layer of water, oil and mucus that covers the eye).
- Why it happens. Age and sex: "more common in older women 50s 60s" (Dr Rupa Wong). Retinol and some preservatives near the lid rims affect the meibomian glands (Dr Rupa Wong; Doctor Eye Health). "THANK YOU for mentioning how retinol may cause dry eye." (commenter, iwyLM5aJ7mE).
- How it feels. "I find my eyelids so dry" (@bcourtney4024, Y_xk7NUJf7k). "When I turned 70, I tried an eye cream... and, amazingly, helped with my dry eye condition so I don't need to use eyedrops as often." (@missmayflower, 70, si9l1VZtzvQ).
- What people try, and why it fails.
    - More eye drops alone. Drops add water, but if the lid-rim oil glands are blocked or damaged the tears still dry fast.
    - Retinol near the eyes, buffered or not. "20 years ago I was using Tretinoin around the eyes, no can do any longer, regardless of sandwiching" (@tquirkyt7118, si9l1VZtzvQ). Dr Sam Ellis: "for people who are prone to dry eye, I don't recommend putting a retinoid near your eyes" (XKROvYsp0QM).
    - Oral allergy tablets for puffy eyes. Doctor Eye Health warns that oral antihistamines "often do dry out your tissues", so people taking them "can end up with really dry eyes" (hql6k88BKP8).
- What can fix it. An eye doctor's care (drops, lid hygiene). Keep all creams and balms off the lid margin; choose retinol-free products near the eyes.
- This balm. Retinol-free is a plus. Waxy balm on the lid rim is not. Keep it low.

6.15 Loose skin, hooding and festoons (briefly)

- What it is. Extra skin on the upper or lower lids (dermatochalasis); swelling pouches on the upper cheek (festoons or malar bags).
- How it feels. "Please do a video on hooded eyes due to age" (@roxannechapa2131, 64 likes, XKROvYsp0QM). "Please make a video on wrinkles around eyes and sagging eyelids." (@Knk.07, 175 likes, iwyLM5aJ7mE). "I had both upper and lower blefaroplasty done and it was the best thing ever. I'm 63... I had big fat herniation and sagging skin In both lids." (@MF-se1zl, 58 likes, bQuVtFwFOA0).
- What people try, and why it fails.
    - Firming or "lifting" creams. No cream removes extra skin; at most a film-former tightens it for a few hours.
    - Tape and "clothes pins". "I'm to the point where pulling them back with clothes pins is the only option" (375 likes, iwyLM5aJ7mE), said half in jest. Pulling the skin only stretches it more.
    - Thinking about surgery but held back by cost. "Unfortunately, I cannot afford a procedure" (@marialva9053, approaching 60, bQuVtFwFOA0).
- Fix. Surgery for extra skin (Dr Karam's "skin pinch"; blepharoplasty). Hooding of the upper lid is mainly surgical; some instant-tightening products give a few hours (Doctorly on RoC's two-part eye cream with a "glue polymer" for the upper lid).
- This balm. None.

7. How this product compares

7.1 The main alternatives, explained simply

Prices were pulled 2026-10-31 (sources: earlier report §5 and the pages named). Retail prices change often.

Alternative	What it is	Price	What's different from Luxe
Medicube PDRN Pink Collagen Volume Multi Balm	Korean stick, pink	$22 (was $26), medicube.us; 10 g (StyleKorean listing)	Full ingredient list published. Has PDRN (sodium DNA), adenosine, caffeine, peptides and retinol, plus geranium, ylang-ylang, bergamot and rose oils. Stronger mix, more irritation risk, cheaper.
Dr.Melaxin Cemenrete Calcium Multi Balm	Korean stick sold as "filler in a stick"	$19 / 9 g, drmelaxin.us	Full list published. Has adenosine and bisabolol too. Cheaper per gram. iHerb shows 4.5/5 from 731 reviews (2026-10-31).
KAHI Wrinkle Bounce Multi Balm	The original "pink stick"	$24.99 / 9 g (vitacost.com, pulled 2026-10-31)	The one that started the trend. Salmon complex and collagen (retailer text). Vitacost page: 4.56/5 from 243 reviews. KAHI also sells an Eye Balm stick, $24.80 / 9 g, 4.85/5 from 47 reviews (vitacost.com).
d'Alba Double Serum All In One Multi Balm Stick	Korean stick	$21 / 10 g, dalba.com	Has a "signature aromatic floral citrus fragrance". Not for fragrance-sensitive eyes. iHerb shows 4.8/5 from 241 reviews.

Alternative	What it is	Price	What's different from Luxe
Plain petrolatum (Vaseline, Aquaphor)	Pure occlusive	Not priced in this pull (drugstore staple)	Does the main job of a balm (sealing in water) for very little money. Dr Dray: "petroleum jelly does not cause milia". No actives.
Glycerin skin protectant gel (La Roche-Posay Cicaplast Gel, Prequel Skin Utility)	Dermatologist-favoured barrier gel	price not found	Dr Dray's own night eye routine (si9l1VZtzvQ).
Fragrance-free face moisturiser (e.g. CeraVe Moisturizing Cream)	Your normal cream, used round the eyes too	price not found	Dr Dray: "you do not need a dedicated moisturizing eye cream" (a2Hot5ZsYU8).
CeraVe Eye Repair / Skin Renewing Eye Cream	Drugstore eye cream with niacinamide and caffeine	$19.99 (Eye Repair, cerave.com)	A dermatologist favourite: Dr Dray found it gave "a nice brightening, hydrated, smoother appearance" (si9l1VZtzvQ). Has caffeine for puffiness.
The Ordinary Caffeine Solution 5% + EGCG	Caffeine serum	about $9–11 / 30 mL	Cheapest de-puffer. Works only for some people.
Retinoid eye creams (RoC Retinol Correxion eye; Neutrogena Rapid Wrinkle Repair eye; Beauty of Joseon Revive Eye Serum with retinal; Olay Retinol 24 eye)	Vitamin A creams for the eye area	RoC $21.99 / 15 mL; BoJ $17 / 30 mL; Olay $22 / 15 mL; Neutrogena price not found	The best-proven creams for lines and crepiness. Can sting; caution with dry eye. Luxe is the gentler, weaker option.
Instant tighteners (Peter Thomas Roth Instant FIRMx Eye; L'Oréal Revitalift eye bag "instant eraser"; Plexaderm)	Film-forming creams that tighten as they dry	PTR $39 / 30 mL; others not priced	Dramatic for a few hours; can flake or cause allergy. Luxe doesn't do this.
Tinted brighteners and correctors (e.l.f. eye brightener, e.l.f. Camo Corrector, tinted eye creams)	Makeup	e.l.f. brightener "the $7 solution" (Kim Sullins)	Hide colour at once. Luxe hides nothing; it's the base underneath.
Cold eye gel patches	Hydrogel patches	not priced	De-puff in 10–20 minutes. Dr Dray: "I'm a big fan personally of those under eye gel patches".
Procedures	Filler, fat transfer, PRP, lasers, microneedling, Botox, blepharoplasty	not found (one viewer quoted ~$16,000 for surgery)	The only fixes for hollows, bags, vessels and loose skin.

7.2 When to pick this product, and when to pick something else

If your main problem is...	Pick...	Why
Dry, crepey skin, and you like a stick	Luxe, or a cheaper Korean stick with a published ingredient list	Both do the main job. The rivals cost less per gram and say what's inside.
Dry, crepey skin, and you're sensitive to fragrance or retinol	Luxe (or a plain protectant)	Retinol-free and fragrance-free is Luxe's one real difference from Medicube and d'Alba.
Concealer creasing	Luxe or any light balm, plus technique	It's the base layer; technique does the rest.
Fine lines, and your skin tolerates actives	A retinoid eye cream	Stronger evidence.
Morning puffiness	Cold + caffeine + habits	Luxe names no caffeine.
Brown circles	Sunscreen + a niacinamide or vitamin C eye cream, or a dermatologist	Luxe's niacinamide is uncertain.
Blue or purple circles	Peach corrector, allergy control, or a laser	Nothing in a balm targets vessels.
Hollows	A doctor (filler or fat), or makeup lighting tricks	Structural.

If your main problem is...	Pick...	Why
Bags	Surgery, or an instant tightener for events	Fat.
Very tight budget	Plain petrolatum or your face moisturiser, plus sunscreen	The same main job for a fraction of the price.
You have known allergies and need to read every ingredient	A product with a full published ingredient list	Luxe's isn't available.

8. Questions viewers ask, with plain answers

Taken from real comments (sources in brackets), answered from the doctors and studies above. The answers are my reading, built on the sources cited. A number like "#255" points to the full comment in the reviews part of this pack. Where no viewer asked the question in so many words, it is marked: a question this audience is likely to have, added by me.

#	Question	Plain answer
1	"What it can do if anything for the [bags] under the eyes." (comment quoted in the earlier report §7.6)	Nothing lasting. Bags are fat. A balm can smooth the skin over them; only surgery removes them, and an instant tightener hides them for a few hours.
2	"At what part do we apply this pre make up?" (comment, earlier report §7.6)	After your face moisturiser, before sunscreen and concealer. Wait 1–2 minutes before concealer.
3	"Do you wear it under sunscreen due to the retinol?" (Medicube video comment, HxsOvh5HVzQ)	Luxe says it has no retinol. You still wear sunscreen every morning, on top of the balm.
4	"After a few months of using it, do you still recommend it?" (HxsOvh5HVzQ)	Judge it with photos in the same light at day 1, week 4 and week 8. Expect smoother, less dry skin, not new eyes.
5	"Which are best for dark circles" (wgWdHol9leI, 41 likes)	It depends on the type (section 6.0). Brown: sunscreen plus niacinamide or vitamin C. Blue: corrector, allergy care, lasers. Shadow: filler or lighting.
6	Do I really need an eye cream? ("A lot of face cream says, Avoid eye area, so yes you do need one", #343; "Regarding not needing an eye cream. Perhaps.", #177)	No. Two dermatologists say your face moisturiser works (Dr Dray, Dr Sam Ellis). Eye products are mainly gentler and easier to apply.
7	Is it safe for sensitive eyes? ("I am very sensitive in my eye area and it gets irritated when used other eye creams", #287)	It is sold as retinol-free and fragrance-free, which suits sensitive eyes. But no full ingredient list was found, so patch-test first.
8	How long until I see results? ("please show an update after a few weeks!", #41; "Have you noticed any long-term results?", #48)	Smoother skin in minutes (it fades within hours). Possibly softer fine lines in 3–8 weeks. Never any change to bags or hollows.
9	Can it replace filler or Botox? ("I was banking on the “better than Botox” claim", #83)	No. It cannot add volume or relax muscles.
10	Does collagen in a cream rebuild my collagen? (viewers argue it both ways: "collagen does not penetrate skin as a balm or cream", #283; "I think collagen is something you need to build from the inside", #365)	No. Collagen is too big to soak in (500-dalton rule). It moisturises.
11	What is PDRN, and is it salmon sperm? ("How exactly was it discovered that salmon sperm is good for skin...?", #334, 5.7K likes)	DNA fragments, usually from salmon milt. It is proven only as an injection. On the skin it is unproven beyond moisturising.
12	Will it get rid of milia? ("options for those who are milia prone", #200)	No. A dermatologist removes milia. If you're prone to them, use a thin layer.
13	Can I use it on my upper eyelids? ("Could you please create a video on what to use for the upper eyelid skin?", #200; "Crepey UPPER eyelids, please!", #203)	You can use a tiny amount, but it may make eyeshadow slide and creep into the eye. It's mainly for under the eyes.
14	Can I use it on my lips, smile lines or neck? ("Is it good for the neck too?", @samuelm.5752, icazcVh-fSE, in	Yes. Multi-balms are made for that. Don't use the same stick on cold sores, then your eyes.

#	Question	Plain answer
15	Can I use it with my retinol? ("cant you also use the sandwich method for your eye cream (moisturizer + renitol serum + moisturizer)", #317)	Yes, at different times, or as a buffer underneath. Luxe says: "Use Luxe in the morning, your other actives at night."
16	Can I use it with vitamin C or niacinamide serums? ("can I layer some of these?", #342)	Yes. Serum first, balm on top. (The old "never mix niacinamide and vitamin C" rule is widely repeated, but no dermatologist in this pull warned against it.)
17	Why does my concealer still crease? ("I really struggle with concealer settling in my fine lines. Im 56.", #294)	Everyone creases somewhere. Use less, only where it's dark, wait 5 minutes, wipe out the creases, and use little powder (Lisa Eldridge, Wayne Goss).
18	Should I use my ring finger? ("U used ur fingers! Doesnt it swell ur fingers up?", #45; "I hear you should not use your fingers", #33)	Yes. It's the weakest finger, so it presses least (Renée Rouleau). Tap, don't rub.
19	How much should I use? ("And how much and how often can we use it daily?", #341)	About a grain of rice per eye, or one light swipe per side.
20	Is it OK with contact lenses?	Yes, if you put your lenses in first with clean hands and keep the balm off the lid rim.
21	Can I use it after cataract or eyelid surgery?	Ask your surgeon first. Don't use it until the area has healed and you have the go-ahead.
22	I have dry eye. Is it OK? ("THANK YOU for mentioning how retinol may cause dry eye.", #235)	Retinol-free is better for dry eye. Keep it well below the lashes and ask your eye doctor.
23	Do cucumbers, tea bags or frozen spoons work? ("Cucumbers actually reduce inflammation", #263; "I wouldn't use a " frozen spoon "", #256)	Their cold works, for a while. Cucumber "itself" isn't magic (Doctor Eye Health). Use cold, not frozen, spoons.
24	Why are my bags worse in the morning?	Fluid settles while you lie flat. Raise your head and cut salt and alcohol at night (Dr Chua).
25	Will drinking more water fix dark circles? ("My dark circles are worse when I don't drink water", #124)	It may help dull-looking skin a little (Cleveland Clinic lists dehydration as a cause), but it won't fix genetic, vascular or structural circles.
26	Will more sleep fix it? ("Nothing helps better than a good night sleep and a low sodium dinner", #112)	Sleep helps fluid puffiness and skin repair (Dr Dray, Dr Chua). It doesn't remove fat bags or hollows: the Luxe page's own pitch is "If you sleep 7 hours and still look tired".
27	Are my dark circles from my kidneys or liver?	Usually not. Swelling that is new, one-sided, painful or lasting needs a doctor, as it can be thyroid- or kidney-related (Doctorly; Cleveland Clinic).
28	Is under-eye filler safe? ("besides fillers which I'm not interested in", #204)	In a review of 2,556 people: 91% satisfied; about 1 in 5 had swelling or bruising; 0.9% had a blue tint. The right injector matters, and small amounts are best (Liu 2024; Dr Karam).
29	Does lower-eyelid surgery leave a scar? ("Lower eye bag surgery information would be great. Plus typical costs, down time, success rates", #222)	It can be done from inside the lid, with no outside scar (Dr Karam, Doctor Eye Health).
30	Is it Korean? ("calling everything Korean/Korean-inspired even if its not", #92)	It's sold as "Korean" and "Born in Korean Labs". Where it is made: not stated.
31	How big is the stick? ("How much product is there??", @mayda2060, BR1MBAYOjsU, in	Not stated anywhere we could find. Look-alike sticks are 0.38 oz (about 10.8 g).
32	How long does one stick last? ("It's used up too quickly-not a repeat purchase.", #107; "It barely lasted a week.", #438)	The brand says 30–45 days (one shop), 60–75 days (the other) and 2–3 months (Amazon). Expect 1–3 months with twice-daily use.
33	Why does it feel like lip balm? ("It feels like chapstick!", #11; "So... like a vaselline?", #330)	Because a stick is mainly waxes and oils, like a lip balm.
34	Can it make bags worse? ("It might become swollen and give unneeded eye bags.", #447; "Seems the more I do to reduce them the worse they get.", #286)	A balm won't create fat bags. But too much heavy product near the lid rim can irritate the eye and make it puffy for a while, and one buyer with "very pale thin skin" found a balm stick too heavy for that reason.

#	Question	Plain answer
35	My eyes sting after using it. What now? ("Did it burn anyone else's face", #35)	Wash it off with cool water, stop using it, and see a pharmacist or doctor if it doesn't settle within a day.

9. Myths and truths

Myth	Truth	Source
"You need a special eye cream."	A gentle, fragrance-free face moisturiser works. Eye products are mainly gentler.	Dr Dray si9l1VZtzvQ; Dr Sam Ellis XKROvYsp0QM
"An eye cream can remove bags."	Bags are fat; creams are "only temporary as a fix".	Doctor Eye Health hql6k88BKP8
"Collagen cream puts collagen back."	Collagen can't get through the skin barrier as collagen.
"A balm is 'filler in a stick' or 'Botox in a stick'."	No cream adds volume or relaxes muscle. Dr Jenny Liu warned the sticks "do not surpass Botox as claimed" (commenter's summary, kih_Rb5JQYs).
"All dark circles are pigment."	Most are vascular or mixed (89% in one Korean study of 100 people). Shadows are common too.	; Doctorly 74eZe8KsHsw
"Hyaluronic acid cream works like filler."	Same molecule, totally different job. Cream HA hydrates the surface; filler is cross-linked gel injected under the skin.	Dr Karam Z1P5oKFQokw;
"Cucumbers have special powers."	It's the cold.	Doctor Eye Health
"Frozen spoons are best."	Very cold metal can freeze-burn. Use cold, not frozen.	Viewer warning, 95 likes, hql6k88BKP8
"More product = better results."	More product sits on top, slides, pills and creeps into the eye. A grain of rice per eye.	; vogue.ph dermatologist
"Tapping with the ring finger is just a beauty-counter myth."	It's simply the gentlest way to avoid tugging thin skin.	Renée Rouleau PC3NL1HOdBU; Dr Sam Ellis on friction
"Rich eye creams cause milia."	Widely believed, not proven in the sources pulled. Petrolatum doesn't.	Dr Dray si9l1VZtzvQ; earlier report §7.1
"Retinol thins your skin."	Retinoids thicken the deeper skin over time, but they can irritate the eyelids and upset the tear-oil glands.	Doctorly 74eZe8KsHsw; Dr Rupa Wong N7Zl2keLo1M
"Retinol near the eyes is always dangerous."	Over-the-counter strengths weren't linked to significantly more harm in a 2026 review. Prescription strengths were. Dry-eye sufferers should still avoid it there.
"'Korean' means more advanced."	Adenosine, niacinamide and HA are used worldwide. Korea's "functional cosmetic" system is just a labelling scheme.
"'Clinically tested' means it works."	Tested isn't proven. A real trial says who, how many, how long, against what.
"If I sleep more, my dark circles will go."	Sleep helps puffiness and skin repair, not genetic pigment, veins or hollows.	Dr Dray a2Hot5ZsYU8; Doctorly
"Concealer always fixes dark circles."	It can make lines and bags look worse. Less, and placed well, is better.	Wayne Goss g8fziC5EtOY; viewer (509 likes)
"Eye bags only come with old age."	Many people have genetic bags from childhood.	Dr Chua: "in some people even in their 20s and 30s just happen to be born with prominent fat pads"
"Fillers last a few months and disappear."	Under the eye, some filler can linger for years.	Dr Karam: "you might always see a trace of that filler"

"Natural means safe."	Chamomile, essential oils and nut oils can all cause allergies.	LactMed; AAO

10. The words viewers use

Word for word, from YouTube comments read through NexLev on 2026-10-31 (or by the 05 report helper on the same day). Likes are in brackets.

10.1 How they describe their eyes

- "you have been personally victimized by the question, "Are you tired?"" (Dr Idriss, RVADMAuXNKM, a dermatologist using viewers' words)
- "I've had eye bags since I was in grade school." (1.1K, iwyLM5aJ7mE)
- "Had them since 2nd grade. They are a genetic feature of many mediterranean people." (85, iwyLM5aJ7mE)
- "When I turned 48, my face just fell 😩 Bags, jowls, the whole 9!" (31, vQ1wyKafvWI)
- "My creepy eyelids make me crazy." (T-qO5qhE82s)
- "The skin around my very elderly eyes has become delicate, so I must apply product which floats over it rather than drags." (5, eA9YIs-49sc)
- "Im 50, perimenopausal with blue/purple issue round the eyes" (eA9YIs-49sc)
- "Super dry skin, regardless of trying to consistently hydrate" (eA9YIs-49sc)
- "I have dark circles and bags! The bags came out of nowhere within the past year...turning 67 next week." (eA9YIs-49sc)
- "I have hereditary dark circles and now eye bags/ lines at 48." (21, QbvzKn9GG_w)
- "I've squinted my whole life so even as a 13 year old I noticed crepe skin under my eyes" (11, QbvzKn9GG_w)
- "Hollowing under the eye is a big problem." (18, T-qO5qhE82s)
- "I'm to the point where pulling them back with clothes pins is the only option" (375, iwyLM5aJ7mE)

10.2 Complaints

- "Every sales rep at every major cosmetics counter just sold me a concealer and told me to put it under my eyes which, of course, emphasized the bags." (64 years old, 509, mx6mhz5cqjU)
- "I'm tired of all the lies too and I'm tired of the prices and it doesn't do anything" (94, hAc7jewvVWE)
- "62, no amount of collagen creams or fancy serums are going to make my skin bounce back to the skin of a 20 year old." (257, hAc7jewvVWE)
- "botox in a stick. All lies." (96, hAc7jewvVWE)
- "I'm 64, and it drives me nuts when the advertisements show some youngster talking about lines and wrinkles." (601, hAc7jewvVWE)
- "If creams & serums make us younger, there would be no plastic surgery. Moisturiser nice & feel good factor. Full stop" (70, hAc7jewvVWE)
- "You can't treat eyebags with cream and stuff, as you get older." (59, iwyLM5aJ7mE)
- "I've been wasting so much money on fixing this problem." (50, vQ1wyKafvWI)
- On Luxe itself: "It feels like chapstick!"; "a more solid version of vaseline"; "glorified Vaseline" (hVadCZUeLzg, eA_1gxIFJXk)
- "I was banking on the "better than Botox" claim, so I can't help but be a little disappointed." (kih_Rb5JQYs)
- "paid $150 consult fee only for them to tell me that the total cost was around 16k. Looks like I'm keeping my bags packed for the duration of my trip on earth." (267, hql6k88BKP8)

10.3 Wishes and hopes

- "I WANTED AN EASY FIX ! ! !" (56, hql6k88BKP8)
- "You should have mentioned which are best for dark circles" (41, wgWdHol9leI)
- "Please make a video on wrinkles around eyes and sagging eyelids." (175, iwyLM5aJ7mE)
- "Upper eyelid crepey skin: please provide a video on this." (183, QbvzKn9GG_w)
- "A video for under eye bags please!!" (4, eA9YIs-49sc)
- "Why are we not allowed to look our age but look good?" (36, hAc7jewvVWE)

- "Excellent info. Perfect for 60+. I needed this" (eA9YIs-49sc)

10.4 What they say worked

- "sleep with your head elevated... put a cold wet washcloth on your eyes every morning for at least 30 seconds" (3.3K, hql6k88BKP8)
- "What's helped is caffeine cream in the morning, and retinol cream at night. What helps me is to not let ANY product touch the water line of my eyes" (662, iwyLM5aJ7mE)
- "Started SPF 50 under my eyes from about age 38 and now at age 58 have hardly any under eye lines." (292, QbvzKn9GG_w)
- "I had a lower lid blepharoplasty done at age 66 and never regretted it." (164, hql6k88BKP8)
- "I usually swipe a bit of aquaphor lip balm under my eyes and then I use just a little Mabeline instant age rewind... It works for me." (6, eA9YIs-49sc)
- "Beauty of joseon is amazing for dark circles... after about 3 months of continuous use I have seen amazing difference" (wgWdHoI9leI)
- "I love the collagen stick. its nice and as under eyes its hydrating" (kih_Rb5JQYs)

10.5 Words and phrases that come up again and again

"look tired", "are you tired?", "crepey" (often typed "creepy"), "bags", "hollow", "sunken", "dark circles", "raccoon eyes", "puffy", "concealer creases / cakes / settles", "floats over it rather than drags", "botox in a stick", "filler in a stick", "lies", "scam", "waste of money", "too good to be true", "my age", "60+", "an easy fix", "safe for my eyes".

11. Safety, and what you can and can't say on camera (short)

Safety:

1. Keep it on the bone below the eye, never on the waterline or lid rim.
2. Patch-test first (jaw or behind the ear, 2–3 days). No full ingredient list was found, so people with allergies can't check it. Named ingredients include a nut oil (argan), a chamomile-derived ingredient (bisabolol) and possibly salmon-derived PDRN.
3. Stop if it stings, itches or swells. Rinse with cool water.
4. Don't use it on an eye infection, eyelid eczema or a fresh surgery site. Throw the stick away after an infection, and don't share it.
5. See a doctor for swelling under one eye only, sudden or painful swelling, swelling with vision changes, or bumps that grow or bleed (Cleveland Clinic; Doctorly).

What can't be said on camera (one line): don't say it "lifts", "firms", "removes bags", "fills hollows", "triggers collagen", "fixes collagen loss", "fixes pigment" or "replaces filler/Botox". Those are drug-type or unsupported claims. Say "moisturises", "looks smoother", "smooth base for concealer" instead. The detailed rules are in §4.6.

Part 2: The reviews

0. What the reviews tell us (simple English)

I now have 449 reviews and comments, word for word:

Group	Count
The Luxe balm itself	22 (15 from YouTube viewers and buyers, 7 from the brand's own pages)
Rival balm sticks (KAHI, Dr.Melaxin, Medicube, d'Alba, the RoC stick and others)	158
Eye creams and eye serums	153
Under-eye care in general (home remedies, makeup, surgery)	116
Of all these, people who say they are 50 or older	40

171 of the 449 run to 200 characters or more, so they tell some kind of story (110 of the 206 new ones).

1. There are very few real reviews of the Luxe balm. I found 15 comments under Luxe review videos; 8 of them are from people who bought it (#1, 2, 4, 5, 11, 12, 16, 17). There are also 7 written testimonials on the brand's own two shops. No Amazon reviews could be read.
    - Of the 8 buyers, 1 says it worked ("It did take care of the bags", #4) and 4 say it did nothing. Four compare it to Vaseline or lip balm ("a glorified Vaseline", "It feels like chapstick", "a more solid version of vaseline", "It seems like it is vaseline"). The other 7 comments thank the video maker or distrust the ads.
    - The brand's testimonials are all 5 stars, from women aged 43 to 63. They tell the stories the brand is selling: puffiness "less visible" by day 10, concealer that stops creasing after two weeks, dark circles "visibly lighter" at 25 days. They are the brand's own text, not independent reviews.
2. The same formula sold elsewhere: not found. No full ingredient list is published, so no twin product can be matched.
3. Rival balm sticks give the most useful real reviews (158). The same story repeats, and round 2 makes it clearer:
    - It moisturises and feels nice. It is handy in a bag, on the lips and over makeup. "Doesnt do anything except hydrate like vaseline would be" (#371); "This is a dupe for Aquaphor Healing Balm Stick. Doesn't work for wrinkles or lines; but is moisturizing for skin." (#338).
    - Its clearest everyday win is as a base under concealer (concealer: the skin-coloured makeup dabbed under the eyes to hide darkness). 22 stick comments talk about makeup or concealer. "I put it on under my concealer around my eyes and i find my make up goes on smooth and no creases!" (#374).
    - It is greasy or shiny for many people. 17 stick comments talk about grease, oil or shine. Several say to use it at night.
    - It does not shift dark circles or bags for most people. 37 stick comments say it helped with something; 23 say no change.
    - It runs out fast. "It barely lasted a week." (#438, KAHI); "the stick runs out quickly" (#395, d'Alba).
    - A warning from thin, pale skin: "if you have very pale thin skin as mine, I would not recommend to use it under eyes area, it just to heavy consistency for thin under eye area. It might become swollen and give unneeded eye bags." (#447, KAHI Eye Balm).
    - Many people don't know how or when to use it (19 stick questions: before or after sunscreen? fingers or stick? how long to leave it on?).
4. Eye creams show what does change the under-eye area, and how slowly. Quick wins are cold and caffeine for morning puffiness ("Such a big difference within a few minutes!", #120). Slow wins take months: dark circles fading "over a period of about two months" and crow's feet better "After about 4 months" (#405), or "after about 3 months" (#155).
5. Side effects worry this audience. 67 comments mention burning, watery eyes, allergy, twitching or tiny white bumps (milia). Retinol near the eyes is the usual suspect ("my eyes were getting so dry", #187). A rich eye cream "caused milia" (#424). A caffeine serum was followed by weeks of eye twitching (#413). Product touching the waterline (the wet inner rim of the eyelid) made one woman's eyes "water all day long" (#231).

6. Women over 50 talk about four things above all:
    - Bags from fat pads that no cream fixed. "no amount of topical products made a meaningful difference for the bags themselves... surgery was the only thing that truly addressed the fat pads" (age 55+, #219). "I had a lower lid blepharoplasty done at age 66 and never regretted it" (#259). 14 comments say only a procedure works.
    - Concealer that creases in fine lines. "I am 65, and no matter what I do, the fine and so fine lines show up." (#301). They fight it with a greasy base, less concealer and little powder ("Saw another influencer recommend tiny bit of Vaseline under eye... Never thought it would work but it did!", #296).
    - Thin, dry, crepey skin, helped a little by rich, fragrance-free creams. "I am 68 and have noticed how much more it moisturizes... it does soften my fine lines nicely" (#281).
    - Anger at ads: young or AI models selling to older women, and "botox in a stick" claims. 55 comments distrust ads or hype; the top one has 1.5K likes. "I'll believe It when I see A WOMAN OF AGE try it" (#340).
7. Value is judged against Vaseline. 14 comments use Vaseline, petroleum jelly or Aquaphor as the yardstick ("a glorified Vaseline", "I will save $ and stick with Vaseline", "It's just Vaseline yall"). 68 comments talk about price or value.

What I could not get: Amazon review pages (bot check; not tried, per the brief); Reddit (blocked); the review widgets on brand sites (their text is not in the page, and their data feeds were not used); Cult Beauty (search found nothing); Ulta (one page tried, 404); buyer comments for Laneige, Olay Eyes and RoC's retinol eye cream. See §2.1.

1. Words you will see in these reviews

Word	What it means
Under-eye balm stick / multi balm	A solid moisturiser in a twist-up tube, like a big lip balm, that you rub straight onto the skin. Korean brands (KAHI, Medicube, Dr.Melaxin, d'Alba) made them popular.
Eye cream / eye serum / eye gel	A small pot or tube made for the skin around the eyes. Cream is thicker; serum is thinner and watery; gel is a cool jelly.
Concealer	Skin-coloured makeup dabbed under the eyes to hide darkness. It "creases" when it collects in fine lines, and looks "cakey" when it sits thick and dry.
Colour corrector	A peach, orange or pink makeup put on before concealer. It cancels blue or purple darkness.
Brightener	A sheer, light-reflecting cream that makes the under-eye look lighter without thick cover.
Primer / eye base	A thin layer put on before makeup so the makeup goes on smoother and stays put.
Setting powder / setting spray	A fine powder, or a mist, used to stop makeup moving. Too much powder under the eyes looks dry and lined.
Bronzer	A brown-toned powder or cream. One makeup trick puts it on a puffy bag to make the bulge look less raised.
CC cream	A light, tinted cream between a moisturiser and a foundation.
Crepey	Thin, finely wrinkled skin that looks like crepe paper. Common under the eyes after 50.
Crow's feet / smile lines / "11 lines" / smoker's lines / marionette lines	Lines at the outer corners of the eyes; lines from the nose to the mouth; the two upright lines between the eyebrows; fine lines above the top lip; lines running down from the corners of the mouth.
Dark circles	Darker skin under the eyes: brown (extra pigment), blue-purple (veins showing through thin skin) or shadow (from a hollow).
Puffiness / bags	Swelling under the eyes. Morning puffiness is mostly fluid and goes down. "Fat pads" are fat that pushes forward with age; creams don't move it.
Herniation	Fat pushing forward through the thin "wall" that normally holds it behind the eye. A doctor's word for fat-pad bags.
Hollows / tear trough	A dip or groove under the eye that casts a shadow.
Milia	Tiny hard white bumps, often around the eyes. Rich creams are often blamed.
Syringoma	A small, flat, harmless bump of a sweat gland, common under the eyes.

Word	What it means
Waterline	The wet inner rim of the eyelid, next to the eyeball. Product there can sting or make the eyes water.
Eczema	A long-lasting skin condition: dry, itchy, red, sometimes cracked skin. On the eyelids it can bleed and swell.
Rosacea	A long-lasting skin condition with redness and flushing on the face; the skin stings easily.
Periocular dermatitis	A rash of small red bumps around the eyes, often set off by creams or steroid creams.
Contact dermatitis	A rash caused by something touching the skin.
Vitiligo	Patches of skin that lose their colour and turn white.
Perimenopause / menopause	The years before a woman's periods stop (perimenopause), and the time after they stop (menopause). Skin gets drier and thinner then.
Retinol / retinal (retinaldehyde) / tretinoin / adapalene	Forms of vitamin A. They smooth lines over months but can dry, sting or redden thin eye skin. Retinal is a stronger relative of retinol. Tretinoin is prescription-only. "Sandwiching" or "buffering" means putting moisturiser under and over it so it stings less.
Hyaluronic acid (HA)	A sugar-based molecule that holds a lot of water, so it plumps the top layer of skin for a while.
Niacinamide	Vitamin B3. It helps the skin barrier, redness and uneven brown pigment.
Peptides / Matrixyl	Short chains of protein building blocks used in anti-ageing creams. Matrixyl is one well-known peptide.
Ceramides	Fats that are a natural part of the skin's outer barrier; creams add them to help skin hold water.
Squalane / dimethicone / petrolatum	A light oil; a silky silicone; petroleum jelly (Vaseline). All three help skin hold water and feel smooth.
Centella	A plant extract (often called "cica") used to calm skin.
Caffeine (eye serum)	Narrows small blood vessels for a while, so puffiness and darkness look less for some hours.
EGCG	An antioxidant from green tea, in The Ordinary's caffeine serum.
PDRN	Short pieces of DNA (often from salmon) used in Korean skincare; the Luxe pack names it.
Volufiline	A plant-based ingredient sold as "plumping", named on Medicube's stick.
Collagen	The protein "scaffolding" that keeps skin firm. In a cream it only moisturises; it is too big to soak in.
SPF / sunscreen	Protection from the sun, which is a main cause of fine lines.
Botox	Injections that relax muscles so lines soften. Only a doctor or nurse can give them.
Filler	A gel (usually hyaluronic acid) injected to fill a hollow.
PRP / PRF	Platelet-rich plasma or fibrin: your own blood is spun and injected to improve skin.
IPL (intense pulsed light)	A light treatment in a clinic that can fade small visible veins and brown marks.
Blepharoplasty ("bleph")	Eyelid surgery that removes or moves skin and fat. "Lower bleph" = under-eye bags.
Upneeq	A prescription eye drop that lifts a droopy upper eyelid for some hours.
Lymphatic drainage	Gentle stroking massage meant to move fluid out of puffy areas.
Derm	Slang for dermatologist (skin doctor). Ophthalmologist = eye doctor.
T-zone	The forehead, nose and chin, which tend to be oilier.
Glass skin	A Korean beauty term for very smooth, dewy, shiny-looking skin.
Double cleanse	Washing the face twice: first with an oil or balm cleanser to melt makeup, then with a normal cleanser.
Holy grail (HG), repurchase, dupe	Beauty slang: a favourite product; buying it again; a cheaper copy of a dearer product.
K-drama	Korean TV drama; balm sticks were advertised inside these shows.

RoC row: the video (G59y1UO5Lgw, a Dr Dray Short) calls it an "Eye Balm Stick". The likely product is RoC's "Revive + Glow Eye Balm", $26.99 on rocskincare.com, which fits one buyer's "$27" (#94).

Orders, shipping and refunds are no longer a theme (the operator asked to leave brand red flags out). In round 1, 8 Luxe comments were partly or wholly about orders and refunds rather than the balm.

2.4 Limits

- YouTube comments lean short, and the top-sorted ones include jokes and compliments. I skipped pure compliments and off-topic chat.
- Shop reviews are mostly short. iHerb pages also carry some copy-paste or off-topic reviews (about supplements, kombucha or the shop itself); I left those out.
- Comment dates are estimates from "x months ago".
- Two long, story-like comments (in the Dr Dray thread, 335 likes, and the Doctor Eye Health eye-cream thread, 206 likes) read like adverts for a serum called "Noravele"; I left them out.
- The Luxe sample is tiny (15 independent comments) and comes mostly from "is it a scam?" videos, so it leans negative. Don't treat it as a rating.
- Shop reviewers rarely give their age, so most stated ages come from YouTube.

3. The reviews grouped by theme

For each theme: how many comments carry it, the clearest quotes (cut short; the full text is in §4 under the same number), and the numbers of every comment with that tag. Round-2 quotes (#254 and up) are added at the end of each list.

- #4 (Luxe Korean Under Eye Balm): "I tried this. It did take care of the bags and still worked when I woke from my nap"
- #104 (RoC under-eye balm stick, 59): "This eye balm has been a game changer for 59 year old me to be able to put / Concealer on under my eyes without adding creases and wrinkles"
- #115 (The Ordinary Caffeine Solution 5% + EGCG, 64): "I'm on my 2nd bottle of this. I have found that my eye bags went from luggage to tote bags. I'm 64 so I'm happy with that."
- #123 (The Ordinary Caffeine Solution 5% + EGCG): "I've been using the caffeine serum for three years, and my dark circles have completely disappeared (they did in the first six months). I definitely swear by it. I do need a separate eye cream for hydration, though."
- #153 (Beauty of Joseon Revive Eye Serum): "I started using the BoJ retinol eye cream about 5 years ago based on your review. I saw a photo of myself from 8 years ago and my eyes now look 10 years younger than they did. Honestly I was shocked. And delighted 🎉"
- #101 (RoC under-eye balm stick): "I love this product. I put it on, followed by an eye brightening cream, all sealed in with Vaseline. Just within a few,dats my undereyes look tons better. They're less dark and not dry anymore. Plus, my concealer goes..."
- #64 (KAHI Wrinkle Bounce Multi Balm): "Hey Adrienne, thanks for the great review 😊I got the Kahi Multi Balm around 6 months ago and I have just finished the whole tube. I am definitely going to repurchase it because I did see some fading of the smile lines,..."
- #61 (KAHI Wrinkle Bounce Multi Balm, 60): "60 years old and using it for a couple months now from seeing it on Kdrama. It's really good and people notice how nice my skin looks."
- #205 (Home remedies, makeup tips and procedures, 58): "Started SPF 50 under my eyes from about age 38 and now at age 58 have hardly any under eye lines. Also always wear sunglasses outside and while driving.😎"

- #436 (KAHI Wrinkle Bounce Multi Balm, over 50; thin long neck): "I am over 50 and have a thin long neck which started showing the age earlier than my face. I've used many neck creams in the market for decades from high end $$$ to lower end $$. I started using this as neck cream by my..."
- #318 (Other eye creams (Hada Labo, Tatcha, Medik8, La Roche-Posay, Lancôme...), over 60; very light skin): "... My game changer was - i was already over 60! - CATRICE eye brightener, i only bought it because it was the only under- eye- product i could get in that store at all (traveling). / It was the game changer...i have..."
- #281 (CeraVe eye creams (Eye Repair / Skin Renewing), 68): "I love CeraVe products, too and use almost all their Renewing Line. I really do love this eye cream a lot. I just use it under my eyes and I am 68 and have noticed how much more it moisturizes than just using their..."
- #405 (Beauty of Joseon Revive Eye Serum): "... Effectiveness: This product helped reduce my dark circles greatly over a period of about two months or so. It's hydrating when you apply it, but absorbs fully into the skin after some time. / After about 4 months,..."

- #1 (Luxe Korean Under Eye Balm): "I got mine pretty quickly. However, I agree...it's another expensive scam. I did not notice ANY difference after application. Save your money!"
- #11 (Luxe Korean Under Eye Balm): "I recently tried this eye balm it doesn't do anything. It feels like chapstick! Don't waist your money! I wish I found this video before I bought it"
- #49 (Medicube PDRN Pink Collagen Volume Multi Balm): "Not a miracle stick. Doesn't do anything"
- #146 (Beauty of Joseon Revive Eye Serum): "I bought it and have been using it for over two months but I haven't noticed any difference"
- #66 (KAHI Wrinkle Bounce Multi Balm): "It's a waste of money I absolutely have seen no difference I've been using it for well over a month now and it's just an uncomfortable greasy mess and why would anybody want to put salmon collagen on our skin?? I will..."

- #23 (Luxe Korean Under Eye Balm, "Margaret T., 56"): "I'm 56. I sleep fine, drink water, do everything right. But my eyes never got the memo. Puffy, dark, swollen every morning. Started using this two weeks ago. Day 4 my husband asked what I was doing differently. By day..."
- #26 (Luxe Korean Under Eye Balm, "Linda R., 51"): "Every single morning. Put on concealer. Look in mirror. Watch it crease. Add more. Crease again. A daily cycle of trying to hide something that refused to be hidden. Two weeks into using this I skipped concealer one..."
- #120 (The Ordinary Caffeine Solution 5% + EGCG): "This product is a lifesaver for me especially any time I have cried and need to go somewhere or if my eyes are puffy from crying the night before. Such a big difference within a few minutes!"
- #155 (Beauty of Joseon Revive Eye Serum): "Beauty of joseon is amazing for dark circles... after about 3 months of continuous use I have seen amazing difference"
- #123 (The Ordinary Caffeine Solution 5% + EGCG): "I've been using the caffeine serum for three years, and my dark circles have completely disappeared (they did in the first six months). I definitely swear by it. I do need a separate eye cream for hydration, though."
- #133 (CeraVe eye creams (Eye Repair / Skin Renewing)): "The thing is your meant to use it for at LEAST a month. Using it for a week isn't gonna give you the results you want"

- #227 (Home remedies, makeup tips and procedures, 47): "I am 47 with some volume loss and thinning skin under the eyes. It was definitely causing dark circles and creppy skin. The absolute game changer for me it was definitely using my tretinoin up under my eyes. I haven't..."

Day 4 my husband asked what I was doing differently. By day 10 the puffiness was genuinely less visible. Not gone but noticeably less. First eye cream that actually did something I could see with my own eyes."

  "La Mer. Estée Lauder. Two brands from Sephora I can't even remember. None did anything except make my under-eyes greasy. This absorbs in seconds and I could feel the difference by end of week one. My fine lines look softer. Dark circles lighter. I'm genuinely angry nobody told me about this sooner tbh."
- #25 · brand page · "Purchased on Feb 18th, 2026" · 5★ (as shown) · "Susan L, 47" · [crepey/lines, puffiness/bags, concealer, timing, worked, story]
  "I've made peace with most of aging. But my under-eyes — the crepey texture, the bags, the way concealer just cakes into the lines — couldn't accept that part. This didn't make me look 30 again. But three weeks in my under-eyes look rested. Smoother. More alive. My daughter said I look like I came back from vacation. I didn't lol. Just found the right eye cream finally."

  "Not in a dramatic way. Just learned to glance quickly, fix my hair, move on. My under-eyes were the reason. Dark circles made me look exhausted no matter how much sleep I got. Been using this 25 days now. Yesterday I caught myself actually looking. Not glancing. Looking. The dark circles are visibly lighter. That alone was worth every penny."

  "I used to angle my face or insist on bad lighting because my under-eyes looked so puffy and dark in close-ups. Last Sunday my daughter grabbed my phone and took a selfie of us. I looked at it and didn't delete it. That hasn't happened in a long time. Three weeks using this. That photo is my lock screen now."

  "I am over 50 and have a thin long neck which started showing the age earlier than my face. I've used many neck creams in the market for decades from high end $$$ to lower end $$. I started using this as neck cream by my sister's recommendation and it works better than any other neck cream I've tried. The crepiness is visibly reduced and the neck looks firmer and smoother just after one use, although I think you need to use for a while to see long term benefits (wrinkles come back if I skip a couple of days). My only complaint is that the content is small and I go through them very fast."

  "I am 40 years old, I started taking care of my skin in my 20s with a simple 3-step routine, at 23 I started using creams for the first signs of aging, the eye contour, serums and sunscreen... Today I can say that having used creams for the eye contour has been a better decision than not having used them instead, I see my friends and cousins my age who have not bothered about the issue and the difference is very noticeable. In my experience I am happy that I have prevented rather than wait 20 years to see if they could have made a difference. Trying a product for 2 months is not the same as taking care of your skin for 20 years"

  "A few years ago eyelid eczema hit me hard. Eyelids would break open and bleed, swell up super red and scaly. I used Avene Soothing eye cream which would absorb immediately, then I would follow with Cerave Skin Renewing Eye Cream which is a thicker texture. Did this day and night. It cleared up the eczema on my eyelids. I do use retinal on my face, and I learned the hard way to put my eyelids first in my skincare after cleansing.... One time I had thoroughly applied retinal to my face, it was absorbed, I then applied my Avene/Cerave combo to my eyelids. Immediate fire. That tiny bit of residue of the retinal on my finger was the culprit. So order of product application is important too for sensitive skin."

  "Regarding not needing an eye cream. Perhaps. But I have noticed that when I use a good eye cream, I absolutely see a softening of the crow's feet around my eyes, I know it's not getting rid of them, but there is way more hydration that doesn't happen from my regular moisturizer. Maybe I need a thicker moisturizer, but my lower face skin likes the gel creams and my eyes like thicker moisturizer that really hydrates and protects.   "Okay, personally the Beauty of Joseon Retinol eye cream is my favorite retinal product because if how light it is. I'm really sensitive to sensations on my skin, to the point where I can't stand most products with a traditional "lotion" type texture unless they absorb super fast. While I would still prefer a more gel-like texture, the Beauty of Joseon cream absorbs quickly enough that it doesn't bother me for long, and I don't really feel it all once it's absorbed. So, while it might not be the most potent retinal, it's still the one I've found the most pleasant to use, and thus it's my favorite"

  "I love the beauty of Joseon eye cream for my whole face and I'm over 40. I have sensitive skin rosacea, acne prone oily skin(but dehydrated) So far it's the only retinal product that won't immediately give me a damaged skin barrier. Even with how light it is I need to baby my skin in between using it. with hydrating and moisturizing products. If you have rosacea and acne prone skin try using this eye cream as an active for your entire face sandwiched between a serum with no actives just nourishing ingredients (I like shesiedo ultamate) and panthenol ceramide rich Non- comedogenic cream on top(I like prequel half and half). 💝 Next day rinse your face and put cooling gentle toner pads. I like the abib heart leaf with a fan hitting my face. The cooling will relieve any inflammation or irritation from the night before. Rosacea is often irritated by things that cause inflammation or heat within the skin. So always wear sunscreen(I like mung bean) since I have a sensitivity to CICA. Hope this helps someone💕💕💕"

  "When derms say "you don't need a separate eye cream" they are excluding an entire skin type. Women who have typically oily skin (therefore use a moisturizer that is geared to oily skin)…but ALSO are dealing with aging DO absolutely need an eye cream separate from their normal daily moisturizer. This is very simply because the delicate skin under the eyes is ABSOLUTELY NOTHING like the texture of generally oily face skin. Delicate and aging eye skin is a completely different and cannot be treated with the same products you bought because your skin is oily. To me this is fairly obvious. I really wish professionals would stop with the idea that no one needs an eye cream. This is absolutely not true. As a woman with oily skin at every age…who also deals with aging skin… I really like this particular eye cream Dr. Dray is speaking of. I've been using it and I love it."

I find that it preps my parchment paper dry and thin inner under eye area beautifully but also— if I mess everything up with powder, a tiny dab will smooth it back out. It's pricey, but I use the tiniest bit for each eye. I'd rather have some natural luminosity to that area than any messes I make with powder, if I've made a mess."

  "Hi Stephanie as someone who has severely dry rosacea and eczema prone skin moisturising the undereye is the most important thing. I don't use a stick but I do use a decent layer of a second eye cream that has a little bit of dimethicone and a peach tint. I'm currently using the Zelens eye cream as my actual skincare and the olay eye cream as my primer (the olay has a peachy tint and a little bit of dimethicone). I give it a few minutes to settle while I apply my primers and my eyeshadow (any fallout is caught by the eye cream and can be easily dealt with). I have tried sticks but prefer the cream. I have been doing this a very very long time and long long before lip balms etc became trendy. For a long time I used the First aid beauty niacinamide eye cream, but the olay is similar and more affordable. Best wishes x"

I do think that is because at that time I was still using very light facial moisturizer as I still had slightly oily skin (this was early 50's). That result did set me up for trying to find even better eye creams. Have tried several of the creams you mentioned with results I don't complain about. Right now trying the Eucerin eye and body creams. As a tretinoin user I always use a retinol for my eyes/hands and that has made a difference over time as well.   "This caffeine eye serum has a watery gel texture. A small amount goes a long way and absorbs without residue. It does not have a hydrating effect. But I was after the calming and brightening effect. After a while of continuous use, I did not notice a difference with under eye colour. Maybe my under eye colour is cause by something other than pigment, thus it’s beyond the scope of what this serum can provide. Not only that, within around 1-2 weeks of continuous use, my skin started becoming dry wherever I apply this serum. I did takes it beyond under eye skin. I went back to check and realise this serum contain lactic acid. As someone with sensitive skin this proofs to be too much. Maybe using this on alternating days might resolve the drying issue. But overall this did not work the way I had hoped. I’m still giving credits to the antioxidants profile and the easy to spread texture."

  "My under-eye fat pads really started to bother me around age 55. I take very good care of my skin (lots of Korean skincare—especially centella-based products), but no amount of topical products made a meaningful difference for the bags themselves. / / After losing a significant amount of weight and feeling great mentally and physically, the under-eye bags were still the one thing that bothered me every time I looked in the mirror. I eventually decided to move forward with a lower blepharoplasty, and it was honestly one of the best decisions I've made for myself. / / Skincare helped with overall skin quality, but surgery was the only thing that truly addressed the fat pads. No regrets at all."

My body moves with less pain because the inflammation is down. If i can feel it inside my body it makes sense it would work on the outside of my body too. I would suggest mashing a cucumber to get the juices out of them then soak the eyes in the mash instead of using slices because with the contours of the eyes slices may not get into every spot."

Saw another influencer recommend tiny bit of Vaseline under eye; then apply corrector/concealer/powder light layers with finger. Never thought it would work but it did! I still get small amount of creasing after few hrs but just dab with finger and smooths right out. Best I’ve been able to find thus far. Yours looks fab!"

  "Thank you SO VERY MUCH for this fantastic video, Stephanie!! The struggle has been SO REAL and I never had this problem a few years ago. I have a huge collection of concealers (HUGE!) and turns out.. THEY weren't the problem! I also so appreciate you mentioning the difference with application techniques because I've bought concealer brushes and have tried using them thinking that's what I supposed to do but it looks worse. / This video with all your knowledge, tips & techniques is LIFE-CHANGING and I'm so thankful you made this!! ❤"

  "Your strategic application was a game changer for me, I’d previously adopted your method after seeing videos & couldn’t be happier. Not only looks better with no creasing/cracking but it wears better throughout the day meaning I don’t look like a dried out stone goblin after a few hours. / Combining the Colleen Rothschild made for even better results, you turned me onto that product as well:) / Funny how I always thought it was the product or powder when really it was just me over applying, over blending and following advice more geared for photography/film and not real life."

  "My under eyes look better now than they did 10 years ago. I use the Sisley concealer and the Colleen Rothchild after a good moisturizer. I don’t need a powder under the eyes due to dryness and it still lasts. I do use a finishing powder on my cheeks and anywhere else I need some CT flawless pressed powder. If I needed a colour corrector CT does make one that neutralizes darkness perfectly. Other than my eyelids getting a little droopy my eyes look good. Thanks Anne for the tips especially the Sisley and Colleen Rothchid. I am still on my first tube and there is a lot left so it’s worth it. It pays for itself. Take care. ❤😁"
