Part 1: The explainer

1. The basics from zero

1.1 What eyelashes are, and what they are for

An eyelash is a hair. It is made of the same stuff as the hair on your head, a tough protein called keratin (the protein in hair, nails and the outer layer of skin). Each lash grows out of a tiny pocket in the skin called a follicle (the root pocket a hair grows from). The lashes grow along the lash line (the edge of the eyelid where lashes grow), also called the lid margin.

How many:

	Number	Rows	Source
Upper lid	about 90 to 160 lashes	5 to 6 rows
Lower lid	about 75 to 80 lashes	3 to 4 rows

The lashes are spread over several rows "so that eyelashes can be shed without leaving unprotected gaps". Think of a picket fence with three fences one behind the other: if one picket falls, there is no hole.

What they do:

1. A shield. Lashes protect the eye from "sweat, rain, light, dust, microorganisms, and other particulate matter".
2. A wind guard. A 2015 study (Amador and others, Georgia Tech) put fake eyes in a wind tunnel. Lashes about one-third as long as the eye is wide cut the dust landing on the eye, and the drying of the tear film (the thin layer of tears that covers the eye), by about half. Lashes that are too short do little; lashes that are too long funnel air into the eye. So very long false lashes are not "better" for the eye.
3. A trip wire. Lashes are very sensitive to touch. When something brushes them, you blink. This is common knowledge; I did not pull a source for it.
4. Part of the tear system. Small glands sit at the base of the lashes. Dr Dray (a dermatologist, a skin doctor) names the glands of Zeis (they release an oily substance, sebum) and the glands of Moll (sweat-type glands), both probably helping to fight germs (Y6). Behind the lashes are the meibomian glands (the oil glands along the lid edge that put the oily layer on your tears), about 30 on each lid according to Dr Rupa Wong, an ophthalmologist (a medical eye doctor and eye surgeon) (Y14). Dr Dray: "they're basically a barrier protecting your eye from the outside world and they play a key role in the tear mechanism" (Y8).
5. Looks and feelings. Lashes frame the eyes. Their "enhancement [is] documented as early as ancient Egypt", and losing them "has been associated with significant emotional and psychologic distress".

Why the skin there is special. Eyelid skin is the thinnest skin on the body (Dr Rupa Wong, Y13; Dr Sarah Blackwelder, an optometrist, an eye-care professional who tests sight but is not a surgeon, Y16). Dr Dray: "your eyelashes are anchored in eyelid skin which is much thinner than the skin on the rest of your body" (Y6). This is why things put on the lash line can irritate easily, and why rubbing matters.

1.2 How a lash grows: the life cycle

Every hair on the body goes through the same three stages. The difference with lashes is that the growing stage is very short.

Stage	Medical name	What happens	How long, for an eyelash
1. Growing	anagen	The root is active and pushes the lash out, about 0.12 to 0.14 mm a day	about 4 to 10 weeks
2. Switching off	catagen	The root shrinks and its blood supply is cut off	about 15 days
3. Resting	telogen	The lash just sits there, finished, until a new one pushes it out and it falls	about 4 to 9 months

A kitchen-table picture. Think of each lash as a loaf of bread in a bakery that only has its oven on for a few weeks. The loaf can only get as big as the oven time allows. Then the loaf sits on the shelf for months before it is cleared away and a new one starts. A head hair has its "oven" on for 2 to 8 years, which is why head hair can grow down your back while a lash stops at about 1 cm.

Key numbers:

Fact	Number	Source
Growth speed while growing	0.12 to 0.14 mm a day	; Dr Dray (Y6)
Longest a lash usually gets	"rarely… longer than 12 mm"	Dr Dray (Y6)
Normal lashes lost per day	about 1 to 5	Dr Dray (Y6); Dr Rupa Wong (Y12)
Total life of one lash	"approximately 4–11 months"	. Other sources give other figures: Dr Rupa Wong says "the natural lash cycle is about 60 to 90 days" (Y12)
Time to regrow after lashes are lost	"about three months"	Dr Rupa Wong (Y12)
What limits lash length	"eyelash length is limited by the short anagen phase"

Note: in one video Dr Dray says the growing stage lasts "4 to 10 months" (Y7), but in another she says "4 to 10 weeks" (Y6), which matches the medical review. "Months" was probably a slip of the tongue.

What this means for any lash serum:

- At any moment, most of your lashes are resting, not growing. A serum can only work on lashes that are growing or about to start.
- That is why every serum, strong or gentle, needs at least 1 to 3 months before anything shows. You are waiting for new lashes to come through and grow.
- It is also why results fade slowly after you stop: the lashes you grew stay until their natural fall-out date, months later.

1.3 Why lashes get short, thin and sparse

The medical word for lash or brow loss is madarosis (loss of eyelashes or eyebrows). The doctors' rule: "identifying the underlying condition… is the mainstay of the correct management". In plain words, find the cause first.

Cause	What happens, in plain words	Source and evidence	Can a lash serum help?
Normal aging	Lashes get shorter, thinner and sometimes white or grey.	"Eyebrow and eyelash thinning and whitening can occur as a presentation of physiologic aging". In 179 healthy women, average lash length was 7.98 mm at age 22–29 and 6.39 mm at 50–65, about 20% shorter (my arithmetic); thickness 1.62 against 1.17, about 28% less.	A conditioning serum may help lashes break less. It won't turn back aging.
Menopause (the time when periods stop, usually around 50)	Hormone changes are widely blamed for thinner lashes and brows.	No peer-reviewed lash figures found. Brand blogs say falling estrogen (the main female hormone) shortens the growing stage (S25, unverified). Viewers report it: "they all fell out during the menopause transition" (brows, @Katepwe, 33 likes, Y7).	Unknown. Not studied.
Thyroid problems (an underactive thyroid gland, "hypothyroidism")	The body's "engine" slows down, hair grows slower. The outer third of the eyebrow often thins.	"Hypothyroidism can present with loss of the lateral third of the eyebrow… Severe hypothyroidism has also been reported to present with eyelash alopecia". Dr Dray: it "can slow down the rate of hair growth" (Y6).	No. See a doctor; treat the thyroid.
Rubbing the eyes (allergies, hay fever, tiredness)	Rubbing snaps lashes and irritates the roots.	Dr Dray: "that chronic rubbing can lead to breakage and impair the lash growth" (Y6).	A little, by conditioning. Stopping the rubbing matters more.

Cause	What happens, in plain words	Source and evidence	Can a lash serum help?
Lash extensions (single fake lashes glued one by one onto your own)	The weight pulls on your own lashes; glue can cause allergy; dirty build-up at the lash line causes inflammation.	EyeWiki (the American Academy of Ophthalmology's wiki) lists "traction alopecia" (lashes lost to the pull), allergic blepharitis (eyelid edges inflamed by an allergy) and keratoconjunctivitis (the surface of the eye inflamed by an allergy). Dr Rupa Wong: heavy or badly placed extensions "can cause a lot of weight onto your lashes and then cause them to break and fall off"; but "I couldn't find a single study about lash extension and whether or not it inhibits your lash growth" (Y12).	Possibly, during a break from extensions.
Lash lifts and tints (a lift is a "perm" for lashes; a tint is a dye)	Lift chemicals break the bonds inside the hair to reshape it, which may weaken it.	Dr Rupa Wong: "it's likely that it could [cause breakage]... but again nobody does these studies" (Y13). She also says "avoid things like lash tints lash lifts and extensions those are all going to cause lash drop out eventually" (Y1, opinion).	Possibly conditioning; no proof.
Lash curlers (a small hand clamp that squeezes lashes so they bend upward)	Squeezing bends and snaps lashes. Metal curlers can contain nickel, a common allergy.	Dr Dray: "it can cause direct lash breakage as well as slowing the lash growth cycle down", and about nickel: "your eyelid skin is definitely not going to like that" (Y6).	A little. Use the curler gently or not at all.
Rough mascara removal (mascara is the black or brown paint brushed onto lashes for the day)	Scrubbing at waterproof mascara (a kind that resists water and is hard to take off) pulls lashes out.	Dr Dray cites a paper suggesting that "in the case of waterproof mascara an oil-based cleanser might be a better option in terms of lash loss" (Y6).	Indirectly: the brand says users notice lashes "fall out less during makeup removal" (S3, a brand claim).
Blepharitis (inflamed, crusty eyelid edges) and Demodex (tiny mites that live in lash roots)	Blocked oil glands and inflammation damage the roots, so lashes fall out or grow short and brittle.	Dr Rupa Wong: blocked oil glands "can actually cause something called madarosis which is lash loss"; "if that lash root is dead because of... blepharitis... it doesn't matter what lash serum you use" (Y1). Mites get more common with age: in 1,499 Warsaw eye patients, the infected share by age was 8% (age 1–25), 36% (26–40), 50% (41–55), 67% (56–70), 77% (over 70).	No. Treat the lids first (warm compresses, lid cleaning, a doctor's treatment). An oily serum can even make it worse (Y1).

Cause	What happens, in plain words	Source and evidence	Can a lash serum help?
Rosacea (a skin condition with facial redness) and eczema (dry, itchy, inflamed skin)	Both can inflame the lid edge.	Dr Dray: rosacea patients "are at risk for developing a blepharitis... that of course can lead to lash breakage" (Y6); eczema can thin the outer brows (Y7).	No. Treat the skin condition.
Stress shedding ("telogen effluvium")	About 3 months after a shock to the body (surgery, fever, a virus, big weight loss, emotional stress) many hairs drop at once.	Dr Dray: "It also can lead to loss of more eyelashes", and "once that problem is controlled... the hair growth will go back to normal" (Y6).	Not needed; it recovers by itself.
Medicines	Some drugs shift the hair cycle.	Dr Dray names starting or stopping birth-control pills, and prednisone (a steroid) (Y7). A German viewer, on a video about lashes over 60 (her age is not stated), lost most of her lashes years ago after taking medicine for a fungal infection; they regrew, "but unfortunately they have also become thinner since then" (@Florence-c1f, 9 likes, Y11, my translation).	Unknown. Ask the prescribing doctor.
Chemotherapy	Cancer drugs attack fast-growing cells, including hair roots.	Common chemotherapy drugs (taxanes, doxorubicin and cyclophosphamide) cause loss "approximately 1 week to 1 month after initiation". Loss is "permanent in approximately 5% of cases". "Younger patients may regrow hair sooner".	Only the prescription drug bimatoprost (Latisse) has trial data here (see 1.4). A cosmetic serum is not a treatment.
Alopecia areata (the immune system attacks hair roots)	Patchy loss of lashes, brows or head hair, often both eyes.	"bilateral, patchy eyelash loss in the upper and lower eyelids"; "Eyelashes: no standard treatment".	No. A doctor's case.
Trichotillomania (a habit of pulling out hair)	Lashes pulled out, often in patches of different lengths.	; Dr Dray describes habit-reversal therapy (Y6).	No. The pulling has to stop.
Nutrition	Real deficiencies (rare) can thin hair.	Dr Dray: "in the absence of a confirmed deficiency... don't waste your time money efforts on supplements for lash growth" (Y6). A viewer: "I was losing my eyelashes, but it has improved since I got my Vit D level up" (@PanamaRose, 156 likes, Y9).	No.

Warning signs that need a doctor, not a serum: sudden loss; loss in patches; loss on one eye only; red, crusty, itchy lids; brows thinning at the outer ends at the same time; lashes falling out with other new symptoms (tiredness, weight change, hair loss elsewhere).

1.4 What a lash serum is, and the two families

A lash serum is a thin liquid you paint along the upper lash line, usually once a night, to make lashes look longer, thicker or fuller over weeks. It is not makeup: it does nothing on the day you put it on.

There are two families. They work in completely different ways.

	Family A: prostaglandin-type ("drug-like")	Family B: peptide, vitamin and plant ("conditioning")
What it is	A chemical copy of a body hormone-like substance, prostaglandin F2-alpha. The original is a glaucoma eye drop.	A mix of moisturisers, vitamins, small protein pieces (peptides) and plant extracts.
Examples	Latisse (bimatoprost, prescription). Cosmetic ones: GrandeLASH-MD, Babe Essential, neuLASH (isopropyl cloprostenate), RevitaLash Advanced (DDDE)	Luxe, The Ordinary Multi-Peptide, GrandeLASH Peptide+, Babe Renewing, Vegamour GRO, Lashfood
What it does	Keeps lashes in the growing stage longer and wakes up resting roots, so lashes grow longer, thicker and darker.	Moisturises and coats lashes so they break less and stay on the lid longer. Any real effect on growth is unproven.
Evidence	Strong for Latisse (a trial for the FDA, the US government body that approves medicines; below).	"promising data, more studies are needed due to a lack of formal evidence" (S18, J Cosmet Dermatol 2024 review)
Main risks	Eye colour change, darker lids, hollow eyes, red eyes and more (below).	Irritation or allergy, like any cosmetic.
Legal status in the US	Latisse is a prescription drug. The cosmetic ones are sold as cosmetics.	Cosmetic.

Family A: how prostaglandin-type serums work, plainly

1. The accident. Eye doctors gave glaucoma patients eye drops that copy prostaglandin, to lower the pressure in the eye. They noticed the patients grew long, thick lashes. Dr Sam Ellis (dermatologist): "these eye doctors noticed… their patients being treated for glaucoma they developed these gorgeous gorgeous eyelashes" (Y2). Glaucoma = an eye disease where pressure inside the eye damages the nerve of sight.
2. What it does to a lash:
    - It makes lashes "spend more time getting longer", and less time resting, "so you're actually going to see more hairs come up over time" (Y2).
    - It enlarges "the base of the hair called the bulb so the lashes grow out thicker" (Y2).

    - It "stimulate[s] production of the pigment molecule… melanin and so the lashes will also appear darker" (Y2).
    - It does not create new roots: "you don't get new hair follicles with prostaglandin analogs" (Y2).
3. Kitchen picture. If a lash root is a bakery oven that is normally on for 6 weeks, the prostaglandin keeps it on for longer and wakes up ovens that were off. Bigger loaves, more loaves.

The proof: the Latisse trial (S7, the official label). 278 adults, 4 months, Latisse against a look-alike liquid with no drug in it (the "vehicle").

Week	Lashes improved by at least one grade: Latisse	Same, vehicle
4	15%	8%
8	50%	15%
12	69%	20%
16	78%	18%
20	79%	21%

At week 16, Latisse lashes were 25% longer (vehicle 2%), 106% fuller (vehicle 12%) and 18% darker (vehicle 3%).

Other Latisse evidence:

- After chemotherapy: 130 people. A person counted as a "responder" only if two things happened together: the doctor rated their lashes at least one grade better, and their own score on a lash-satisfaction questionnaire rose by at least 3 points. At 6 months, 46.9% were responders on bimatoprost against 18.2% on the vehicle. In the second 6 months everyone got the drug: at 12 months the responder rate was 61.5% in the group that had stayed on bimatoprost, and 67.6% in the group that had switched from the vehicle to bimatoprost. These are two separate groups, not a range. Most common side effects: eye redness 16.7% and a scratchy eye surface ("punctate keratitis") 9.4%. The study was run with the drug maker.
- Alopecia universalis (total body hair loss): 41 people, once a day for a year: "slight, moderate, or complete eyelash growth in about 70.3% of patients".
- Eyebrows: a trial of 357 people with brow loss found fuller, thicker brows on bimatoprost than on the control.
- When you stop: "Upon discontinuation of treatment, eyelash growth is expected to return to its pre-treatment level".
- More is not better: "Additional applications of LATISSE® will not increase the growth of eyelashes".
- Older users: "No overall clinical differences in safety or effectiveness have been observed between elderly and other adult patients" (S7, section 8.5).

The side effects of prostaglandin-type serums, explained simply

Side effect	Plain words	How likely, and does it go away?
Iris darkening	The coloured part of the eye (the iris) turns browner. Most visible in blue, green or hazel eyes.	Latisse label: "likely to be permanent"; may take "several months to years" to show. Dr Sam Ellis: "especially if you have blue or green eyes they can turn brown" (Y2).
Darker eyelid skin	Brown or grey shadow on the lids or under the eye, like a permanent eyeshadow or dark circle.	Label: "reversible upon discontinuation… in most patients".
Red eyes	The white of the eye looks bloodshot. Medical word: conjunctival hyperemia.	Label: under 4% in the trial; 16.7% in the chemo trial.
Itching, irritation, dry eye	Itchy, gritty, dry eyes.	Label: each under 4%. An optometrist warns they "can cause permanent changes to the meibomian glands leading to permanent dry eye" (Y10, her opinion).
Fat loss around the eye	The padding around the eye shrinks; the eye looks sunken, the lid crease (the fold in the upper eyelid) deepens, the lid may droop. Medical name: PAP, "prostaglandin-associated periorbitopathy".	Reported after approval. Dr Sam Ellis: "it is reversible so once you stop… within four to six weeks you can see a lot of reversal… not everyone gets complete reversal" (Y2). Dr Dray: mostly seen with glaucoma drops put into the eye; for store-bought serums "a theoretical possibility but I'm not aware of any cases" (Y4). Risk factors include "being of an older age" (Y4).
Stray hairs	Hair grows where the liquid runs, such as the cheek.	Label section 5.4. A viewer: "I grew dark hair on my upper cheekbone where all those tears w/ babe lash mixed in sat & dried" (@poweredbycinnamonmocha, 19 likes, Y1 comments).
Lashes growing the wrong way (trichiasis)	Lashes grow inward and scratch the eye.	Reported after approval. "a short, sharp, stubby second row of lashes on the inside of my eyelids" (@pinkpeony5302, 737 likes, Y8).
Swelling at the back of the eye (macular edema)	Fluid in the centre of the retina (the light-sensing layer at the back of the eye), blurring sight.	Label: caution after cataract surgery (an operation that replaces the eye's cloudy lens) when the lens capsule (the thin bag that holds the lens) is torn, or with other risk factors (S7, section 5.6).
Interference with glaucoma drops	Using a second prostaglandin may weaken the glaucoma drop.	Label section 5.1.

Note: The Budget Dermatologist quotes higher rates (red eyes 10–15%, lid darkening about 18%, iris change 3–8%) (Y15). She does not give her source; the official label figures are lower. Use the label figures.

The cosmetic copies. Several cosmetic serums contain prostaglandin-like chemicals with long names. Doctors' tip: look for "prost" in the name (Y10, Y15). The common ones:

Name on the label	Where found
Isopropyl cloprostenate	GrandeLASH-MD, Babe Essential, neuLASH (brand pages, S23)
Dechloro dihydroxy difluoro ethylcloprostenolamide (DDDE, also "ethyl tafluprostamide")	RevitaLash Advanced (INCIDecoder, a free website that explains cosmetic ingredients; S23)
Methylamido-dihydro-noralfaprostal (MDN)	named in the EU safety opinion
Bimatoprost, norbimatoprost	Latisse; found hidden in some online serums

- Hidden ones. A 2022 Japanese lab test of 64 serums bought online found 4 with bimatoprost, "three [of which] did not indicate their contents on their package labels", and 8 more with other prostaglandin-type chemicals.
- The EU. The EU's scientific safety committee concluded in February 2026 that none of these "can be considered safe for use in cosmetic products intended for promoting the growth of eyelashes and eyebrows". A ban was drafted and sent to the EU Council on 22 September 2026, with adoption expected in late 2026. It was not yet law on 2026-10-31.

Family B: how peptide and "conditioning" serums work, plainly

These serums try to make the lashes you already have healthier and less breakable, so more of them reach their full length and stay on the lid until their natural fall-out date.

- Dr Rupa Wong (ophthalmologist): peptides "give strength to the lashes but not shown in scientific studies as far as i could find as to an actually enhancing lash growth it might just work by preventing your current lashes from breaking and not falling" (Y1).
- She adds: "as far as i could find there are no scientific studies linking any of these ingredients... with enhanced lash growth" (Y1), and "you're not going to see the tremendous growth that you do with the prostaglandins" (Y1).
- Dr Dray (dermatologist) on The Ordinary's peptide serum: "I suspect that any benefits you might obtain... is in conditioning those hairs and reducing breakage" (Y7). Possible ways peptides might act: "stimulating the production of keratins... stimulating the dermal papilla [the growth centre at the bottom of the root]... or stimulating the release of important growth factors... however there are no formal studies on peptides for lash growth" (Y7).
- Dr Sam Ellis is more positive: "there is anecdotal evidence that those work and some very small studies that they can be effective... I have tons of patients who have tried these and have found a lot of great success" (Y2).
- Safety: Dr Dray: "you're not going to likely run into the risk... of changing the color of your eyes there's no concern that you would have orbital fat loss with these ingredients", but "there is always the risk of irritation [and] contact dermatitis" (Y7). Contact dermatitis = a red, itchy skin rash from something that touched the skin.

Kitchen picture. A peptide serum is like hair conditioner for lashes. Conditioner doesn't make your hair grow faster, but hair that doesn't snap ends up looking longer and fuller.

What "looks longer" can honestly mean: lashes that used to break off at half-length now reach full length; fewer lashes lost when you take off mascara; slightly glossier, softer lashes that catch the light. That is real, but it is smaller than Latisse's effect.

1.5 The history, and why people are buying now

When	What happened	Source
Ancient Egypt	Lash enhancement already recorded.
1990s–2000s	Glaucoma patients on prostaglandin drops grow long lashes.	Dr Sam Ellis (Y2); Dr Dray (Y4). Exact years not pulled.
2007	The FDA seizes a cosmetic lash serum (Age Intervention Eyelash) because it contained bimatoprost.	Search snippets: drugs.com, healio.com (S18 notes)
2008	Latisse approved by the US FDA for "hypotrichosis of the eyelashes" (not enough lashes).	"approved by the US FDA in 2008 for eyelash hypotrichosis". Dr Dray says "in 2007" (Y4).
2010s	Cosmetic brands launch their own prostaglandin-type serums (GrandeLASH-MD, RevitaLash, neuLASH, Babe).	Brand pages
2019–2024	Skin and eye doctors on YouTube warn about prostaglandin side effects, and viewers start asking for "safe" serums.	(Y2, Y4, Y8, Y9, Y10)
2020s	Big brands add prostaglandin-free lines for nervous buyers (GrandeLASH Peptide+, Babe Renewing). The Ordinary's cheap peptide serum goes viral. "#lashserum has over 409 million views on TikTok" (S24, snippet).
2026	The EU moves to ban prostaglandin-type ingredients in cosmetics (not yet law, 2026-10-31).

Why people are buying now:

1. Mascara and false lashes are a daily chore; a serum promises your own lashes.
2. Extensions are expensive and many women, especially older women with fine lashes, find they damage or don't suit their lashes.
3. Side-effect fear has grown, so "prostaglandin-free" has become a selling point in itself.
4. Cheap Amazon serums (US$13–30) let people try without a prescription or a $100+ bill.

1.6 The types inside the category

Type	What it is	Typical examples and prices (S23, prices as pulled)	Strength of effect	Main risk
Prescription bimatoprost	A licensed drug, prescribed and monitored by a doctor	Latisse, about $155 for 3 mL at average retail, about $38 with a coupon (GoodRx snippet)	Strongest, proven	Prostaglandin side effects
Cosmetic prostaglandin-type serum	A cosmetic containing a prostaglandin copy	GrandeLASH-MD $68 / 2 mL; Babe Essential $49 / 2 mL; neuLASH $95 / 3.2 mL	Strong (users' reports)	Same side effects, no doctor watching
Peptide serum	Peptides plus moisturisers	The Ordinary Multi-Peptide $14.90 / 5 mL (Amazon, ASINSIGHT report, Sep-2026, in; GrandeLASH Peptide+ $48 / 4 mL; Babe Renewing $49 / 6 mL; Luxe $13 / 3 mL on Amazon	Mild, unproven for growth	Irritation
Plant ("botanical") serum	Plant extracts plus peptides	Vegamour GRO $68; Lashfood Phyto-Medic $49–78 / 3 mL	Mild, unproven	Irritation, allergy
Oils	Castor oil, coconut oil	Castor oil about $10–14 on Amazon	Coats lashes; no growth evidence	Can clog lid oil glands and cause styes (Y1)
Mascara with "serum"	Mascara with conditioning ingredients	e.g. Luxe Conditioning Peptide Mascara (pack 1)	Cosmetic look on the day	Like any mascara
Brow serum	The same idea, for brows	Luxe sells a separate "Eyebrow Growth Serum" and a "Lash and Brow serum"	As above	As above
Supplements	Pills (biotin, collagen and others)	Many	"no research-backed… supplements for lash growth" (Dr Dray, Y6)	High-dose biotin can upset blood tests (see 2.3)

1.7 Glossary: every word the operator will hear

Word	Plain meaning
Alopecia	Hair loss. "Alopecia areata" = patchy hair loss caused by the immune system.

Word	Plain meaning
Allergic blepharitis	Eyelid edges that are red and inflamed because of an allergy (for example to extension glue).
Amazon's Choice	A badge Amazon puts on some listings for a search.
Antioxidant	An ingredient that protects against damage from oxygen and sunlight.
ASIN	Amazon's product number.
Anagen	The growing stage of a hair. For lashes, about 4–10 weeks.
Analogue (analog)	A man-made copy that acts like the original chemical.
Applicator / wand / brush	The little brush on the cap. Luxe's is a fine, eyeliner-type brush.
Bimatoprost	The drug in Latisse; a prostaglandin copy.
Biotin	Vitamin B7, a vitamin linked with hair and nails.
Blepharitis	Inflamed, crusty, itchy eyelid edges.
Blepharoplasty	Eyelid surgery to remove extra skin or fat.
Brow bone / lid bone	The bony ridge under the eyebrow, above the eyelid.
Cataract surgery	An operation that replaces the eye's cloudy lens with a clear artificial one.
Catagen	The short "switching off" stage of a hair, about 15 days for a lash.
Chelating agent	An ingredient that grabs tiny traces of metal in water, which helps a product keep.
Chemotherapy	Cancer treatment with strong drugs; common ones (taxanes, doxorubicin, cyclophosphamide) make hair fall out.
Cleanser / makeup remover	A wash or liquid that takes off makeup and dirt. An "oil cleanser" or "balm" is an oily one that melts makeup.
Concealer	Skin-coloured makeup that hides marks and dark circles.
Conditioning	Making hair softer, more flexible and less likely to break.
Contact dermatitis	A rash from something that touched the skin, by irritation or allergy.
Cosmetic (in law)	A product meant to clean or beautify, not to change how the body works.
Cruelty-free	Not tested on animals.
Dark circles	Darker skin under the eyes.
DDDE	A prostaglandin-type chemical used in RevitaLash Advanced.
Demodex	Tiny mites that live in hair roots, including lashes. More common with age.
Dermatologist	A skin doctor (skin, hair and nails).

Word	Plain meaning
Dermatochalasis	Loose, hanging skin of the upper eyelid, common with age ("hooded" lids).
Drug (in law)	A product meant to treat a condition or change how the body works, e.g. to "grow" hair.
Eczema	Dry, itchy, inflamed skin.
Estrogen	The main female hormone; it falls at menopause.
Extensions	Single fake lashes glued one by one onto your own lashes. A "lash tech" is the person who applies them.
Eye cream / eye balm	A small, rich moisturiser made for the skin around the eyes.
Eyeliner	Makeup drawn as a thin line along the lash line. "Liquid eyeliner" is painted on with a fine brush, the same movement used for a lash serum.
Eyeshadow	Coloured powder or cream put on the eyelid.
FDA	The US Food and Drug Administration, the government body that approves medicines and oversees cosmetics.
Follicle	The little pocket in the skin a hair grows from.
GHK-Cu, AHK-Cu	Copper-carrying peptides: tiny protein pieces with a copper atom attached.
Glaucoma	An eye disease where pressure damages the nerve of sight. Treated with eye drops, some of them prostaglandins.
Glycols	A family of clear, man-made helper liquids used in cosmetics to dissolve ingredients and hold moisture.
GoodRx	A US website that offers discount coupons for prescription medicines.
Humectant	An ingredient that pulls in and holds water, like a sponge. Glycerin is one.
Hypotrichosis	Not enough hair, or hair that is too short or thin. Latisse is approved for "hypotrichosis of the eyelashes".
INCI list	The official ingredient list, in order from most to least.
INCIDecoder	A free website that explains cosmetic ingredients (it now redirects to inkeedecoder.com).
Iris	The coloured ring of the eye.
Isopropyl cloprostenate	A prostaglandin-type chemical used in some cosmetic serums.
Keratin	The tough protein hair, nails and the outer skin are made of.
Keratoconjunctivitis	Inflammation of the clear front of the eye and the inside of the lids, for example from an allergy.
Lash lift	A "perm" for lashes that curls them upward for 6–8 weeks.

Word	Plain meaning
Lash curler	A small hand clamp that squeezes the lashes so they bend upward.
Lash line / lid margin	The edge of the eyelid where lashes grow.
Lash tint	Dye for lashes.
Lens capsule	The thin, clear bag inside the eye that holds the lens.
Lid crease	The fold in the upper eyelid.
Madarosis	Loss of eyelashes or eyebrows.
Mascara	Black or brown paint brushed onto the lashes to make them look darker, longer and thicker for the day. It washes off at night.
Meibomian glands	Oil glands along the lid edge that put the oily layer on the tears.
Melanin	The brown-black colour (pigment) of skin, hair and eyes.
Moisturiser	A cream or lotion that keeps skin soft and stops it drying out.
Oil-free	Contains no oils. Matters for extension glue, which oils loosen.
Ophthalmologist	A medical doctor and surgeon for eyes.
Optometrist	An eye-care professional who tests sight and treats many eye problems, but is not a surgeon.
PAP (prostaglandin-associated periorbitopathy)	The group of changes around the eye from prostaglandins: fat loss, deeper lid crease, droop, darker skin.
Paraben	A common type of preservative.
Patch test	Trying a product on a small patch of skin first to check for a reaction.
Peptide	A short chain of amino acids (the building blocks of protein). A tiny piece of protein.
Polypeptide	A longer chain of amino acids.
Preservative	An ingredient that stops germs growing in a product.
Retina	The light-sensing layer at the back of the eye.
Retinol, acids	Strong skincare ingredients that speed up skin renewal; they can sting thin eyelid skin.
Prostaglandin	A natural hormone-like substance in the body. Its copies are used in glaucoma drops and strong lash serums.
Prostaglandin-free	Contains no prostaglandin or prostaglandin copy.
Serum	A thin, light liquid product.
Shedding	Normal falling out of old hairs.
Stye	A painful red bump on the lid edge from a blocked, infected gland.
Subscribe & Save	Amazon's repeat-delivery discount: you agree to regular deliveries and pay a little less.

Word	Plain meaning
Sunscreen	A cream that protects skin from the sun.
Tear film	The thin layer of tears that covers the eye and keeps it wet.
Telogen	The resting stage of a hair. For lashes, about 4–9 months.
Telogen effluvium	Sudden extra shedding about 3 months after a shock to the body.
Toner	A watery liquid wiped or patted on the face after washing.
Traction alopecia	Hair lost from repeated pulling, e.g. by heavy extensions.
Trichiasis	Lashes growing inward toward the eye.
Trichotillomania	A habit of pulling out one's own hair.
Tubing mascara	Mascara that wraps each lash in a tiny tube and slides off with warm water.
Vegan	Contains no animal ingredients.
Vehicle	In a trial, the same liquid without the active drug.
Waterproof mascara	Mascara that resists water; harder to remove.

How long one lasts	Brand: "60 applications"; "One tube… lasts for 1-2 months, depending on how often you use the serum"
Shelf life once made	Brand: "a shelf life of 4 months. We recommend using your Luxe Serums within 1-2 months… storing them at 36°F to 77°F (2.2°C to 25°C)"
Colour	Amazon lists "Clear"
What's in the box	Brand: "the Luxe Eyelash Serum and instructions". An Amazon buyer: "It does not come with instructions."	; Ashley Barfuss (Y19)
Who it's sold for	"suitable for short, thin and weak eyelashes. Also, suitable if you have fewer eyelashes or eyelash illness." Also "suitable for men".

What 60 applications means: at once a night, a tube lasts about 2 months, so about 6 tubes a year, about $78 a year at the $13 Amazon price. If you follow the brand's "twice a day for the first 2 months", a tube lasts about 1 month. For comparison, the Latisse 3 mL box comes with 70 single-use applicators, one per eye per night, so about 35 nights.

2.2 What it looks, feels and smells like

Built from the two video reviews and from the 93 Luxe reviews in the reviews file (Part 2). Codes such as L-59 are quotes there.

Feature	What sources say	Source
Packaging	A slim black tube with rose-gold/pink lettering, in a small box. Box tagline: "Natural ingredients for longer and fuller lashes", "LC" logo. A German buyer: "sehr schöne Verpackung eignet sich auch super als Geschenk" ("very nice packaging, also great as a present").	AI video read of two reviews (Y19, Y20; earlier report); L-59
The brush	"this tiny little brush right here"; a "Little eyelet that you put on your eyelashes" [probably "eyeliner"]; "Nice brush."	Ashley Barfuss (Y19); Ageless channel (Y20); luxe.com review by Desiree A. (S2, L-S3)
How it goes on	"man trägt es wie einen Eyeliner auf die Wimpern auf" ("you apply it to the lashes like an eyeliner"); "Auch für Ungeübte machbar" ("doable even for beginners"); "you're just going to kind of paint it on right at that lash line".	L-59; L-32; Ashley Barfuss (Y19, L-Y2)
The liquid	Clear: "it's completely clear, so… you won't notice it smearing"; "it'll stay where it needs to go as soon as it dries".	Ashley Barfuss (Y19)

Feature	What sources say	Source
Texture on the lashes	One buyer felt nothing changed except "sie werden klebrig" ("they get sticky"). A US buyer of the lash-and-brow set: "Love the way it feels." A sponsored-looking video calls it "lightweight, non-sticky" (weak evidence).	L-29; L-S4; L-Y5
Smell	"Es hat keinen Eigengeruch" ("it has no smell of its own"). The brand says "Free from perfume" and "fragrance-free". No other Luxe reviewer mentions smell.	L-59 (Manuela L., 4 stars);,
The tube	"it does stay nicely shut... and it doesn't leak"	Ageless channel (Y20)
Drying time	Brand: "Let dry for 1-2 minutes"
Feeling on the eye	Of the 93 Luxe pieces in the reviews file: 2 mention burning (Cecilia K., after 3 months of daily use, with "very dry eyes in the morning", L-19; the Ageless channel, a 10-year Latisse user: "it burned every time I put it on… I did it for five nights in a row. Didn't start to taper down", L-Y1), 1 an allergic reaction (L-21), 1 "didn't tolerate it well" with no detail (L-14), and 1 "sticky" lashes (L-29). 6 call it gentle, for example "brennt auch nicht in den Augen bzw. verursacht bei mir keine Rötungen" ("doesn't burn in the eyes and doesn't cause any redness for me", L-59) and "I don't have any stinging in my eyes" (Ashley Barfuss, who says her eyes are "really sensitive", L-Y2).	Reviews file, 2026-10-31

So stinging or burning shows up in about 2 of every 93 Luxe reviews, and gentleness in about 6. Most reviewers say nothing either way. These are mostly the brand's own review boxes, and the 495 Amazon reviews could not be read, so the true rate is not known.

2.3 Every ingredient, one by one

The brand's full list, in the brand's own words:

> "Purified Water (Aqua), Glycerol, Panax Ginseng Extract, Vitamin B7 (Biotin), Vitamin E (Tocopherol), Arginine/lysine polypeptide, 1,2-hexanediol, tripeptide-1, octyl hydroxamic acid, Myristoyl Pentapeptide-4"

The German site gives the same 10, in the same order.

How to read an ingredient list: "the first one is going to be in the highest percentage in the product and then the last one is in the lowest percentage" (Dr Rupa Wong, Y17). So this serum is mostly water and glycerin, and the peptides at the end are tiny amounts. (In EU and US rules, ingredients under 1% may be listed in any order; I did not pull a source for this.)

#	Ingredient (label name)	What it is, in plain words	What it does here	Evidence for lashes	Kitchen comparison
1	Purified water (aqua)	Clean water.	The base that carries everything else.	n/a	The water in a soup.
2	Glycerol (glycerin)	A clear, syrupy, sweet liquid made from plant oils or fats. Also found naturally in the outer layer of our skin.	A humectant: it pulls in and holds water, so lashes and the lid skin stay moist and flexible. Dr Rupa Wong: it's there "to prevent the serum from drying out in the bottle or on your eyelids prematurely" (Y17).	INCIDecoder: "A super common, safe, effective and cheap molecule used for more than 50 years", "protects against irritation, helps to restore barrier". No lash-growth data.	Like the honey that keeps a cake moist.
3	Panax ginseng extract	An extract of the root of Asian (Korean) ginseng, a plant used in traditional medicine for 2,000+ years.	Marketing: "Revitalizes hair follicles". INCIDecoder: improves "skin nutrition and metabolism", antioxidant.	No eyelash trial found. For scalp hair, the evidence is mostly in mice (red ginseng oil and one ginseng compound sped up hair regrowth in mice); "rigorous clinical evidence is limited" (S14, search summaries). Dr Rupa Wong lists ginseng among natural-serum ingredients with no lash studies (Y1).	A herbal tonic: traditional, plausible, unproven here.

#	Ingredient (label name)	What it is, in plain words	What it does here	Evidence for lashes	Kitchen comparison
4	Vitamin B7 (biotin)	A B vitamin the body uses to make energy and keratin.	Marketing says it strengthens lashes. INCIDecoder: "When you do not take it as a supplement its effects are a bit more questionable".	Dr Rupa Wong: "no studies to show that [biotin] actually has helped with lash growth" (Y1). Pills only help people who truly lack it, which is rare: in a review of cases, every patient who improved "had an underlying condition"; one controlled trial found no difference from a dummy pill after 90 days. No data on biotin rubbed on lashes.	Like a vitamin pill for someone who already eats well: little extra effect.
5	Vitamin E (tocopherol)	A fat-soluble vitamin found in nuts, seeds and oils.	An antioxidant (protects against damage from oxygen and sunlight) and a conditioner. Dr Rupa Wong: "it is an excellent conditioner… making them less dry less brittle less likely to break" (Y1).	Conditioning only. No growth data. (Y1)	Like rubbing a little oil into dry leather so it doesn't crack.
6	Arginine/lysine polypeptide	A man-made chain built from two amino acids, arginine and lysine. Arginine is "one of the primary building blocks of hair keratin" (INCIDecoder, S15).	Official EU function: "skin conditioning". It coats and moisturises.	No lash data found.	Like a protein hair mask.

#	Ingredient (label name)	What it is, in plain words	What it does here	Evidence for lashes	Kitchen comparison
7	1,2-hexanediol	A clear, man-made helper liquid.	Several jobs: gives a pleasant feel, holds moisture, dissolves other ingredients, and "it can also boost the antimicrobial activity of preservatives" (that is, it helps the preservatives fight germs).	n/a	The "kitchen helper" that makes everything blend and keep.
8	Tripeptide-1	A tiny piece of protein, just 3 amino acids (glycine, histidine, lysine), called "GHK". It is a natural fragment of collagen.	Official functions: "skin conditioning, skin protecting". INCIDecoder: it may signal skin to make collagen, and it carries copper (as a "copper peptide": GHK-Cu, a copper-carrying peptide).	No lash data found. A related copper-carrying peptide (AHK-Cu, not the same one) lengthened human hair roots in a lab dish in 2007; there is no human trial (S22, search summary).	Like a note left on the fridge saying "time to restock". The idea is that it tells cells to work; for lashes, unproven.
9	Octyl hydroxamic acid (caprylhydroxamic acid)	A man-made helper ingredient.	It grabs metal traces in water (a "chelating agent") and slows mould and germs. INCIDecoder: often paired with glycols (clear, man-made helper liquids) "to create a 'preservative free preservative system'".	n/a	Like lemon juice that stops cut apples going brown and keeps food fresh longer.

#	Ingredient (label name)	What it is, in plain words	What it does here	Evidence for lashes	Kitchen comparison
10	Myristoyl pentapeptide-4	A tiny piece of protein (5 amino acids) joined to a fatty acid (myristic acid) so it sinks into skin more easily.	Official function: "skin conditioning". Dr Rupa Wong: "it's supposed to stimulate collagen production... but for the lashes that's not all that important it just might help deliver some of the other ingredients... in and of itself it probably doesn't do too much for the lashes" (Y18).	No lash data found. It is in many cheap lash serums (24 of the first 60 products INCIDecoder lists are lash or brow products) (S15, earlier check). It is not myristoyl pentapeptide-17, the peptide with lash-length supplier data used by The Ordinary and GrandeLASH Peptide+.	A cousin of the "famous" lash peptide, but not the famous one.

Things to notice about the list:

- No oils are listed (vitamin E is oil-soluble but present in a small amount). That fits the brand's "oil-free... safe for lash extensions" claim.
- No fragrance, no parabens (a common type of preservative) are listed, matching the brand's "Free from perfume" and "Paraben free".
- No prostaglandin-type ingredient is listed (see 2.4).
- The preservative question. The brand says "Our serums do not contain preservatives". Ingredients 7 and 9 are the sort used to keep a water-based product free of germs. In plain words: it is preserved, just not with a classic preservative. This matters for safety only in one way: keep the cap closed and replace the tube on time.
- Allergy: the optometrist's warning applies to peptide serums in general: "the ingredients that they use to prevent bacterial growth a lot of times those can have high rates of allergic reactions so you would want to just make sure to do a patch test" (Y10).
- About biotin pills (not this serum): the FDA has warned that high-dose biotin supplements can give false results in some blood tests, including heart-attack (troponin) and thyroid tests, linked to one death (FDA safety communications 2017 and 2019, search summaries, S13). Relevant because viewers who use a "biotin" serum often also take biotin pills. A serum on the lid is a tiny dose.

2.4 The prostaglandin check

- None of these names appear in the Luxe list: isopropyl cloprostenate, DDDE (ethyl tafluprostamide), MDN, bimatoprost, norbimatoprost.
- luxe.com states: "Luxe is 100% prostaglandin-free" and "What we DON'T use: ✗ Prostaglandins".
- Not checked: the list printed on the Amazon box. It was visible but unreadable in both review videos. Nobody has lab-tested this serum (not found).

2.5 The claims it makes

These are the brand's claims, quoted as written. The last column explains, in plain words, what each means for a user; what can and can't be repeated on camera is in section 11.

Claim	Where	What it means for a user
"Visible results in just 4 weeks"; "Visible results after only 4 weeks"	Amazon; luxe.com	A lash's growing stage alone lasts 4–10 weeks (1.2), so judge at 8–12 weeks. In the reviews file, Luxe buyers who give a time mostly saw a change at 3–5 weeks (11 of 13).
"70% more length by week 12"; "up to 70% more length and 40% more thickness by week 8-12"	luxe.com; German page	The brand's own figures. See section 11.
"Clinically proven: To deliver real results"	luxe.com	See section 11.
"Restore natural growth... ingredients that help to stimulate natural hair growth... help reduce hair loss"	Amazon	No evidence for these ingredients on lashes (2.3).
"Suitable... if you have fewer eyelashes or eyelash illness"	luxe.com	Lash loss from an illness needs a doctor first (1.3).
"100% Natural"; "100% Natural Origin"	luxe.com	The peptides and 1,2-hexanediol are made in a lab.
"Vegan and Cruelty-Free"; "Dermatologically tested"	Amazon; luxe.com	Brand statements.
"Safe for sensitive eyes & extensions"; "Safe for contact lens wearers"; "oil-free"	luxe.com	Oil-free fits the list. Of 93 Luxe reviews, 2 report burning, 1 an allergy and 6 say it is gentle (2.2). Patch-test first.
"Zero side effects"; "safe for everyone, including cancer patients!"	luxe.com	Any product near the eye can irritate (section 9). See section 11.
"once you see results, they're YOUR lashes — not temporary"	luxe.com	Unlikely: lashes shed on their normal cycle, so gains fade after stopping (1.2).
"Use consistently once a day for 12 weeks"; "use it 2 times a day for the first 2 months"	luxe.com	The two instructions conflict. For Latisse, extra doses don't help. Once a night is the safer choice (3.2).
Money back: "30-day money-back guarantee"; "If you don't achieve any results after consistent use of 12 weeks you have right to claim for money-back guarantee"	luxe.com	Brand terms (apply to the brand site).

3. How to use it, step by step

3.1 Before the first night

1. Read the box. Check the ingredient list on your box against 2.3. Look for any word containing "prost" (Y10, Y15).
2. Patch test. An optometrist (Dr Sarah Blackwelder, Vibe Optometry) advises "testing it on the back of your hand… for about five to seven days… because sometimes they can be delayed onset reactions… as long as you don't have any type of irritation itching redness or scaling of the skin i would go for it" (Y10). A gentler option for the eye area: a dab behind the ear or at the outer corner of the eye, away from the lash line, for a few nights.
3. If you are under an eye doctor's care (glaucoma drops, recent eye surgery, dry eye treatment, blepharitis): the brand itself says to use it "under the supervision of your doctor if you are undergoing treatment for an eye condition". Ask first.
4. If you are pregnant or breastfeeding: brand: "consult your doctor before use".

3.2 Every night, step by step

Step	What to do	Why	Source
1	Take off all eye makeup. The brand says use "an oil-free makeup remover or cleanser". If you have waterproof mascara, Dr Dray prefers an oil cleanser, which dissolves it without rubbing (Y6).	The serum has to touch clean skin at the lash roots. Rubbing snaps lashes.	; (Y6)
2	Wash the face and the lash line gently. Dr Dray: use "a very mild facial cleanser… gently rub a little bit around the eyelid margin and rinse away… with lukewarm water" (Y6).	Build-up of oil, dead skin and makeup at the lash roots causes inflammation.	(Y6)
3	Pat completely dry.	On a wet lid the serum runs and gets into the eye.
4	Take out contact lenses. Ashley Barfuss: "you definitely want to take out your contacts before you put it in" (Y19). The Latisse label says lenses can go back in after 15 minutes (S7, for Latisse).	Lenses can soak up product.	(Y19);
5	Dip the brush once and wipe off the extra on the rim of the tube. Brand: "Dip the applicator wand once — this is enough for both eyes".	Too much liquid runs into the eye.
6	Look down into a mirror (or close one eye halfway) and gently lift the upper lid with one finger if needed.	It exposes the lash roots.
7	Paint one thin line along the upper lash line, "as close to the roots as possible (like you're applying liquid eyeliner)", from the inner corner to the outer corner.	The roots are where the serum acts.
8	Do the other eye with the same dip.	One dip covers both.

Step	What to do	Why	Source
9	Do not do the lower lashes. Brand: "Don't apply to lower lashes (the serum will naturally transfer when you blink)". The Latisse label says the same for Latisse.	Extra product near the eye surface raises the chance of irritation.	;
10	Blot any drips with a tissue. The Latisse label warns liquid running onto the cheek can grow hair there (S7, for Latisse).	Less likely with a peptide serum, but still keeps it out of the eye.
11	Let it dry for 1–2 minutes before any eye cream.	Wet serum can be spread into the eye by the cream.
12	Close the cap tightly and go to bed. Brand: "tightly closing the lid after use".	Keeps germs out.

In the morning: nothing extra is needed. Wash your face as usual. Mascara can go on top once the lashes are clean and dry.

How often: once a night. The brand's two pages disagree (once a day, or twice a day for the first two months). Once a night is the safer choice: the Latisse label says more doses don't add growth, and every extra dose is extra contact with the eye.

If you miss a night: brand: "just apply the next night — don't double up".

How long one tube lasts: about 2 months at once a night (60 applications, S2). Replace the tube when empty or after the brand's limit, whichever is first: "replace old bottles every 2 months" and "a shelf life of 4 months".

3.3 Tips for older hands and eyes

Many viewers over 60 find fine work at the eye hard. A German woman over 70: "My hands aren't as steady any more; applying mascara is a challenge for me" (@brigitteschadeberg1584, Y11, my translation).

1. Sit at a table and rest your elbow on it, so the hand doesn't shake.
2. Use a magnifying mirror and a bright light from the front.
3. If you wear reading glasses, a magnifying mirror often helps more, because glasses get in the way of the brush.
4. Look down into the mirror rather than straight ahead: the upper lid shows its edge.
5. Hooded lids: gently lift the brow with the other hand's fingertip to show the lash line.
6. If you can't see the lash line clearly, it is better to paint a little above the lashes than to poke at the eye.
7. Do it at the same time every night (after brushing teeth, for example), so it becomes a habit.

3.4 Common beginner mistakes

Mistake	Why it's a problem	Fix	Source
Putting it on the lashes like mascara	The serum needs to reach the roots at the lid edge, not the tips.	Paint the lash line like eyeliner.
Using too much	Runs into the eye, stings, wastes product.	One dip, wipe the brush, both eyes.	;
Putting it on the lower lid too	More irritation risk.	Upper lid only.	,
Applying over mascara or eye cream	The serum can't reach the skin.	Clean, dry lash line first.
Contact lenses still in	Lenses may soak it up.	Lenses out.	(Y19)
Applying twice or three times a night "to speed it up"	No proof it speeds anything up; more irritation.	Once a night.	;
Giving up after 2–3 weeks	Lashes need weeks to months to cycle.	Judge at 12 weeks with photos.	,;
Starting and stopping	Lashes grown in one month shed later; stop-start blurs the result.	Be consistent for 3 months.
No "before" photo	You can't see slow change in the mirror.	Take a close-up in the same light on day 1, then every 4 weeks.
Rubbing the eyes, pulling off mascara, using a hard curler	Undoes the conditioning by breaking lashes.	Oil cleanser, gentle hands, plastic curler or none.	(Y6)
Carrying on through burning	Burning is a warning. One reviewer pushed through 5 nights and it "didn't start to taper down" (Y20).	Stop. Rinse with water.	(Y20),
Using two lash serums at once	Doubles the chance of a reaction, and you can't tell which one did what.	One at a time.
Keeping an old tube for months	Water-based products can grow germs once opened.	Replace at 2 months.
Sharing the tube	The brush touches the eye area: germs pass between people.	Your own tube only.

3.5 How long until you see anything, and what happens when you stop

The brand's timeline:

Week	Brand says
1	"Get ready, babe! Longer eyelashes are on the way."
2	"Keep it up! Consistency is the key."
3	"You should notice the growth of your eyelashes."
3–4	"Most women notice their lashes feel stronger and fall out less during makeup removal."
4	"Visibly longer, fuller and natural eyelashes are now yours!"
8–12	"It normally takes between 8-12 weeks to see full results."

A realistic timeline, built from the lash cycle, the Latisse trial and what users say about peptide serums (Y7 comments):

When	What may realistically happen with a peptide serum
Nights 1–7	Nothing visible. This is the week to watch for stinging, redness or itching.
Weeks 2–4	Lashes may feel softer. You may notice fewer lashes on the cotton pad when removing mascara. Some users of The Ordinary's peptide serum report change this early ("After using this product for less than two weeks, my lashes got objectively longer", 387 likes, Y7). Others see none.
Weeks 6–12	The fair test. Compare photos. Expect, at best, fuller-looking lashes from less breakage and fewer gaps. For comparison, even the prescription drug only helped 50% of people by week 8.
After 12 weeks	If you see no difference in photos, it probably won't do more for you.
Long-term	It only keeps working while you use it.

What happens when you stop:

- Nothing drops out the next day. The lashes you have keep to their normal schedule and fall out over the following months.
- Any improvement fades gradually, over about one lash life cycle (several months).
- This matches users of peptide serums ("the process of growing slows down when you stop", @valeriezaverukha433, Y7), Dr Rupa Wong on The Ordinary ("if you stop using it you're going to see that your lashes return to their normal baseline", Y17), and the Latisse label.
- The brand's "not temporary" claim is not supported.

One warning from the comments: a German woman wrote that a hyped serum gave "extremely long lashes. But shortly after, they fell out and afterwards they were not as thick and long as before. It was the same for my daughter" (@UrsulaNRW, 15 likes, Y11, my translation). She doesn't name the serum. The likely explanation: many lashes grown at the same time also reach their fall-out date at the same time.

---

4. Where it fits in a routine

4.1 The simple rule

Lash serum = the last thing on the eyes at night, on a clean, dry lash line. Mascara is for the day; serum is for the night. They never touch at the same time.

4.2 Night: what goes before and after

Order	Step	Notes
1	Eye makeup remover	Oil-based cleanser or balm for waterproof mascara (Dr Dray, Y6); the brand prefers "oil-free". If you use an oil cleanser, wash it off afterwards with a gentle face wash so no oil is left on the lash line.
2	Face wash	Gentle; rinse the lid edge with lukewarm water (Y6).
3	Lid care, if you have blepharitis	Warm compress then gentle lid massage, "about one to two times a day" (Dr Rupa Wong, Y14); lid wipes or foams as your eye doctor says. Do this before the serum.
4	Eye drops, if prescribed	Ask your eye doctor how long to wait between drops and the serum. Not found in any Luxe instruction.
5	Toner, face serums, face moisturiser	Keep them off the upper lid edge.
6	Luxe lash serum	Thin line on the upper lash line; dry 1–2 minutes.
7	Eye cream or eye balm	Only after the serum is dry. Keep it below the lower lashes and on the lid bone (the bony ridge under the eyebrow), not on the lash line.
8	Sleep	The serum "works overnight".

4.3 Morning

Order	Step	Notes
1	Wash face	Removes last night's serum residue.
2	Skincare, sunscreen	As usual.
3	Mascara (optional)	Once lashes are clean and dry. A conditioning or tubing mascara that comes off with warm water means less rubbing at night (pack 1).

4.4 Using it with other lash products and treatments

Product or treatment	Can you use them together?	What sources say
Mascara	Yes, mascara by day, serum at night.	Brand: "Wait until the serum has fully dried if applying additional beauty product". The removal is what matters: gentle, no scrubbing. Waterproof mascara is the hardest on lashes at removal time (Y6).
Lash extensions	The brand says yes.	Brand: "can be used in conjunction with eyelash extensions since all our serums are oil-free, so they won't damage the extensions". The list contains no oils, which fits. Dr Rupa Wong suggests a serum between extension sets: "you could do a lash serum if you want in between… just to make them a little bit stronger" (Y12). Doctors warn about extensions themselves (traction loss, glue allergy, dirt build-up): Dr Dray, "a very frequent complication of lash extensions is something called madarosis" (Y5). Clean the lash line daily (Y12).
Lash lift (lash perm)	Yes, but not on the same day.	Salon and brand advice: wait 24 hours (The Lash Lounge; Silly George FAQ) or 24–48 hours (Divine Lashes) after a lift (S20, search summaries). The lift chemicals and the fresh curl need the lashes left alone at first. Luxe sells a lash-lift kit as its main product (earlier report). Doctors' caution about lifts: the perm solution (thioglycolic acid) breaks bonds in the hair; Dr Rupa Wong thinks breakage is "likely" but unstudied (Y13); an optometrist warns of chemical burns if it gets in the eye and of damage to the lid oil glands (Y16).
Lash tint (dye)	Yes, not on the same day.	The FDA warns that permanent lash and brow dyes "have been known to cause serious eye injuries" (as quoted by Dr Rupa Wong, Y13).
Lash curler	Yes, gently.	Dr Dray: "put the lash curler down"; prefer plastic, nickel-free (Y6).
Strip false lashes	Yes, on separate days or after removing them.	The glue is a common allergy (Y5). Never paint serum on top of glue.
Contact lenses	Yes, lenses out first.	(Y19); Latisse waits 15 minutes before reinserting.
Other lash serums	No, one at a time.	Especially never add a prostaglandin-type serum "for extra effect": you lose the whole point of choosing a prostaglandin-free one.
Glaucoma drops	Ask your eye doctor.	Luxe has no prostaglandin, so the Latisse interaction warning (S7, 5.1) should not apply. The brand says use it under a doctor's care if you are treated for an eye condition.
Retinol, acids, strong eye creams	Keep them away from the lash line.	They can irritate the lid edge; the serum's own stinging would be harder to tell apart.
Castor oil or other oils	Not on the same lash line, if you wear extensions or get styes.	Oils can clog lid glands and cause styes (Y1).

4.5 Brows

- Can it go on brows? The Luxe Amazon listing and FAQ are about lashes. Luxe sells separate products for brows ("Luxe Eyebrow Growth Serum", "Luxe Lash and Brow serum"). Whether the 3 mL lash serum is the same formula as those: not found.
- Nothing in the ingredient list is unsafe for brow skin, which is tougher than lid skin. Users of other peptide serums often use one tube for both: "I also use on my eyebrows and am seeing excellent results" (@mikam8801, 321 likes, The Ordinary, Y17).
- Why brows thin: age; underactive thyroid, which typically thins the outer third of the brow (S5, Y7); eczema (Y7); years of over-plucking ("missing it since the early 2000s thanks to over plucking", optometrist, Y10); menopause, by viewers' accounts (Y7 comments). A brow grows in a shorter cycle than head hair: growing 2–3 months, transition 2–3 weeks, resting 2–3 months.
- Evidence for brows: only bimatoprost has a large trial (357 people, S5). Nothing for peptide serums on brows (not found).

4.6 What not to mix

1. Two lash serums at once.
2. Any product containing "prost" in an ingredient name, if the reason for choosing Luxe is avoiding prostaglandins.
3. Lash-lift or tint chemicals on the same day as the serum.
4. Oil-heavy eye products on the lash line, if you are prone to styes or wear extensions.
5. A serum on an eye that is red, infected, has a stye, or has just had surgery.

4.7 Example routines

A. Basic, any age

Night	Morning
1. Remove mascara gently	1. Wash face
2. Wash face, rinse the lash line	2. Moisturiser, sunscreen
3. Lash serum, upper lash line, let dry	3. Mascara (optional)
4. Eye cream below the lashes

B. A woman over 60 (fine, short lashes; hooded lids; slightly dry eyes; reading glasses)

Night	Morning
1. Warm water or oil cleanser on a soft cloth, pressed on the closed eyes for a few seconds, then wiped downward. No scrubbing.	1. Splash face with lukewarm water or a gentle wash
2. Gentle face wash; rinse the lash line	2. Moisturiser and sunscreen
3. If the eye doctor has advised it: warm compress 5 minutes, lid massage	3. A tubing or water-soluble mascara in brown or soft black, upper lashes only

Night	Morning
4. Sit at a table, elbow down, magnifying mirror. Lift the brow gently. One thin line of serum on the upper lash line, inner to outer corner.	4. Lubricating eye drops if the eye doctor recommends them
5. Let dry 2 minutes (brush teeth meanwhile)
6. Eye cream below the lower lashes and on the brow bone
7. Glasses on the bedside table; photo of the lashes on day 1 and every 4 weeks

C. Extension wearer

Night	Notes
1. Oil-free lash cleanser or foam, soft brush, rinse	Keep the lash line clean daily (Y12).
2. Pat dry, no rubbing
3. Thin line of serum at the roots, avoiding glue spots	Brand: oil-free, extension-safe.
4. Let dry, brush extensions gently

D. Contact-lens wearer

1. Lenses out. 2. Remove makeup, wash. 3. Serum, let dry. 4. Lenses stay out overnight anyway. 5. In the morning, lenses in before mascara.

E. Someone under eye-doctor care (glaucoma drops, recent cataract surgery, blepharitis, dry-eye treatment): ask the eye doctor before starting, and follow their order for drops and lid care.

---

5. Who it's for and who it isn't

5.1 By person

Who	Fit	Why
Lashes naturally short, thin or sparse, no medical cause	Good	The most a peptide serum offers is less breakage and fuller-looking lashes.
Lashes that break: from curling, rubbing, rough removal, extensions, lifts	Good	Conditioning matters most where lashes snap.
Worried about eye colour change, darker lids or hollow eyes	Strong	No prostaglandin-type ingredient on the list (2.4).

Who	Fit	Why
Light (blue, green, hazel) eyes	Strong	The iris risk of prostaglandins is "likely to be permanent".
Hollow or hooded upper lids	Strong	Prostaglandin fat loss deepens hollows; this avoids that.
Glaucoma patients already on prostaglandin drops	Good, with the doctor's OK	Avoids doubling up a prostaglandin (S7, 5.1).
After cataract surgery	Good, with the doctor's OK	The Latisse macular-edema caution (S7, 5.6) is about prostaglandins.
Budget buyers	Strong	$13 on Amazon against $28–$155 for rivals.
Lash-extension wearers between sets	OK	Oil-free per the brand.
Men	OK	The brand says suitable for men.
Someone wanting Latisse-level growth	Poor	No evidence it comes close. Latisse is a prescription drug; ask a doctor.
Very sensitive eyes or skin	Mixed	Of 93 Luxe reviews, 2 report burning (one did not settle after 5 nights, L-Y1), 1 an allergic reaction and 1 "didn't tolerate it"; 6 say it is gentle, including a reviewer with "really sensitive" eyes (L-Y2). Patch-test first.
Allergy to any listed ingredient	No
Active eye infection, stye, red inflamed lids, blepharitis flare	No, not now	Treat that first (Y1, Y14).
Sudden, patchy or one-eye lash loss	No: see a doctor	Could be thyroid, alopecia areata, mites, infection.
Lash loss from chemotherapy or alopecia	Not a treatment	Only bimatoprost has trials. Ask the oncologist or dermatologist.
Pregnant or breastfeeding	Ask a doctor	Brand advice.
Children	No	Brand: "Keep out of reach of children".
Shaky hands or poor near vision	Possible, with help	See 3.3.

5.2 By eye type

Eye type	What to know
Hooded lids (skin folds down over the lid crease)	The lash line is hidden; lift the brow gently to apply. Mascara transfers onto the fold; serum doesn't, once dry.

Eye type	What to know
Deep-set or hollow eyes	Exactly the type doctors say has "no wiggle room" for prostaglandin fat loss (Dr Sam Ellis, about her own deep-set eyes, Y2). A prostaglandin-free serum avoids that risk.
Dry eyes	Dry eye is common in older women (about 7% of US women over 50 have symptomatic dry eye, Women's Health Study, as quoted in a review; S21, search summary). The optometrist: "if you are someone like me who suffers with dry eye i would probably avoid [prostaglandins]" (Y10). Peptide serums are her preferred class. Still patch-test.
Sensitive, watery eyes	Test for a week; stop if it stings.
Light-coloured eyes	Avoid prostaglandin-type serums (S7, Y2). Luxe has none on its list.
Contact-lens wearers	Lenses out before applying.
Eyes with blepharitis or styes	Treat first; avoid oily lash products (Y1).
Downward-pointing lashes	A serum won't change direction. Dr Dray notes some people need a curler because downturned lashes irritate the eye (Y6).

5.3 By skin type

Skin type	What to know
Sensitive skin or eyes	The group most at risk of stinging. In the reviews file, one of the two Luxe burning reports comes from a woman with sensitive skin (L-Y1: "I do have sensitive skin"); the other does not say (L-19). Another reviewer with "really sensitive" eyes felt nothing (L-Y2). On the rival Sweed serum, older women who ticked "Sensitive" on the review form mostly report no irritation (R-706, R-735, R-736), but one woke with red, swollen lids the next morning (R-717). Patch-test for about a week (3.1).
Oily eyelids (shiny lids, makeup slides off)	Wash the lash line well first, so the serum is not sitting on oil. The serum is oil-free, so it adds no grease. No source found on serum results for oily lids.
Dry eyelids (flaky, tight lids, common after 50)	Glycerin, the second ingredient, holds water (2.3), which suits dry skin. Flaking at the lash roots can also be blepharitis, which needs treating first (1.3, 6.11).
Darker skin	Not expected to darken lids, because there is no prostaglandin on the list. But any irritation can leave darker marks on darker skin (Dr Dray, Y7; see question 6). Stop at the first sign of redness. One older Sweed reviewer with "Deep" skin tone reports only a good result (R-722).

Skin type	What to know
Very fair skin and light lashes	Results may be easier to see if the lashes are also tinted; one 70-year-old "very fair" Vegamour user had her longer lashes dyed afterwards "and they really stand out" (R-609).

5.4 By budget

Price band, per tube	Options (price / size)
Under $20	Luxe $13 / 3 mL (Amazon); The Ordinary Multi-Peptide $14.90 / 5 mL (Amazon, Sep-2026); castor oil about $10–14
$25–50	Babe Renewing $29 / 3 mL or $49 / 6 mL; GrandeLASH Peptide+ $28 / 2 mL or $48 / 4 mL; Babe Essential $49 / 2 mL (prostaglandin type)
$50–100	GrandeLASH-MD $68 / 2 mL; Vegamour GRO $68; Sweed Eyelash Growth Serum $65 / 3 mL or $90 / 5 mL; neuLASH $95 / 3.2 mL; RevitaLash Advanced $100 / 2 mL (snippet) (all but Vegamour and Sweed are prostaglandin type)
Prescription	Latisse about $155 / 3 mL at average retail, about $38 with a coupon (GoodRx snippet)
Salon	Extensions: the brand's own estimate is "$100+ every 4-6 weeks" and "$1,200+/year"

Luxe per year: at once a night a tube lasts about 2 months (60 applications, S2), so about 6 tubes, about $78 a year at $13. How long the rival tubes last was not found, so their yearly cost is not calculated here.

5.5 How lashes change with age, and why

Change	What happens	Source
Shorter	Average upper-lash length 7.98 mm at 22–29, 6.39 mm at 50–65 (about 20% shorter, my arithmetic).
Thinner	Lash thickness measure 1.62 at 20–29, 1.17 at 50–65 (about 28% less).
Lighter or white	"thinning and whitening can occur as a presentation of physiologic aging". The same 179-woman study's darkness numbers are hard to read: the abstract says darkness fell with age but its intensity figures point the other way. Don't quote a darkness figure.	,
Slower regrowth	Dr Rupa Wong: "as you get older you[r] hair just does not grow as fast… if it is something that's too heavy and it's causing your lash to break it might leave a bald spot for you because that lash might not regrow" (Y12). After chemotherapy, "younger patients may regrow hair sooner".	(Y12),
More lid mites and blepharitis	In 1,499 eye patients, the infected share rose from 8% (age 1–25) to 67% (56–70) and 77% (over 70).

Change	What happens	Source
More dry eye	About 7% of US women over 50 have symptomatic dry eye. A 2025 Menopause Society release: 57.4% of menopausal women against 53.2% of premenopausal women scored as dry eye.
Shrinking fat pads around the eye	Dr Dray: "the fat pads around your eyes they do reduce in size with age… part of what… is to blame for… more of a sunken appearance" (Y4). So older women have less room to lose before looking hollow, which makes prostaglandin fat loss a bigger worry.	(Y4)
Loose upper-lid skin (hooded lids)	Medical word: dermatochalasis. It is also one of the changes seen with prostaglandins (Y4).	(Y4)
More eye conditions and drops	Glaucoma drops and cataract surgery are more common with age. Both are on the Latisse warning list.
Hands and near sight	Fine work at the lash line gets harder (Y11 comment).	(Y11)
Menopause	Commonly blamed for lash and brow thinning; no peer-reviewed lash figures found.	[snippet, unverified]

After 50 versus after 60, summarising the table:

	After 50	After 60
Lashes	Noticeably shorter and finer than at 30	Shorter, finer, sometimes white; regrow slowly after breakage
Lids	Hooding starts; menopause dry eye begins	Hooding and hollowing more marked; blepharitis and mites more common
Eye health	First reading glasses; some start eye drops	More glaucoma drops, cataract surgery, dry-eye treatment
Daily life	Mascara smudges onto the lid fold	Applying anything fine at the eye is harder; some give up mascara
What matters in a lash serum	Gentle, prostaglandin-free, affordable, steady results	All of that, plus easy application, eye-doctor clearance, nothing that hollows or darkens

6. Every problem the viewer has, one by one

Each problem: what it is, why it happens, how it feels (real quotes), what people tried and why it failed, and whether Luxe helps. Quotes are with the video code and likes; "helps or not" is.

6.1 "My lashes are short and I can barely see them"

- What: lashes that don't show, even with mascara.

- Why: genetics (a short growing stage), plus aging: about 20% shorter by 50–65.
- How it feels: a 66-year-old German woman: "my lashes were too fine and they fell out very quickly [with extensions]… Lash serum… worked noticeably better and at times my lashes were really much thicker and longer again. But you have to apply it daily and that's a bit tedious" (@susannemirjan3959, Y11, my translation).
- Tried: mascara (clumps on few lashes), extensions (too heavy for fine lashes), castor oil ("didn't have longer lashes just greasy eyeballs", @sharischmidt4712, 862 likes, Y8).
- Does Luxe help? Maybe a little, by reducing breakage. It will not double length. Pair it with a lengthening mascara for the day.

6.2 "My lashes fall out when I take my mascara off"

- What: a few lashes on the cotton pad every night.
- Why: 1–5 lashes a day is normal (Y6); scrubbing waterproof mascara pulls out extra (Y6).
- How it feels: "If i have to scrub my eyes to get it off that is a deal breaker" (mascara-video comment, quoted in.
- Tried: stronger removers, which mean more rubbing.
- Does Luxe help? This is where a conditioning serum is most plausible. The brand itself makes this its weeks 3–4 promise. Also change the removal: oil cleanser, press and hold, wipe down (Y6). A peptide-serum user: "they are no longer, no thicker. Just all of them stay with me until the end" (@sebumpostmortem, 112 likes, Y7).

6.3 "My lashes are brittle, dry and break"

- What: lashes that snap halfway, uneven lengths.
- Why: curlers, lifts, tints, rubbing, age.
- How it feels: "I'm ok with it just conditioning and reducing breakage as that is one of my biggest issues" (@BookishBeautyLover, 44 likes, Y7).
- Does Luxe help? Plausibly: glycerin, vitamin E and the peptides are conditioners. Unproven, but it is what this kind of product is for.

6.4 "My lashes got ruined by extensions"

- What: after extensions come off, lashes look stubby and gappy.
- Why: weight and pull ("traction alopecia", S19), glue allergy, dirt at the lash line; and partly the shock of seeing your own lashes again ("your brain just gets used to it", Dr Rupa Wong, Y12).
- How it feels: "the lash extensions didn't help much. My lashes were too fine and they fell out very quickly" (66-year-old, Y11). A lash tech: "I get clients who come to me with damaged natural lashes from other salon's lash extensions" (@PanDeSal.28, Y2).
- Tried: more extensions to hide the gaps, which adds more weight.
- Does Luxe help? It may support lashes during a break. Regrowth takes about 3 months whatever you use (Y12).

6.5 "I'm scared a lash serum will change my eye colour"

- What: fear of the iris going brown.
- Why: it really happens with prostaglandin-type serums and is "likely to be permanent".
- How it feels: "I have light blue eyes and I'm scared to ruin my eye color just for longer lashes" (@isie., 51 likes, Y2). "It changed my color from a pretty brown to a an almost black and it'll never change back" (@dk1472, Y9). "My eyes are naturally dark green… After using it for about six months, I noticed my eyes had darkened slightly" (@amitysantalucia6265, Y9).
- Tried: going without: "I decided my lashes were ok as is" (@Hopeful-w7h, 1.5K likes, Y8).
- Does Luxe help? Yes, in the sense that its list has no prostaglandin, so this risk should not apply. Check the box list.

6.6 "Lash serums made my eyes look sunken and old"

- What: hollow upper lids, deeper creases, droop.
- Why: prostaglandin fat loss (PAP), on top of natural fat-pad shrinkage with age (Y4).
- How it feels: "I had very heavy hooded eyes and lost all the fat in my upper lid so became hollow with tons of loose skin. After stopping, some fat has come back but not much" (@staceyo1723, 33 likes, Y9). "This explains my eye aging, redness and irritation" (@deniseshore9637, 142 likes, Y9). "I stopped Latisse 4 years ago, but my eyes never went back to looking normal" (@justlivin404, Y9).
- The other side: "I actually like the slight fat loss… It's like a chemical blepharoplasty" (@modelmindsstudio, 68 likes, Y4).
- Does Luxe help? It avoids the cause. It will not refill hollows already there.

6.7 "Serums made my lids dark and my eyes red"

- What: brown or purple lids, bloodshot eyes.
- Why: prostaglandins make more pigment and widen blood vessels (Y2).
- How it feels: "it also made my eyes bloodshot. People noticed my red eyes more so then my new long lashes" (@susanwong6471, 32 likes, Y9). "People have asked me if I am wearing red eye-shadow" (@vfonseca91, Y8). "I stopped using Revitalash and brown shadows cleared" (@ILuvSlvrShuz, 47 likes, Y9).
- Does Luxe help? It avoids the prostaglandin cause. Any serum can still irritate; one reviewer had burning with Luxe (Y20).

6.8 "I don't know which serums are safe, and the labels hide it"

- What: confusion and distrust.
- Why: prostaglandin copies have long names, sit low on the list (Y10), and some products don't declare them at all.
- How it feels: "Can you share brands that are safer that some of your patients have had success with please?" (@marystewart5555, 334 likes, Y2). "Can you please recommend a few lash serums that work, and don't have any of the harmful ingredients?" (@carynnoah1961, 128 likes, Y2). "How slimy they added this ingredient in another form and didn't disclose!… I am 60" (@StelmaDesigns, Y9).

- Does Luxe help? It publishes a short list with no prostaglandin. That answers the most-asked question, as long as the box matches.

6.9 "I have glaucoma, or had cataract surgery. Can I use anything?"

- What: older viewers on eye drops or after surgery.
- Why: the Latisse label warns about both.
- How it feels: "As someone who suffers from glaucoma, I've wondered why my eyes seem to be aging so much… The medicine I use is what these serums are based upon" (@Jerseygirlinberkeley1, 51 likes, Y9). "My glaucoma has worsened so these drops were added… My baby blues may alter in pigment but seeing the world clearly is a gift" (@LadyCatherine538, 197 likes, Y4).
- Does Luxe help? It removes the prostaglandin overlap. The eye doctor should still say yes first.

6.10 "My lashes are falling out on one eye only"

- What: one-sided loss.
- Why: often a local cause: blepharitis, mites, rubbing on one side, a glaucoma drop in one eye, or a medical condition.
- How it feels: "I was losing eyelashes on one eye only. The eye doctor told me it was a result of getting older and offered no remedy. The dermatologist put me on Latisse and the condition continued to get worse" (@kellyholtman8403, 71 likes, Y4). "About 2 years ago, 90% of my lashes on my right eye fell out… I started using The Ordinary's Lash and Brow Serum and within a month I started seeing growth" (@pamela5450, 19 likes, Y7).
- Does Luxe help? Not as a first step. See an eye doctor to find the cause.

6.11 "I have red, itchy, crusty lids" (blepharitis)

- What: inflamed lid edges, flakes at the lash roots, gritty eyes.
- Why: blocked oil glands, bacteria, mites; more common with age, rosacea and makeup left on (Y3, Y14, S11).
- How it feels: "Please wash around your lash line 2x a day folks, blepharitis is no fun!" (@Rosie-xm7ry, Y6).
- Does Luxe help? No. Dr Rupa Wong: with blepharitis "it doesn't matter what lash serum you use" (Y1). Treat the lids first.

6.12 "I lost my lashes to chemotherapy" (or alopecia)

- What: lashes and brows gone, sometimes slow to return.
- Why: cancer drugs attack fast-growing hair cells.
- How it feels: not found in the pulled comments for lashes specifically. The medical review notes loss "has been associated with significant emotional and psychologic distress".

- Does Luxe help? It is a cosmetic, not a treatment. The brand's "safe… including cancer patients" is a claim, not evidence. The only trialled option is bimatoprost, with a doctor.

6.13 "The good serums cost too much"

- What: the serums people trust most are expensive, and a serum has to be bought again and again.
- Why: prescription Latisse is about $155 at average retail, and the strong cosmetic serums cost $49–100 a tube (7.1). Any effect lasts only while you keep using it (1.2, S7), so the cost repeats every month or two for as long as you want the result.
- How it feels: "I have friends that use lash serums that work great but cost 150.00" (@janetwilliams4475, Y22). "I opted for this lash serum because others are too expensive and have lot of cons, even if it doesn't end up doing anything its worth a shot" (@tac0_6, 72 likes, about The Ordinary, Y17).
- Tried, and why it failed: stopping an expensive one: "I used to use Latisse but stopped because it's too expensive" (reviews file, R-723, 51-60). Cheap home remedies such as castor oil: "I tried caster oil and didn't have longer lashes just greasy eyeballs" (862 likes, Y8). Very cheap unknown online serums carry another risk: a Japanese lab found hidden prostaglandin in some.
- Does Luxe help? Yes on price: $13 on Amazon, about $78 a year at one tube every 2 months (2.1). The Ordinary is cheaper per mL ($2.98 against $4.33).

6.14 "Doing it every night is a chore"

- What: the serum has to go on every night, for months, and the result stops when you stop.
- Why: lashes grow slowly and in cycles (1.2), so nothing shows for weeks, and gains fade after stopping (S7, Y17). There is no reward on the day, which makes the habit hard to keep.
- How it feels: "you have to apply it daily and that's a bit tedious" (66-year-old, Y11, my translation). "I don't like applying the product… as someone who likes a minimal daily routine, I usually leave this out and save it for self-care days" (Vegamour user, reviews file, R-622).
- Tried, and why it failed: putting it on twice to speed things up (no benefit for Latisse, S7, and more contact with the eye); stopping and restarting, which blurs any result (3.4).
- Does Luxe help? No product fixes this; one 10-second step a night is the minimum. Linking it to tooth-brushing helps.

6.15 "My hands shake and I can't see close up"

- What: painting a thin line right at the lash roots is fiddly, and harder with age.
- Why: steady fine hand work and close-up sight both get harder with age, and reading glasses get in the way of a brush at the eye. Hooded lids (5.2) also hide the lash line.

- How it feels: "My hands aren't as steady any more; applying mascara is a challenge for me" (Y11, my translation). "It's hard to get close to the lash line without getting it in my eye. I usually have to use a steady hand like I'm applying liquid liner" (Vegamour user, reviews file, R-622).
- Tried, and why it failed: giving up eye makeup altogether, or using a curler instead, which can snap lashes (1.3).
- Does Luxe help? The fine brush is like a liquid eyeliner, which needs a steady hand. A German buyer found it "doable even for beginners" (L-32). See the tips in 3.3.

6.16 "My brows have thinned too"

- What: sparse brows, often missing at the outer ends.
- Why: age, thyroid (outer third), eczema, over-plucking (4.5).
- How it feels: "I'd love to have my eyebrows back.....they all fell out during the menopause transition" (@Katepwe, 33 likes, Y7). "My daughter plucked my brows 7 years ago and with age I have lost my tails my eyebrows are very sparse" (reviews file, Y-211).
- Tried, and why it failed: brow pencils that don't match: "I cannot fill in the hairs I have because the color shades in pencils don't look right" (Y-211). A strong brow serum that later caused itching: "My RevitaBrow worked well for over a year, until I began to have very itchy side effects" (reviews file, Y-212).
- Does Luxe help? Not sold for brows on Amazon; Luxe has separate brow products. Check the thyroid if the outer third is going.

6.17 "I tried a serum and it burned"

- What: stinging or burning at the lash line when the serum goes on, sometimes with red or dry eyes.
- Why: irritation or allergy to an ingredient; serum running into the eye; too much product. Preservative-type ingredients can cause allergies (Y10).
- How it feels (Luxe): "it burned every time I put it on... I tried getting used to it... I did it for five nights in a row. Didn't start to taper down" (Ageless channel, Y20). "Brennen in den Augen und morgens sehr trockene Augen" ("burning in the eyes and very dry eyes in the morning", L-19). Other peptide serum: "It makes my eyes lids go red and my eyes feel very unwell after use which is disappointing because I could see growth" (@davieboy154, Y17).
- Tried, and why it failed: pushing through, hoping it settles: it didn't, after 5 nights (Y20). Switching brands again and again: "burns & irritates just like the others and i have tried them all" (reviews file, Y-204).
- Does Luxe help? For some people it is the cause. Stop, rinse, try a different product after the skin settles.

Note on Y22: the two comments marked Y22 are from "Grow your Lashes and Brows after MENOPAUSE with GRANDE LASH MD!!" (Stung by Samantha, JAkepikAVSc), saved in the earlier pull.

7. How this product compares

7.1 The main alternatives, explained simply

Prices from brands' own pages or Amazon as pulled 2026-10-31, except The Ordinary ($14.90, Amazon, from ASINSIGHT's September 2026 report, as given in and Sweed (sweedbeauty.com, pulled 2026-10-31,. Price per mL is my arithmetic.

Alternative	What it is	Price and size	Per mL	Prostaglandin?	What's different from Luxe
Luxe Eyelash Serum	Peptide, biotin, ginseng serum	$13 / 3 mL (Amazon)	$4.33	No (brand list)	—
Latisse (prescription)	The drug bimatoprost	About $155 retail / 3 mL; about $38 with coupon (GoodRx snippet)	about $52 / $13	Yes (it is one)	Proven to grow lashes (78% at 16 weeks); needs a prescription; known side effects; a doctor monitors you.
GrandeLASH-MD	Cosmetic with isopropyl cloprostenate	$68 / 2 mL	$34	Yes	Much stronger by users' accounts, with prostaglandin risks.
Babe Essential	Cosmetic with isopropyl cloprostenate	$49 / 2 mL	$24.50	Yes	As above.
neuLASH	Cosmetic with isopropyl cloprostenate	$95 / 3.2 mL	$29.69	Yes	As above; its own page carries a prostaglandin warning.
RevitaLash Advanced	Cosmetic with DDDE	$100 / 2 mL (snippet)	$50	Yes	As above.
The Ordinary Multi-Peptide Lash and Brow Serum	Peptide serum with myristoyl pentapeptide-17, caffeine	$14.90 / 5 mL	$2.98	No	Cheaper per mL; has the better-known lash peptide; reviewed by two doctors on YouTube (Y7, Y17); sold for brows too.

Alternative	What it is	Price and size	Per mL	Prostaglandin?	What's different from Luxe
GrandeLASH Peptide+	Grande's prostaglandin-free line	$48 / 4 mL	$12	No	More peptides; pricier.
Babe Renewing	Babe's prostaglandin-free peptide line	$49 / 6 mL	$8.17	No	More peptides, bigger tube.
Vegamour GRO Lash	Plant-based (mung bean, red clover)	$68 (size not found)	not found	No	"Clean" plant positioning; Dr Rupa Wong's pick (Y1).
Sweed Eyelash Growth Serum	Peptides and vitamins (brand: "A clean, prostaglandin-free lash serum")	$65 / 3 mL or $90 / 5 mL (sweedbeauty.com)	about $21.67 / $18	No (brand's statement; ingredient list not checked)	Many older women's reviews in the reviews file (Part 2, section 4). Much dearer.
Lashfood Phyto-Medic	Plant-based (purslane, ginseng)	$49–78 / 3 mL	$16–26	No	Dr Rupa Wong's pick, "a great option" in pregnancy (Y1).
Castor oil	A thick plant oil	About $10–14 (Amazon)	n/a	No	Coats and conditions; no growth evidence; may clog glands (Y1, Y6).
Mascara	Paint that coats lashes for the day	$5–40	n/a	No	Instant, temporary; the hard part is removal.
Lash extensions	Glued-on fake lashes	Brand estimate "$100+ every 4-6 weeks"	n/a	No	Instant drama; risk of traction loss, glue allergy, blepharitis (S19, Y5).

Alternative	What it is	Price and size	Per mL	Prostaglandin?	What's different from Luxe
Lash lift and tint	A perm and dye for your own lashes	Salon or Luxe's own kit	n/a	No	Curl lasts "around four to six weeks" (Y21); chemical risk to eye and lashes (Y13, Y16).
Strip false lashes	Glue-on strip	Cheap	n/a	No	Instant; glue allergy is common (Y5).
Supplements (biotin etc.)	Pills	Varies	n/a	No	No lash evidence; biotin can upset lab tests.

7.2 Luxe against its nearest like-for-like rival, The Ordinary

	Luxe	The Ordinary Multi-Peptide
Price per mL	$4.33	$2.98
Main peptide	Myristoyl pentapeptide-4	Myristoyl pentapeptide-17 (has supplier lash data)
Other actives	Tripeptide-1, arginine/lysine polypeptide, biotin, ginseng, vitamin E	Biotinoyl tripeptide-1, oligopeptide-2, acetyl tetrapeptide-3, caffeine, panthenol, plant extracts
Number of ingredients	10	about 30
Prostaglandin	None listed	None listed
Doctor reviews on YouTube	None found	Dr Dray (Y7); Dr Rupa Wong (Y17)
Brush	Fine eyeliner brush	Not checked
Short list	Fewer ingredients, so fewer things to react to	More ingredients

7.3 When to pick Luxe, and when something else

Pick Luxe when:

1. You want a prostaglandin-free serum and the cheapest easy Amazon option with a short ingredient list.
2. Your main problem is lashes breaking or falling out at removal.

3. You have light eyes, hollow or hooded lids, glaucoma drops or past eye surgery (with your eye doctor's OK).
4. You want a fine eyeliner-type brush.

Pick something else when:

1. You want the strongest proven growth and accept the risks: Latisse, through a doctor.
2. You want the best-documented cheap peptide serum, or one for brows too: The Ordinary.
3. Your lash loss is sudden, patchy, one-sided or medical: a doctor, not a serum.
4. You want an effect today: mascara, or a lift if you accept the chemicals.
5. You reacted to Luxe on a patch test: a different, short-list peptide serum, after your skin settles.

8. Questions viewers ask, with plain answers

Taken from real YouTube comments (codes given) and the common questions in the earlier report's comment review §7.10). Answers are, built on the sources shown.

#	Question (real wording where quoted)	Plain answer
1	"Can you share brands that are safer…?" (334 likes, Y2)	Pick one with no prostaglandin-type ingredient: Luxe, The Ordinary, GrandeLASH Peptide+, Babe Renewing, Vegamour, Lashfood. Read the box: avoid names containing "prost".
2	"Can you please recommend a few lash serums that work, and don't have any of the harmful ingredients?" (128 likes, Y2)	The gentle ones mostly reduce breakage; they don't grow lashes like Latisse. Expect fuller-looking lashes at best, after 2–3 months.
3	Is Luxe really prostaglandin-free?	Its published list has none, and the brand says "100% prostaglandin-free". Nobody has lab-tested it. Check your box.
4	Will it change my eye colour?	Iris change is a prostaglandin effect. Luxe's list has none, so it should not.
5	Will it make my eyes look sunken?	Fat loss is also a prostaglandin effect (S7, Y2). Not expected with a peptide serum (Dr Dray, Y7).
6	Will it darken my eyelids?	Not expected from the ingredients. Any irritation can leave darker marks on darker skin, though (Dr Dray, Y7).
7	Does it actually grow lashes?	No study shows it. It may keep lashes from breaking so they look longer and fuller (Y1, Y7).
8	How long until I see results?	Give it 8–12 weeks (brand, S2; lash cycle, S5). Some see change in weeks, some never.
9	Do I have to use it forever?	To keep any effect, yes. When you stop, lashes slowly go back to how they were (S7, Y17).

#	Question (real wording where quoted)	Plain answer
10	What happens if I stop?	Nothing sudden. Gains fade over the next few months as lashes shed normally.
11	Once or twice a day?	Once a night is enough. More doesn't help, even with the prescription drug.
12	Morning or night?	Night, on a clean lash line, so it isn't disturbed by makeup (S3, Y19).
13	How long does one tube last?	About 60 applications, roughly 2 months at once a night.
14	Can I wear mascara with it?	Yes, in the daytime. Remove it gently at night before the serum (S2, Y6).
15	Can I use it with lash extensions?	The brand says yes, because it is oil-free. Keep the lash line clean (Y12).
16	Can I use it after a lash lift?	Salons say wait about 24 hours.
17	Can I use it on my eyebrows?	Not sold for brows on Amazon; Luxe has a separate brow serum. Many people use peptide lash serums on brows (Y17).
18	Can I use it with contact lenses?	Take lenses out first (Y19).
19	"Can I use it with glaucoma drops or after eye surgery?" (earlier report §7.10)	Ask your eye doctor. Luxe has no prostaglandin, so the Latisse warnings about these shouldn't apply, but the brand itself says use it under a doctor's supervision if you're being treated.
20	Is it safe if I'm pregnant or breastfeeding?	The brand says ask your doctor.
21	It stings. Is that normal?	No. Stop and rinse with water. Of 93 Luxe reviews, 2 report burning; one YouTuber's burning didn't settle after 5 nights (Y20).
22	Should I patch test?	Yes. An optometrist suggests 5–7 days on the back of the hand (Y10).
23	Will it help lashes I lost from chemotherapy?	It's a cosmetic, not a treatment. Ask the oncologist; bimatoprost has trial data.
24	"I was losing eyelashes on one eye only..." (71 likes, Y4): what should I do?	See an eye doctor. One-sided loss often has a local cause, such as blepharitis or mites (S5, Y1).
25	"Is castor oil enough?" (earlier report §7.10)	It coats lashes; it doesn't change the growth cycle (Dr Dray, Y6; Dr Sam Ellis, Y2). "I tried caster oil and didn't have longer lashes just greasy eyeballs" (862 likes, Y8).
26	Does biotin in a serum do anything?	No study shows it grows lashes (Y1). Biotin pills only help people who truly lack biotin, which is rare.
27	Will taking biotin pills help my lashes?	Same answer: not unless you're deficient. High doses can upset some blood tests; tell your doctor if you take them.

#	Question (real wording where quoted)	Plain answer
28	Is the expensive serum worth it?	Expensive cosmetic serums often contain prostaglandin copies. For a gentle serum, price doesn't show a clear benefit.
29	Why does Latisse work and this doesn't (as much)?	Latisse is a drug that keeps lashes growing longer (S7, Y2). Luxe conditions; it doesn't contain that drug.
30	"How is something with so many side effects… even allowed to be sold?" (142 likes, Y8)	In the US, cosmetics don't need approval before sale (S18 review). The EU is moving to ban prostaglandins in cosmetics.
31	Why do lashes get thinner after 50?	Aging shortens and thins them, and lid problems, dry eye and mites are more common.
32	Is it OK for men?	The brand says yes.
33	Can I put it on the lower lashes?	No. Upper lash line only.
34	What if I miss a night?	Just carry on the next night; don't double up.
35	Does it expire?	Brand: shelf life 4 months; use within 1–2 months once open; store between 36°F and 77°F.
36	"Any research on this product?" (Y1 comment, about another serum)	For Luxe: no study found.
37	Why do all lash serums seem to stop working after a while? ("all lash/ brows serums work for a while and then you have to switch it up", Y22)	Probably the lash cycle: a batch of lashes grows, then sheds together, so it seems to "stop". There's no evidence that switching brands helps.
38	Does it work on lashes that are completely gone?	It can't work where the root is dead, for example from scarring blepharitis (Y1). Patchy or total loss needs a doctor.

9. Myths and truths

Myth	Truth	Source
"Natural or prostaglandin-free serums grow lashes like Latisse."	No trial shows that. "you're not going to see the tremendous growth that you do with the prostaglandins."	Dr Rupa Wong (Y1)
"If the label doesn't say prostaglandin, there's none in it."	3 of 4 bimatoprost-containing serums in a Japanese lab test didn't declare it.
"Look for the word 'prostaglandin' on the label."	The label uses chemical names; look for "prost" inside a word (cloprostenate, ethylcloprostenolamide).	(Y10, Y15)

Myth	Truth	Source
"Cosmetic serums are milder than prescription Latisse."	Many cosmetic serums use similar chemicals, with "these same exact side effects".	Dr Dray (Y8)
"Prostaglandin side effects only happen to a few people."	The label says under 4% for common ones in the trial, but fat and colour changes can take months or years and be "subtle over time". Dr Sam Ellis: "it's not a matter of if it will happen."	; @hellococococakes (Y4); (Y2)
"Prostaglandin damage is always permanent."	Iris colour: "likely to be permanent". Lid darkening and fat loss: often reversible after stopping, but not always.	; (Y2); viewers both ways (Y9)
"Castor oil grows lashes."	No evidence it changes the growth cycle; it coats and conditions. It can clog lid glands.	Dr Dray (Y6); Dr Sam Ellis (Y2); Dr Rupa Wong (Y1)
"Biotin makes lashes grow."	No lash studies; pills help only real deficiency, which is rare.	(Y1);
"Vitamin E grows lashes."	It conditions; no growth data.	Dr Rupa Wong (Y1)
"Twice a day works faster."	For Latisse, extra doses don't add growth. Unproven for Luxe.	;
"Results are permanent once you get them."	Lashes return to their old state after stopping (Latisse label; doctors on peptide serums).	, (Y17)
"You'll see results in 2 weeks."	A lash's growing stage alone lasts 4–10 weeks. Judge at 12 weeks.
"Longer is always better for the eyes."	Lashes about a third of eye width protect best; much longer ones funnel air to the eye.
"Losing lashes every day means something is wrong."	1–5 a day is normal.	(Y6)
"Lash extensions don't harm your own lashes."	They can, through weight, glue allergy and dirt build-up, though no study has measured it properly.	(Y5), (Y12),
"Serums treat lash loss from illness."	Find the cause: thyroid, alopecia areata, blepharitis, chemotherapy. Cosmetics are not treatments.	,
"If it's gentle it can't irritate."	Any product near the eye can cause irritation or allergy, including peptide serums.	Dr Dray (Y6, Y7); optometrist (Y10)
"Serum on the lower lashes doubles the effect."	Upper only; blinking moves it down anyway.	,

10. The words viewers use

Word for word, from YouTube comments and reviews pulled 2026-10-31 (video codes in section 12). Likes in brackets.

10.1 Their phrases for the problem

- "short and stubby" (Dr Rupa Wong describing what women say after extensions, Y12)
- "my wimpy lash[es]" (Y1 comment, 19 likes)
- "my lashes were too fine" (66-year-old, Y11, translated)
- "lashes on my right eye fell out" (Y7, 19 likes)
- "losing eyelashes on one eye only" (Y4, 71 likes)
- "lashes of my dreams" (Y8, 522 likes)

- "brown shadows" (Y9, 47 likes)
- "red eye-shadow" (Y8)

10.2 Their complaints

- "I suffered from this with generic latisse... I had peri-orbital fat loss and the blood vessels in my upper lids were very pronounced. I also had blurred vision." (Y2, 167 likes)
- "People noticed my red eyes more so then my new long lashes." (Y9, 32 likes)
- "It changed my color from a pretty brown to a an almost black and it'll never change back." (Y9)
- "After 2 years of using Latisse, I developed yellow-is discoloration on my eyelids... It's been 5 years & they haven't gone away." (Y4, 31 likes)
- "now I have dry eye syndrome!" (Y8, 27 likes)
- "How slimy they added this ingredient in another form and didn't disclose!" (Y9)
- "How is something with so many side effects & some serious additives even allowed to be sold." (Y8, 142 likes)
- "Used it for about 6 months. No change in lash fullness or growth whatsoever." (The Ordinary, Y7, 41 likes)
- "it burned every time I put it on" (Luxe, Y20)
- "It does not come with instructions." (Luxe, Y19)
- "I wouldn't spend my money on this one." (Luxe, Y20)
- "you have to apply it daily and that's a bit tedious" (Y11, translated)
- "I have friends that use lash serums that work great but cost 150.00." (Y22)

10.3 Their fears

- "I have light blue eyes and I'm scared to ruin my eye color just for longer lashes." (Y2, 51 likes)
- "I've considered a lash serum, but when I did my research and read about the side effects, I decided my lashes were ok as is." (Y8, 1.5K likes)
- "I'm afraid of lash growth serums. In my opinion, Your eyes are too precious to take a chance." (Y7, 69 likes)
- "I was always afraid of the other products." (Y7, 44 likes)
- "It's crazy, I'm scared to use any serums now" (after styes from GrandeLASH, Y1)
- "I bought this serum but I was scared of side effects like eye color change, phew!" (Y17)

10.4 Their wishes

- "Can you share brands that are safer that some of your patients have had success with please?" (Y2, 334 likes)
- "Have you ever thought about posting a video talking about the lash serums that are safe to use?" (Y2, 295 likes)
- "Can you please recommend a few lash serums that work, and don't have any of the harmful ingredients?" (Y2, 128 likes)
- "I'm ok with it just conditioning and reducing breakage as that is one of my biggest issues." (Y7, 44 likes)
- "I'd love to have my eyebrows back" (Y7, 33 likes)
- "Yes, please review the Ordinary lash/brow product!" (Y6, 140 likes)

10.5 Their praise, for gentle serums

- "After using this product for less than two weeks, my lashes got objectively longer." (The Ordinary, Y7, 387 likes)
- "I was surprised because it doesn't have prostaglandins, but it works for me." (The Ordinary, Y17, 321 likes)
- "Just all of them stay with me until the end." (Y7, 112 likes)
- "it has prevented lash fall out! So it definitely works." (The Ordinary, Y1, 73 likes)
- "My lashes are nice & long now! Plus it doesn't irritate my eyes! (I have dry eye)" (Lashfood, Y1, 73 likes)
- "slow and steady results… At first it did sting my eyelids but over time that feeling stopped." (The Ordinary, Y17, 46 likes)
- "gentle enough for somebody that has sensitive eyes and sensitive skin" (Luxe, Y19)
- "So far, so good! It's only been a week. Nice brush." (Luxe, luxe.com review, S2)

10.6 Words that sum up what they want

safe · gentle · no side effects · won't change my eye colour · my own lashes · fuller · stop falling out · less breakage · affordable · works · natural · for sensitive eyes · easy

11. Safety, and what you can and can't say on camera

Safety (short):

1. Patch-test for about a week before using it on the lash line (Y10).
2. Upper lash line only; keep it out of the eye. If it gets in, "rinse your eyes thoroughly with water".
3. Stop if it burns, stings, itches or reddens, and don't push through (Y20).
4. Contact lenses out first (Y19).
5. Ask your eye doctor first if you use glaucoma drops, have had eye surgery, or are being treated for any eye condition.
6. Pregnant or breastfeeding: ask your doctor.
7. Sudden, patchy or one-eye lash loss, or red crusty lids: see a doctor, not a serum (S5, Y1).
8. Don't share the tube; replace it after 2 months.
9. Check the box ingredients for any name with "prost" (Y10).

Before saying "prostaglandin-free": photograph the ingredient list printed on the box first. Hidden prostaglandins have been found in some online serums, and the Amazon box's list was unreadable in both review videos (2.4).

Two more facts that limit what can be said: no published study backs the "4 weeks", "70% more length" or "clinically proven" claims (none found, S1-S4); and luxe.com advertises rosemary and magnolia extracts, which are not on the 10-item ingredient list, so don't name them as ingredients.

Can't say (drug-type claims), and what to say instead: the FDA treats claims that a product will "restore hair growth" as drug claims.

Don't say	Say instead
"Grows your lashes", "regrows", "stimulates growth", "restores natural growth"	"Helps lashes look longer and fuller"
"Stops lash loss", "treats thinning", "for eyelash illness", "for chemo or alopecia"	"Conditions lashes so they're less likely to break"
"Clinically proven", "70% longer", "results in 4 weeks guaranteed"	"Give it 8 to 12 weeks"
"Zero side effects", "safe for everyone", "safe for cancer patients"	"Patch-test first and stop if it stings"
"Works like Latisse"	"It's not Latisse; it's the gentle, prostaglandin-free kind"

Part 2: The reviews

1. What the reviews tell us (simple English)

1. There is not much feedback on the Luxe serum itself: 93 pieces in total. 88 are in the Luxe web shops' own review boxes: 67 in the German shop's lash-serum box, 6 more from its lash-and-brow "serum bundle" box, 7 from its second box, 3 on the Dutch shop, 1 on the UK shop and 4 on the US shop. 4 are YouTube video reviews (two real tests, one passing mention and one that reads like a sponsored script), and 1 is a YouTube comment. The 495 Amazon reviews could not be read: Amazon blocks this machine, and I did not try to get around it. The other Luxe country shops (fr.luxe.com, no.luxe.com, sa.luxe.com, luxecosmetics.mx) turned out to be the US shop in other languages, with the same reviews. I found no other Luxe review feeds, so there are no more long Luxe stories to add.
2. About half of the Luxe buyers say it worked (50 of 93). That is 49 tagged "worked", plus 1 (L-T2, "somewhat denser lashes") counted only as "thicker / less shedding"; this is why the "It worked" row in table 2.3 says 49. They describe longer and denser lashes, and friends, a boyfriend or a beautician noticing; Elke L. (68) is "often asked whether I have false lashes" (my translation). When they give a time, it is usually 3 to 5 weeks (11 of 13). Several give the same tip: take a photo before you start, or you won't notice the change.
3. Some Luxe buyers saw nothing. The German shop's lash-serum box has 67 reviews, averaging 4.0 stars, with 13 one-star reviews. In 12 Luxe reviews nothing happened, including after 4 weeks, "more than a month" and "3 months of daily use". (10 Luxe reviews also, or only, talk about orders, deliveries or refunds. They are counted, but that part of their text is left out, because it is not about the serum.)
4. What Luxe looks and feels like, in buyers' words. Clear, put on "like an eyeliner" along the lash line (L-59, L-Y2). "It has no smell of its own" (L-59, my translation). One says her lashes only got "sticky" (L-29). A US buyer of the lash-and-brow set: "Love the way it feels" (L-S4).
5. Luxe side effects are rare in these reviews, but they do appear. Burning: 2 (a German buyer after 3 months, with "very dry eyes in the morning"; and a YouTuber who had used Latisse for 10 years and stopped after 5 nights because "it burned every time"). Allergic reaction: 1. "Didn't tolerate it well", with no detail: 1. On the other side, 6 say it is gentle, including a YouTuber with "really sensitive" eyes: "I don't have any stinging in my eyes."
6. Only one Luxe reviewer gives an age over 50, and she is the strongest story. Elke L., 68, German shop, 5 stars: her lashes were "so to speak, no longer existent", and "after about 3 weeks of Luxe serum the miracle began… I'm often asked whether I have false lashes" (my translation).
7. The prostaglandin-free rivals (175 reviews: Vegamour, Sweed, Babe Renewing, The Ordinary and others) show the same pattern as Luxe. Many say it works (108), but slowly. Often the change is "thicker, less shedding" rather than

"longer" (17). It did nothing for 27. Side effects are milder and fewer: stinging (7), redness or itch (14), allergic swelling (4), dry eyes (4). The scary ones (darker lids 9, hollow eyes 3) mostly refer to an earlier prostaglandin serum the person had used.

8. The prostaglandin serums (Latisse, GrandeLASH-MD, RevitaLash, Babe Essential, neuLASH, Careprost; 106 reviews) give the biggest results and the most side-effect stories. People write "lashes hit my glasses" and "300 times thicker". But: redness and irritation 21, darker eyelids 9, hollow or sunken eyes 8, eye colour change 5, dry eyes or blurry vision 5. Some of these cleared after stopping; others "never went back".
9. Women 50 and over: 84 reviews, 69 of them about prostaglandin-free serums. This counts ages written in the text and the age the reviewer picked on Vegamour's and Sweed's review forms (55-64 or 65+ on Vegamour; 51-60, 51-60+ or 61-70+ on Sweed). Ages written in the text run from 50 to 87. Of the 69 prostaglandin-free ones, 49 say it worked, 7 saw nothing and 3 say it is too early. Examples: "Oh!!! By the way I am 87 years old" (Dorothy F., after heart-surgery hair loss, Vegamour); "I am 79… It totally works" (Joan, Sweed); "I'm 75 years old so I'm not gonna have the lashes I did when I was younger, but the ingredients… don't cause the dreaded darkness" (Dolores D., Vegamour). Against: "do not see any eyelash growth" (Melanie W., 51-60, Sweed); "very little progress" (Irene C., 61-70+, Sweed); "my eyes became scratchy and dry and I had to stop… Could be my age" (MaryAnn F., 65+, Vegamour); red, swollen lids the next morning (Kelly, 51-60, Sweed).
10. The whole review sets, not just my picks, lean positive for older women on these two rivals. Of the 112 Sweed reviewers who chose an age group of 51 or over, 101 gave 5 stars, 4 gave 4, 4 gave 3 and 3 gave 1. Of the 58 Vegamour reviewers who chose 55-64 or 65+, 38 gave 5 stars, 10 gave 4, 6 gave 3, 2 gave 2 and 2 gave 1. These are the brands' own review boxes, so they show what the brand displays.
11. When you stop, the gain fades. This shows up in reviews of every type: "the process of growing slows down when you stop" (The Ordinary). "It is true that after you stop using it, your hair game will get back to normal" (an unnamed Amazon serum). It works only while you keep using it, so the price over a year matters to buyers (40 price or value comments).
12. Fear is the loudest voice in the comments. 41 comments are afraid of side effects or ask "which safe one actually works?". The most-liked ones: "I decided my lashes were ok as is" (1.5K likes); "Can you share brands that are safer…" (334 likes). 4 more rival-site reviews say "I was afraid… then it worked" (R-018, R-265, R-421, R-523); they are not in this count, which would be about 45 with them.
13. My reading: the reviews describe Luxe as a typical prostaglandin-free serum. For many buyers it gives a modest change in about a month, it is gentle for most, and a minority get nothing. Set expectations at "fuller and healthier-looking, slowly", not "Latisse results". Sensitive eyes should test it first: the two worst Luxe stories are about burning.

Notes on the counts:

- Luxe, brand's own sites (88): luxecosmetics.de, 67 reviews in the Loox box on the lash-serum page (all of them were read, pages 1 to 23, plus the full text of 6 that the grid cuts off; the site's own text is cut off in 4 of them); 6 more from the Loox box on the German "Luxe Seren Bundle Set" page (lash serum + brow serum: all 186 reviews read, pages 1 to 62; 67 are the lash-serum reviews already counted, and of the other 119 only these 6 mention the lashes, the rest are about the brow serum); 7 more reviews only in the German shop's second box (Trustoo, first page of 15 read); 3 on luxecosmetics.nl (Trustoo, first page of 15 read); 1 on luxe-cosmetics.uk (Judge.me, all 25 read); 4 on luxe.com (Judge.me: all 6 entries on the serum page, 3 of them blank, plus 1 of the 2 entries on the "Luxe Serum Bundle Set" page).
- 12 of the German reviews also appear on the UK shop in English and on the Dutch shop in Dutch, with the same names. Each is counted once and quoted in English where the English version exists.
- Rival brand sites (167): chosen from 2,497 reviews read on 2026-10-31. They are Vegamour GRO Lash Serum (all 498 reviews the Okendo feed returned, 2018-11 to 2026-10), Sweed Eyelash Growth Serum (all 1,566, Yotpo), Babe Original Essential (150: the 100 newest plus the 50 most-voted, of 9,680), Babe Original Renewing (all 196) and neuLASH (all 87). I chose detailed reviews, every review that gave an age, an older age group, "older" or "menopause", and every low-star review with a reason.
- YouTube (175): comments pulled with NexLev from 22 videos, and the transcripts of the 3 Luxe review videos. Off-topic comments (praise for the creator, other products) were left out.
- Not found or not reached: Amazon review text (the bot check blocks it); Luxe's public Loox store page (loox.io/s/4kWOkvCs9n returned 403 "Crawling behavior detected", not retried); the Loox widgets on luxe.com,.nl and.uk ("Loox reviews is uninstalled"); Trustoo pages 2 to 5 on the German and Dutch shops (there is no plain page link: the widget fetches them with a signed request made by its own script, so I did not try); Trustpilot's Luxe pages (403, not retried); other Luxe domains (luxecosmetics.se answered "402", luxecosmetics.com and.co.uk are parked pages, the others did not connect); Lashfood (its Judge.me returned 0 reviews); GrandeLASH's own site (HTTP 503, not retried); VieBeauty (no review data found on its page). Reddit was not tried (blocked).

2.3 By theme

One review can count under several themes. A side-effect count means the review mentions that side effect; in a few rival reviews it is about an earlier serum the person used (the quote says which).

- "It worked" for Luxe: the row says 49; the summary's "50" adds L-T2, which is counted only under "thicker / less shedding".
- L-14 (Kim N.) wrote "nicht so gut vertragen" ("didn't tolerate it well"), with no redness or itch, so she has her own row rather than "redness".
- Before-and-after stories are thin, and this is true to the data. There is no separate before-and-after count: such stories sit in "Other people noticed, or before-and-after photos" (18). The shops' review boxes show customer photos, but this file quotes text only, and Amazon's photo reviews cannot be reached. Several reviewers say they never took a "before" photo (for example L-B2, R-608, R-702).

How to read each quote: the code (L- = Luxe, R- = a rival's own site, Y- = YouTube), the exact product, the stars or likes, the reviewer's name, the stated age (only if they gave it; on Vegamour and Sweed also the age group the reviewer picked on the review form, and on Sweed her skin type), the date, and the source with a link. German, Dutch, Italian and French reviews are quoted in the original, with my translation underneath. "Themes" shows every theme the review was counted under. YouTube comment dates are the tool's conversion of "3 years ago" and are approximate.

Each quote is listed once, in sections 3 to 7, under the main point it makes. Codes from L-B1, L-S4, L-Y5, R-601, R-701 and Y-201 onward were added on 2026-10-31 in a third pull. The counts in section 2.3 include every theme a review touches, so they are larger than the headings below. "Time to results" is filled in only when the reviewer says when they first saw a change.

3. The Luxe Eyelash Serum itself (93)

Every review of the Luxe serum that could be read, from any source. They are grouped by the main point each one makes. Most are from the German shop, where the product is sold as "Luxe Wimpernserum" (wimpern = eyelashes). The formula is the one listed in (peptides, biotin, ginseng, no prostaglandin). No Luxe reviewer said which country store's bottle, size or batch they had, except the two YouTubers, who show the 3 mL Amazon box.

> I tried so many eyelash serums... When I was done with my nerves, my head hurt 😬. There are so many of them. Who can you believe? Well, believe me!!! This stuff REALLY works (I don't work for this company nor was I paid for this review).
> Believe it or not, I actually get compliments from girls who have extensions for eyelashes. Come on... You have to agree with me... They look so fake. That's also the reason why I don't wear them. I even get compliments from men saying how beautiful my eyes are 🤭 At my doctor's office, his wife asked about my eyelashes.
> A long time ago I had single eyelashes glued. Ewww 😷 they stung and itched. After a few days they irritated me so much I started pulling them out.

> Auf Wunsch meiner Frau hab ich ihr das Produkt bestellt. Sie hatte schon andere Produkte der Marke und war immer ganz zufrieden mit den Ergebnis und dem Pressleistungsverhältnis. Als es dann ziemlich zügig da war hat sie es auch direkt ausprobiert. Man sollte nicht denken, dass nach 1,2,3 Tagen ein Wunder passiert aber nach einigen Wochen wurde es schon deutlich sichtbar. Am besten vorher nachher Fotos machen sonst fällt es einrn nicht so direkt auf. Von uns aus klare Kaufempfehlung!

> My translation: I ordered the product for my wife at her request. She already had other products of the brand and was always quite satisfied with the result and the value for money. When it arrived quite quickly she tried it right away. You shouldn't think a miracle happens after 1, 2, 3 days, but after a few weeks it became clearly visible. Best to take before and after photos, otherwise you don't notice it so directly. From us a clear buy recommendation!

> Zunächst sei zu erwähnen, dass der Versand schnell und unkompliziert ablief, auch die Verpackung war dem Produkt entsprechend angepasst. Die Marke wurde mir von einer Freundin empfohlen, die durchweg gute Erfahrung mit ähnlichen Produkten gemacht hat. Auch der relativ niedrige Preis haben mich zusätzlich überzeugt, das Produkt zu testen. Jedoch muss man etwas Geduld mitbringen und am besten ein Bild vorher anfertigen, da sonst über so einen langen Zeitraum, die Erfolge nicht unbedingt auffallen...

> Luxe Cosmetics Eyelash Serum has become a staple in my beauty routine and I can confidently say that this 3ml serum has delivered impressive results. From the moment I started using it, I noticed a difference in the length and thickness of my lashes, something that many products often promise but rarely deliver. The application process is straightforward and convenient. The serum comes in a sleek, easy to handle tube with a precision applicator that allows for effortless application along the lash line. The serum has a lightweight, non-sticky formula that glides on smoothly without any irritation. I appreciate that it didn't make my eyes feel heavy or greasy, which is a common issue with some other lash serums. Within just a few weeks of consistent use, I began to see visible changes. My lashes appeared not only longer, but also noticeably fuller, giving my eyes a more striking and captivating look. I was pleasantly surprised to find that my lashes felt stronger and healthier, reducing the amount of fallout when I applied mascara or removed my makeup. Another noteworthy aspect of Luxe Cosmetics eyelash serum is its formulation. It's infused with nourishing ingredients like peptids and botanical extracts which not only promote growth but also condition the lashes. This dual action ensures that while I'm working on lengthening my lashes, I'm also enhancing their overall health. Despite being a bit on the pricier side compared to some drugstore options, the results justify the investment. A little goes a long way, so I expect this 3ml tube to last for several months. Overall, Lux Cosmetics eyelash serum is a reliable and effective choice for anyone looking to enhance their lashes naturally. If you're in search of a product that lives up to its promises, this serum is worth trying. The visible results have transformed my lashes, making it a beauty essential that I will continue to repurchase.

This reads like a scripted review: it never says how long the person used it or shows their lashes in the transcript. Treat it as weak evidence.

Thicker or fuller, or less shedding, but not much longer (2)

> I have used Latisse for gosh, probably 10 years. Um and am a big fan.... So I tried this for only 5 days. And the reason only 5 days is because it burned. And I do have sensitive skin, so this might not happen for everybody. But it burned every time I put it on and like when I first started using Latisse, it burned a little bit, but it went away after a like a little while. This is way more of a burn. And I tried getting used to it and so I did it for five nights in a row. Didn't start to taper down, didn't go down.... If you have sensitive skin at all, especially around your eye area, I would also pass on this one.... So, again, I wouldn't spend my money on this one.

> My eyelashes are really sensitive. I can't do false lashes that I apply myself. I can't do the glue. And then when I go to get um lash extensions, it really bothers me.... It does not come with instructions.... it's just this tiny little brush right here.... you're just going to kind of paint it on right at that lash line.... you can see it's completely clear... I don't have any stinging in my eyes. I don't have any um tenderness there. I can't feel any tingling or anything on the lids themselves. So overall, this product is gentle enough for somebody that has sensitive eyes and sensitive skin.

> [Patience is key] Before trying this serum I had noticed that my eyelashes were falling out at a more rapid rate. Also, the lashes I was brushing off my cheek seemed to be shorter than I remembered. (Another delightful postmenopausal feature, perhaps?) I was looking for a lash serum that did not contain prostaglandin analogues, and Vegamour’s serum was among the most highly rated. Knowing that the lash “life cycle” was pretty long —months and months, in fact— I diligently applied it once a day and stayed patient, as long as I experienced no irritation. After about five months, I noticed a difference: the rate of lash loss had slowed significantly. I’ve used it for 11 months and am very, very pleased. Thank you, Vegamour, for a safe alternative!

> [I'm a believer!] I received a tube in a beauty sample kit and was extremely skeptical about using it. Although I had not used another brand in the past, I just didn't believe it would do anything. I finally started to use it and rather faithful at that. My lashes are long, strong and really quite beautiful now. After receiving several positive comments and people noticing the length, I admit it works beautifully! I am going to make the purchase today, regardless of the price because it has worked so well. I am older, semi thinning lashes, not much length but not a false lash user ever. I have had no adverse affects whatsoever and highly recommend this product to anyone who wants longer, more beautiful lashes!

My lashes grew back but not to what they used to be. So am I too old for a lash serum like this to work? I don't know if your hair follicles die off at a certain age but I sure hope not. > As a result of watching this video, I decided to try the TwentyTwenty lash serum which the the ophthalmologist is selling. I've been using it nightly since mid-May 2023 and it is now early August. So my conclusion is that it definitely helps with dry eye but I have seen no increase in eyelash length or thickness. Since I am 70 yo, and my hair growth has slowed down generally, this could be why. However, I am quite happy with the dry eye relief results. I was using lubricating eye drops 3-4X per day and now find I rarely have to use them. It feels like a soothing, natural way to treat this problem. I tried applying in the morning as well but found it leaves a slight film over the eye so kind of hard to see clearly. Haven't decided whether to continue with the product or not at this point. Of course I was hoping for lush, thick lashes but that's obviously not happening.

> [Not Exactly As Advertised. But Better Than the Resr] I’ve been using Gro Lash Serum for six months +/- and while I don’t have amazingly thicker, longer lashes, I DO almost have the lashes of my youth which were great and they curled just right. Aging had left me with thinner and thinner lashes. They were always falling out! I have so little fall out now, it’s an occasion like when I was a child! One coat of mascara (I use Melaleuca’s mascara - it’s easy on the lashes and sensitive eyes but stays on without flaking, great stuff) and eyelashes are Wow! Lashes are not really longer but they are back to thicker and look/feel much healthier! And, other formulas make your lashes grow in cockeyed directions but I haven’t had that with Vegamour. PLUS, the tube lasts MUCH longer than other brands I tried!! And, yes, I apply twice/day.

> [Nice formulas] I wish there was a selection of Good plus. The only reason I didn't rate it great is that it doesn't work quite as well as the bad stuff. I'm 75 years old so I'm not gonna have the lashes I did when I was younger, but the ingredients are really good and don't cause the dreaded darkness above my lash line. No irritation at all, and filled in some areas that were bald. All in all I definitely will repurchase.

My lashes are not super long, but they are fuller. I am over 60, so who knows if anything works. I am upgrading to the serum + for my lashes and brows. Will review after using one month.

> [Effective!] I’m 61, and due to normal aging (and a not-normal bout with cancer), my eyelashes were becoming sparse. I’d tried another serum, but found that the results weren’t consistent. I’m glad I looked for another and found Sweed. Sweed’s eyelash serum has impressed me: results were noticeable, fast, and they’ve reliably continued. It’s become a staple in my routine -- I love the thicker, longer lashes it creates. No scent, no stinging, no discoloration of the skin.

> [The eyelash serum has made a huge difference!] Between menopause and hypothyroidism, my lashes were pretty much nonexistent. Since starting the Sweed eyelash serum less than a month ago, I honestly cannot believe how much thicker and longer my lashes already are. I can actually see them without mascara. I didn’t take a before photo because I didn’t believe anything could give me back thick lashes. I was wrong. I’ll definitely continue using this. I’m thinking about trying the hair serum as well.

> [Never too old!] I smiled when I saw that your survey of users of this product had a maximum age of 60. I am 79, and found that my eye lashes were becoming so sparse, and yes I minded, I wear eyeliner and mascara every day. I saw this serum recommended by Sali Hughes in The Guardian newspaper, and I totally trust her recommendations so I bought it. It totally works, lengthening my lashes and they appear thicker.

> [OMG!] Absolutely, blooming fantastic. From a menopausal woman whose eyes & skin are soo sensitive, I genuinely thought that this was a huge waste of money - but how wrong was I! I started applying every other day to make sure there was no latent reaction and then every day. Not once did my eyes water, skin go red or red patches appear and my lashes are now fantastic! > [DO NOT BUY THIS PRODUCT!] I purchased the eyelash serum and applied it to my lashes as instructed. The next morning I woke up and both my eyelids were red and swollen. I returned the product and sent pictures to customer service showing the extreme allergic reaction I had to the product. I was told because I used the product, Sweed would not refund my money. They did not investigate if I received a botched batch or have any empathy their product created such an issue for me, which also resulted in a bill to my dermatologist for medicine to clear up my eyes. Sweed obviously cares more about their bottom line than how their product can affect their customers. I have searched other eyelash serums for aging women and found Prime Prometics. The serum is very good quality and I’ve had amazing results with no adverse reactions. I HIGHLY RECOMMEND PRIME PROMETICS!!

> [Love it!] I’m on my second tube and already have another waiting in the wings. I’ve been using the eyelash serum for almost one year and I could see results after just one month. My lashes are light in color and not too thick. After one month of use, I could actually see them when I looked in the mirror from a distance. After almost a year, they look even better. I was using Babe Lash with great results but it has Prostaglandin so I stopped using it. Fortunately, I watched a Dr. Sam Ellis YT video and she recommended Sweed’s serum.

> [LOVE MY LASHES AGAIN!] I’ve struggled with styes every so often & have lost many lashes as a result. I’ve tried different brands of “growth serums” for my lashes but was always dissatisfied…until now. Sweed’s growth serum is a “clean” formulation that doesn’t sting & doesn’t make my lashes so brittle that they fall out. I can use it with confidence that I won’t be applying anything harmful to my sensitive lash base. My lashes are fuller & longer and those sparse areas have filled in beautifully! What a find! I also apply this serum day & night. It even works great before applying my Cloud Mascara. No other brands can compare. Love my lashes again!

> [Great product!] I really like the Eyelash Growth Serum. I agree with other reviewers that you need to be patient. I started seeing a change at about 4 weeks after regular use. It's a very gentle formula and goes on easily every night. I am 50 and I started noticing that I had some small gaps in my eyelashes. Mascara wasn't even helping - it didn't feel like my eyes looked good. After 6 weeks using the serum, I am very happy! The gaps have filled in and over-all they are fuller lashes. They may be slightly longer, but mostly full.

> I'm also using Sweed mascara and that has been a game changer. The combination of the these two products has been great! I love my eyes again! (the photos are without mascara)

Serums without a prostaglandin, like Luxe: Vegamour GRO Lash Serum (peptide plus red clover and mung bean sprout extracts), Babe Original Renewing (peptides), The Ordinary Multi-Peptide Lash and Brow Serum, Dermelect XLASH and TwentyTwenty (oil-based). Note that some reviewers here are comparing them with a prostaglandin serum they used before. Their side effects are from that earlier serum where the quote says so.

> [The best lash serum on the market!] I have tried every lash growing serum on the market! I use to think Rodam Fiields lash grow serum was the best until I tried Vegamour. I have an autoimmune disease that causes my eyelashes to fall out in patches literally over night. I wake up missing 6-7 lashes right in the middle or end of my lash line. Rodan Fields would only work prior to my autoimmune disease. Vegamour works all the time, but most importantly after an episode of eyelash loss.

> [It does work] I’ve used the same lash serum (different brand) for over 10 years and it worked amazingly well, but I was noticing hollowing around my eyes and had learned this is an actual thing that can happen with the ingredients of my other serum. I’ve switched before to another brand and watched my lashes slowly thin out and stop growing so I was terrified for that to happen when I tried this brand. To my joy and surprise, that did not happen. I’ve been using it over a month now and while my lashes are maybe not quite as long as before they have filled out quite a lot. So this is definitely working and doesn’t have the questionable ingredients that can cause the hollowing. So I will keep on this and hoping the length will continue to improve as time goes on.

> [Longer lashes] This serum seems to increase the length of my lashes, although not the thickness. One thing I've noticed, though, is that the lashes fall out after a while. > [Amazing product worth the money] My mum got this in an advent calendar and gave it to me. I'd been thinking about getting a lash serum for months but I was unsure due to the risk of under eye circles darkening (I already have deep set dark under eyes so I didn't really want to contribute to the problem). After the researching the product after my mum gave it to me and seeing that this serum did not contain the ingredient that causes that side effect I decided to give it a go. And oh my lord. It's been 2 weeks and I can already notice a huge difference. My lashes are thicker and longer and I've actually had to relearn how to use my mascara because I'm not used to having lashes so long ! I know it's in the pricey side, but I will definitely be repurchasing once I've run out of my gifted serum. > [Kept my lashes during chemo!] I was diagnosed with breast cancer at 32 and started chemo in October. I finished chemo 6 weeks ago and I still have my lashes because of this serum! I always had long and thick lashes and I did lose a little bit volume during treatment, but not length. An oncology nurse just told me I have the longest lashes she has even seen, after going what I went through, that comment made my day. Before I started chemo, I checked with my doctor to make sure it was ok to use this serum, and with her approval, I used this serum twice a day. There was a spot on my lower lashes that were missing a few hairs before I started treatment and I kid you not, it filled in while I was losing my hair everywhere else! I don't know what is in this serum, but it works and you should give it a try.

> I’m genuinely impressed with this lash serum. I usually give up on serums because I don’t see results right away, but this one completely changed my mind. Around week four, I started noticing visible growth, and the results just kept getting better the longer I used it. My lashes including my bottom lashes grew longer and fuller than I ever expected, and I was shocked that it didn’t cause dark circles or irritation at all. It’s incredibly easy to apply, gentle, and absolutely worth the price. I got this because of the serums in the past have led to my eyes becoming red and flaky. I took the risk and tried this product and I am not a person who usually buys products such as skincare and what not. My lashes have never looked better in my life. > [Lashes did get longer] My lashes did get longer but my lashes are light color so you can only see the length when I am wearing mascara. Follow instructions carefully about using one brush for both lashes because if you use too much it can get into your eye. This does not make my eyes itch like other growth serums.

> [It really works!!] I used a different lash serum for 2 years before I realized the serious side effects some chemical ingredients can have--my eyes were irritated, swollen, and darkening. To transition back to my natural lashes after quitting the serum, I thought I would give Vegamour a go--it didn't have the scary ingredients and sounded like it really works for some people. Well, about 6 months later I am so happy with my results from Vegamour. My lashes are healthy, longer, and fuller than they used to be naturally. I was terrified to stop using the old serum and lose all my lashes, but Vegamour really helped with the transition and made me happy with my natural lashes for the first time. My natural lashes were basically non-existent: super short, brittle, thin, barely hanging on. I've tried Latisse and another "natural" lash serum but they irritated my eyes sooo bad. I have super sensitive skin and am also prone to getting excema above and below my eyes. Fun stuff. I decided to try this. I loved that it's vegan and uses natural ingredients. 3 weeks in and my lashes are noticeably darker and getting longer and longer! I'm so excited that this works and doesn't irritate my eyes. The first week I did experience a little bit of itchiness after applying. Nothing crazy or unbearable and has completely gone away now.

> [healthier longer lashes!] I have been using this for about 8 months now. I had lash fallout from a surgery I had a couple years back and they never came all the way back in. This worked for me! It took me about 2 months of consistent use but it really increased the length of my lashes and density. It didn’t make them any thicker though, but now my mascara is much more helpful and looks more even- no lash gaps! I now use it once a day for maintenance. Love that it’s vegan and unless you get a ton in your eye it doesn’t cause any irritation for me (none of the vegamour products do which is huge because i’m very sensitive to fragrance and things. no issues here.) I will continue to use because i feel my lashes are much more healthy!

> [Four Weeks In] I’m officially four weeks into my serum use and I’m pleasantly surprised with my results! My results aren’t as drastic as some pictured, but I’m still pleased. I use the regular lash serum as instructed on my top lashes I my twice a day (there was one day where I only applied once). I’m lucky to have a dark, thick lash line, but my lashes have always been really short. It was almost impossible to curl them, and when I did it would actually hurt a little (from the curler pulling the lashes).
> I don’t know if my results are noticeable to anyone else yet, but I can see a difference. My lashes are thicker, darker, and a little bit longer. It’s hard to judge exactly how much longer they’ve gotten (when I close my eyes, my bottom lashes would stick out longer than my top lashes), but there’s definitely a difference! The difference is most obvious when I curl them, they actually stay visibly curled and there’s no pinching pain!!!
> All pictures are of my naked lashes (no mascara or serum). Before pics on top, after pictures on bottom.
> I’ll update my review after 8 weeks.

> [Noticed improvement in 2 weeks!] I got lash extensions a few years ago and experienced a reaction on the right lash line (presumably from the glue). Unfortunately, I had to remove some pieces/lashes very quickly to stop the burning. Since then, I've had shorter less organized lashes on this side. After using this serum for 2 weeks, I definitely noticed healthier looking lashes. It's going on 2 months of usage and my lashes are longer, thicker and the lash line looks more symmetrical. Will definitely keep using vegamour!

> [Effective lash serum] I have sensitive eyes with brittle lashes, searching for a safe, non hormone based serum to improve length and fullness. I have been using this serum regularly twice a day for 7 weeks, and I am thrilled with the results. I noticed progressive increase in length by the second week. One dip covers both eyes, top and bottom. I have not experienced any negative side effects, no sensitivity. I will continue using and decrease frequency to once a day as recommended after 2 months of use. I am going to try the brow serum next...

> [Works for Short Asian Lashes But Takes Longer To See Results] I was skeptical this would work for my short asian lashes, and after two months I didn't see a difference at all. I started at the beginning of quarantine (march) and finally saw longer lashes by June. Now into July they start to really pop with just an eyelash curler and no mascara which is great! I wanted to leave this review in case you have shorter lashes - stick with it and you will eventually see results! Minus one star because while they are longer, I don't see a density/volume difference.

> [Long-Term Consistency Will Yield Result] I’ve used this serum consistently since beginning Oct 2021 (about 4mos). I do see a slightly noticeable improvement in length but only with mascara on since my lashes are light at the tips, but nothing like crazy long spider lashes. I’ve tried Latisse and my eyes were bloodshot, just started trying Grandelash and it seems to doing the same. This formula is the most gentle to use to implement into your daily routine. Chances are I will goes back to Vegalash and probably try the CBD formula at some point. You just have to give it a lot of time and don’t give up after just a few weeks, it’s the “long game” with this stuff like +6mo

> [An unbelievable transformation for my lashes] have always been fortunate to have naturally beautiful, long, and dense lashes. However, with age and the effects of chemotherapy, they became increasingly thin and prone to falling out. I believe I have tried nearly every eyelash serum available on the market, with varying results. Then, I came across Sweed’s serum, and I was astonished! I purchased three bottles and waited to see if the results would be both genuine and long-lasting—and they truly are! My lashes look amazing, even without mascara, and there have been no side effects. I won’t be searching for an alternative again. Congratulations, Sweed, on creating such an incredible product!

> [I works wonders and doesn't irritate my eyes] What more could I ask for? This has made a tremendous difference for me. I have hypothyroidism and Hashimotos thyroiditis that I have been finally getting under control this past year. My hair and eyebrows were starting to recover, but my lashes were still struggling. I ordered this when I noticed that a small chunk of the lashes on my right eye were still missing. Within a month they were growing in and now 3 months in it looks like I have false eyelashes on when I curl my lashes. I'm so happy with this!

> [Game changer] I normally don't write reviews, but wth this product, there's no way I couldn't!! Due to aging and using eyelash extensions, my lashes were short, thin and sparse. I was watching on of my favorite makeup influencers and she raved about this product, so I had to try it! OMG!!! I received results what seemed like a few weeks. My lashes are the longest I've ever seen them and they're so much thicker and fuller. I cannot say enough good things about your eyelash serum! Thank you!

> [Longer, healthier lashes] I absolutely love this gentle formula! I've noticed less lash fallout since I started using this serum + my lashes do look fuller + healthier. I love that peptides are a part of the formula + that you really do see results with these products. I do suggest wiping off the excess product before applying as it can easily be too much. I don't think the wand should be dipped after applying to one eye with how much product is on the wand, but it's interesting that these instructions are different from the other serum/conditioners.

> [Gentle yet effective!] I have been using the new Renewing Serum for over a month now and already see a difference in my lashes; I initially noticed less shedding of existing lashes in the first week or so of use. Following that, I began to see new lashes growth and thickening of the lash hairs. My lashes are longer, thicker, and stronger than they were prior to using this serum, and I also noticed that I use less mascara; I used to use 3 heavy handed layers, and Now I just do two layers with a much lighter hand. This new formula is very gentle, and is made without prostaglandin. Some formulas of lash serum cause me to get little temporary bumps along my lash line, but I didn't experience that with this one. It is a gentle, effective lash growth serum and I am excited to see my continued results over the next couple months!

I will keep using as I know it's a long term game, but this is irritant free but slower results. You WON'T see results right away, but you will if you keep using it daily.

I bought 3 tubes of this because I have loved the Ordinary products. I am sooooo glad to watch this video and to know other people have had similar experiences. I am throwing all 3 tubes away and have purchased Revital Lash. THANK YOU!

I also watched a lot of other videos people have made and never heard any negative comments just varying degrees of effectiveness. Now you make this video and almost every comment is saying the same thing about heaviness. I don't know what to make of this it just seems incredibly odd.🤔

> [Nope] I waited too long to get a refund and accidentally didn’t update my subscription so I paid for a second tube. But this stuff broke my eyelashes off and created bald spots that weren’t there before. Once I stopped using it, my eyelashes started growing again. I’m so bummed it didn’t work at all for me and made my eyelashes worse.

> [excessive lash loss] the first picture is how my lashes were before using babelash. they were very long, healthy, and full until i saw some gaps in them. as i use mascara on a daily basis and my day pretty much depends on how my lashes look, (or used to) i immediately bought babe lash to possibly recover my lashes. but that was not my happy ending unfortunately. my lashes were growing for a little while, but thinning and falling out progressively as i used this serum. i noticed that when i forget to use it then my lashes end up holding a better curl or appear darker. worst $60 i spent of my life and i wish i could get a refund. although, it is different for everyone so best of luck!

> [Works well even with infrequent use!] I didn't use this as often as I should have and I've still seen a noticeable difference in my lashes, especially the lower lashes. I've been getting complimented on them even when I'm not wearing makeup! My only gripe is that I don't like applying the product and I feel like it's hard to get close to the lash line without getting it in my eye. I usually have to use a steady hand like I'm applying liquid liner and as someone who likes a minimal daily routine, I usually leave this out and save it for self-care days.

I've been using it daily in the evenings, and I can already see visible results. My lashes feel stronger, yet they remain flexible and soft. I no longer feel the need to use mascara every day—just curling my lashes is enough now! I also really like the color of the packaging—it's eye-catching among other products and serves as a great reminder to use it regularly. Highly recommend!

Of course the extra cost is on me, however I am surprised at the tiny amount of product in each of these tubes and the packaging is extremely cheap. I only hope this will last me until I can see some results. I should also mention that it makes your eyelids turn red. Not a big deal but might bother some people.

> [Pigmentation Deposit] My eyelashes are thicker and slightly longer but at a cost. The skin around my eyes became extremely dark and i have also had significant fat loss under the eyes. On the packaging it does state that one of the side effects is enhanced skin pigmentation in the area of application.

The serum is sold as prostaglandin-free, and dark skin and fat loss are typical prostaglandin effects. Her note about the packaging could not be checked. She may be mixing it up with another product, or this may be a real reaction.

When I have natural lashes, I use neuLash to condition and build up my lashes. It does work but your lashes won't look like falsies. It takes 4 months to see the full effect of neuLash on your lashes. If you use neuLash and a lash primer (Chanel) and a good mascara (Hourglass) your lashes will look pretty amazing after you give it the full 4 months it needs to take affect.

> I bought Revitalash a few years ago and it definitely lengthened my lashes, but it also caused horrendous dry eyes - I researched this and found that this can be a side effect. Unfortunately I had to throw it away (and it’s not cheap 😭) and I still, to a lesser degree thankfully, have dry eyes to this day. I know it’s great for many people, but it’s just something to be aware of! I’m still on the hunt for an alternative but as I don’t know what ingredient caused the dry eyes I’d be very wary of trying another 😟

> I’ve been using Babe Lash on my eyelashes and brows and OMG! I look like I have eye lash extensions, seriously I can’t live without it now. I’m on my 3rd tube. I’ve tried Grande and Lash MD and nada! So, like you said, try them out and find what works for you. I’ve recommended Babe Lash to several people. My lashes were so puny and now, they are so thick, full and longer and I don’t even need to curl them and one coat of mascara, wow!! You are gorgeous and you really are aging in reverse. I feel that way sometimes, I’m 48 and people think I’m 35, so that always feels great!!! Happy Hump day!

I REALLY like Revitalash the most. It's a bit pricey, but sometimes you can get coupon codes (especially with the Dermstore). I also have used the generic form of Latisse and it showed great results (ingredient bimatoprost) which you can buy from an online pharmacy. Finally, Lilash also works well and uses a prostaglandin. Grande lash and others have proglasprostaglandins in them, often times cousins of the prostaglandins we would normally recognize but now we don't because they include slight variations with different names, which are also harmful. The skin rimming my eyes was always red and I had the sunken eye effect. The color change was more a problem for blue or green eyes. My eyes are brown, so not an issue for me. Ultimately, I needed surgery because the meds failed to stop the progression of the disease. Since then, I have not needed the drops. The sunken eye and red eye symptoms did reverse. Those were the symptoms that were visible to me I do now have dry eye, but the surgery is probably the cause of that.

I think that the recipe that the company uses is an essential factor. I bought an eyelash serum from Amazon, and I noticed a big lash and brow growth over two weeks of usage. It is true that after you stop using it, your hair game will get back to normal, but the company had 5ml of serum, which sufficed me for over three months.

> I’ve used bimatoprost for quite a while & for a few years now have been alternating it with RevitaLash. Unlike many I have had very good results with bimatoprost. No noticeable side effects; but of course I don’t want to risk fat loss in the orbital area. Before I started using bimatoprost, about seven years ago, I had severely sunken eyes (age related) which improved with a touch of filler and some PRF. My castor oil lash experiment didn’t last long. For some reason my eyes became very irritated 🤦‍♀️. Most recently, RevitaLash has started to burn my eyes. I’m definitely interested in moving away from a prostaglandin based lash serums. I certainly don’t want to risk fat pad loss, if there’s a sum out there that can give similar benefits to bimatoprost / prostate Landon serums. My Reviv journey has just started!! I hope my results are as beautiful as yours. I had no luck with the ordinary serum ☹️ either. I agree with you it’s all in the formulation. Thanks for this wonderful review.😊

> I've started using pure castor oil about 2 months ago. It wasn't a dramatic change but over time I've noticed that my lashes definitely seem thicker and more moisturised, so overall, I'm pretty happy and will continue to use it. No irritation or negative side effects in my case.

> Hi I bought some of this, I have spent lots of money in the past on eyelash serum and had bad results re the Prosterglandins. This new product has proved to be a gem, although it did take 3 weeks to arrive. I have been using this now for 10 days, no sign of new growth but I have no doubt that within the month they will be thickening and length growth. I have been delighted that it has not irritated or made my eyes red or sore.

> Claudia is so lovely and I appreciate her sharing this. But unfortunately Revive was found to have been hiding prostaglandins in their formula at the time this video was made. People were starting to experience side effects similar to Latisse and other prostaglandin based serums after using it for longer periods of time. So be careful! Shame on these companies for being so shady. Would love an updated video
